JUDGE LINDLEY DEFENDS ACTS AT PRIVATE HEARING

SAMUEL ETTELSON BRINGS COMPLAINT

No Announcement Made Concerning Evidence Given Except That It Was "Delicate Matter."

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—The House Judiciary Committee today heard testimony by Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley of Danville, Ill., and Samuel Ettelson of Chicago in its consideration of the McKeown subcommittee report on an inquiry into bankruptcy administration in Federal courts of the Northern District of Illinois.

The committee, earlier in the week, voted to recommend that the House ask impeachment of Judge Charles C. Woodward of Chicago.

Judge James H. Wilkerson, also of Chicago, is the third Judge named in the McKeown report. Chairman Sumners (Dem.), Texas, said action on the cases of Wilkerson and Judge Lindley would be decided next week. The subcommittee report censuring the three Judges made no recommendations.

The exact nature of Ettelson's testimony to the committee and Lindley's reply was not made known. The hearing was closed. Members of the committee, ordinarily willing to talk off the record, were silent.

They would have no report, they said, until the committee announced its disposal of the Wilkerson and Lindley cases.

"Our lips are sealed by common consent," said Sumners.

A "Delicate Matter."

Committee members, however, agreed that the hearing had to do with the "delicate matter" which they mentioned at the time they announced a decision on the Woodward case. While they refused to explain what the "delicate matter" concerned, it was learned that it related to the administration by Judge Lindley of the Insull receivership cases.

Judge Lindley went to Chicago to sit in Wilkerson's absence the day the Insull receivership petitions were brought before the bar.

Ettelson, a former attorney for the Insulls, frankly admitted to reporters that he appeared at today's session to tell something disadvantageous to Judge Lindley. He would say nothing more.

Representatives Dobbins and Meeks, both Democrats of Illinois and personal friends of Judge Lindley, were present for the purpose of questioning Ettelson on certain details. Although not members of the judiciary, they were admitted as Congressmen.

Two in Anteroom.

Waiting in an antechamber were H. I. Green of Urbana, Ill., and Robert Golding of Chicago.

Green, a utilities counsel who represented the McKinley traction interests and was later named by Lindley as a friend of the court in the Insull receiverships, said he was merely present "to substantiate what Judge Lindley wished to say."

Green described Golding's presence as that of one "deeply interested in the case."

It was reported by committee members that Ettelson spoke in the strictest confidence and with the understanding "that whatever I say here goes no farther."

Judge Lindley himself would not even discuss his appearance.

"I'd love to sit down and talk things over," he told reporters, "but I'm entirely in the hands of the committee, and until they make a report, I can say nothing."

POLES DRINKING LESS BEER

Feminine Slenderness and Sports of Youths the Reason.

WARSAW, May 26.—The prevailing fashion for slender figures among Polish women and the interest of young men in sports has had a marked influence on beer consumption, the newspaper "Kurjer Warszawaki" says.

Out of 282 breweries only 184 are working, while the production of beer has dropped, it is said, from 38,600,000 gallons in 1929 to 27,100,000 in 1933. The depression cannot take all the blame for this, the Kurjer Warszawaki insists, pointing out that "all young sportsmen are avoiding beer for fear of getting stout while the present fashion is another factor, since all women, from kitchen to parlor, want to be slim."

Streamlined Train Makes Record 1015-Mile Run

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 26.—The Burlington's streamlined train Zephyr arrived in Chicago tonight after a non-stop, record-breaking run of 1015 miles from Denver at an average speed of 77.5 miles an hour.

The Zephyr flashed through a finish wire strung across Halsted street at Sixteenth street at 7:09 o'clock, its total elapsed time being 13 hours and 5 minutes. From Halsted street it proceeded to the World's Fair grounds, gliding to its place in the Travel and Transport Building as a crowd of 100,000 looked on.

The train reached a top speed of 112.5 miles an hour on a three-mile run in Eastern Colorado, shortly after its start, and at one time maintained an average of 90 miles an hour over a 93.6-mile course. This bettered the 109 miles an hour made by the Zephyr in a previous run. It failed, however, to beat the speed record made over a 4.8 mile run in 1904 by the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad which covered that short distance at an average of 115.2 miles an hour.

Leaving Denver at 5:04 a. m. with 72 passengers aboard, the Zephyr streaked across Eastern Colorado and Nebraska and soon beat the previous non-stop railroad record—401 miles—done by England's Royal Scot, at an average speed of 56 miles an hour. The Zephyr averaged 79.1 miles per hour over that distance.

Officials of the Burlington claimed a new American record for sustained speed when the train clipped off the 96.3 miles between Otis and Stratton, Colo., at an average of 90 miles an hour.

The train glided over Nebraska at 76.6 miles an hour for the 360 miles; traversing Iowa, however, it slowed down to an average of 78.3 for 274 miles. In Illinois the train again speeded up.

BRAND WHITLOCK'S WIDOW ALONE WITH HIM AT GRAVE

By the Associated Press.

CANNES, France, May 26.—Brand Whitlock was laid to rest in the cemetery here today, with his widow the solitary figure at the graveside. She had asked that she be permitted to say her last good-by without witnesses.

Services were said for the diplomat and author at a small Episcopal chapel, Holy Trinity Church. The Rev. Gilbert Williams, rector, was assisted by the Rev. Samuel McComb, rector of the American Church of Nice. Across the oaken casket were the flags of the United States and France. Behind the rectors hung flags of the United States, France, Belgium and Great Britain.

At the end of the service the casket was placed on the steps of the church. Mrs. Whitlock was seated in a chair beside it. Eulogies were spoken by Gaston de Leval, who had worked with Whitlock in the World War to save Edith Cavell, the English nurse, from execution by a German firing squad, and M. Testel, who represented the French Legion of Honor. De Leval's discourse was broken by sobs. Whitlock had been his friend for 20 years.

Mrs. Whitlock went alone to the cemetery in the car of Edouard Bret, a close friend of the late Ambassador.

HOUSE WILL EARMARK HUGE RECOVERY FUND

Leaders Work With Douglas on Specific Amounts for Certain Kinds of Expenditures.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—Yielding to pressure of members, House leaders are insisting on limiting the powers President Roosevelt may exercise in spending the $1,322,000,000 he asked for recovery.

When the President asked Congress in a special message to appropriate this amount, he sent along a bill for introduction. It made no definite allocations, simply providing that expenditures for various purposes should not exceed stipulated amounts.

Chairman Buchanan (Dem.), Texas, of the House Appropriations Committee, didn't introduce that bill. Instead, he called his committee into session and the bill will not be submitted to the House until the committee approves it.

Byrns of Tennessee, Democratic floor leader, and Buchanan, have been trying to work out with Lewis W. Douglas, the budget director. An agreement on the bill that will meet the demand of House members for a definite ear-marking of the money.

"I told them," Byrns said, "that at least the money for roads and public buildings ought to be earmarked."

His suggestion was that the bill should require the expenditure of $100,000,000 for roads and around $35,000,000 for Federal buildings in the next fiscal year. That was taken under consideration by Douglas.

Some of the House members said that, in allocating some of the public works funds, Secretary Ickes permitted expenditures on public buildings which Congress had not authorized.

Buchanan said the understanding that Ickes would not do that again might obviate the necessity of inserting in the $1,322,000,000 bill language forbidding expenditures on public buildings not authorized by law.

STAGE OFFER TO JUNE ROBLES

Turned Down; "Not Enough Money,' Her Father Says.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 26.—Because June Robles, 6-year-old victim of kidnapers at Tucson, Ariz. was not offered "enough money" to assure her entire education," she will not make a personal appearance tour of theaters over the country, attorneys for her father announced today.

"We discussed various deals with Bryan Foy but could never come to terms, so the deal is off," lawyers for Ferdando Robles said. "They demanded too much," Foy, Hollywood film producer, said. "I could have made them quite a bit of money, but not as much as they wanted." The girl, who was rescued May 14 after being kidnaped and chained in a desert cage for 19 days, was brought here by her parents yesterday to visit relatives.

31,000 Tons of Grasshopper Poison.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—The Government has delivered 31,000 tons of poison bait to grasshopper-infested states. Dr. J. R. Parker, Federal field leader of the co-operative extinction campaign, predicted yesterday a uniformly heavy hatch of grasshoppers throughout the country, making possible almost complete kills with a single application of bait.

MUSSOLINI ASKS ITALY TO MAKE NEW SACRIFICES

With $340,000,000 Deficit He Wants $85,000,000 for Air Fleet and Like Amount for Ships.

HE CITES WORLD'S "DANGER SPOTS"

Special Cable.

ROME, May 26.—Premier Mussolini today bared Italy's fiscal and economic difficulties to the Chamber of Deputies, calling for new sacrifices by the people, and then, citing the world's danger spots, concluded:

"War is for man what motherhood is for woman. I do not believe in perpetual peace, which is depressing to the fundamental virtues of mankind. If a tragic situation should arise, the Italian people will face events with calm discipline and a strong will."

The Premier's words were received with loud applause by the deputies. He told them:

"Prior to solving the economic crisis, there are points of friction under the political surface that are growing worse and must be eased."

Points of Conflict.

These points, the Premier said, are the Saar territory, scheduled to decide in a plebiscite next year whether to return to Germany, become a part of France, or remain under League of Nations administration; the Danube valley, where France and Italy are making strong bids for allies; the Far East, and the stalemated disarmament situation.

The Premier announced that before 1940 he would seek an $85,000,000 appropriation for rebuilding Italy's air fleet, and another $85,000,000 for building passenger liners.

$340,000,000 Budget Deficit.

The greater part of his two-hour address, the Premier devoted to a summary of Italy's economic position. He said:

"The cut in the salary of State employes was inevitable, although I have always tried to increase their pay. The last cut did not touch 250,000 in the lower pay bracket. War pensions were also untouched. They are a holy debt, though the total is colossal.

"Since 1928, I have renounced all my salaries."

He said the State deficit in the present budget is $340,000,000 and that during the world crisis and since 1914, Italy has been indebted $6,445,000,000. He declared, "The State cannot resort to new taxes. Otherwise, it will find the taxpayer dead." He estimated the adverse trade balance at the end of the year will be $255,000,000. He continued, "We must reduce production costs and, if necessary, cut the workmen's pay in order to insure more work."

Mussolini said Italy will remain on the gold standard and keep aloof from "the fight between the pound and dollar," in which, he said, "the Japanese yen has in-

"At a certain point in the battle," he said, "Japan entered the lists with a super-dumping policy," adding that "dumpers," whether of currency or other commodities, "always attract other dumpers."

"India Rubber Currency."

"India-rubber currency," he said, "cannot last forever."

The Premier announced establishment of an iron-clad control over Italian exchanges and exports, in answer to what he called attempts by some Italians to speculate against their Government.

The control was in the form of a decree which forbids banks, corporations, societies or citizens resident or domiciled in the kingdom or its colonies to buy any values, either Italian or foreign, on foreign exchange markets.

Mussolini warned the Chamber that Italy should not consider abandoning gold for many reasons, one being that it is an importing country with regard to certain economic necessaries and must maintain itself in a position to buy needed foreign products with solid currency.

Reviewing events preceding and following currency devaluation in England and the United States and efforts made in other countries for the betterment of currency conditions, the Premier said no good reason for abandoning gold had been shown.

He quoted gold movements in France, Holland, Switzerland and other countries as proof of his contention that gold provides the most fluid basis for commerce and trade.

He said every effort would be made to keep Italy's gold coverage upon her currency at the present level of 53.6 per cent.

FLYERS HOP OFF, NON-STOP, FRANCE TO CALIFORNIA

HOPE TO BEAT OLD RECORD 500 MILES

Plan to Reach Point Near San Francisco or San Diego in 65 Hours and Win Prize of $32,500.

By the Associated Press.

LE BOURGET, France, May 27. (Sunday)—Lieutenants Paul Codos and Maurice Rossi, in their world record non-stop distance plane, soared into the sky at 4:10 a. m. today (10:10 St. Louis time), and headed for California, 6100 miles away, seeking new non-stop laurels.

Their silvery monoplane, the Joseph Lebrix, laden with 2000 gallons of fuel, took the air from a mile-long runway, circled the airport and departed on the dangerous westward Atlantic journey in an effort to break its own non-stop record of 5635 miles. This record was made in August, 1933, when Codos and Rossi flew from Floyd Bennett Field, New York, to Rayak, Syria, in 56 hours and 12 minutes.

The promise of ideal weather over the sea was borne out by a gently-breaking dawn, lending confidence to the aviators that they would reach the west coast of the United States in 65 hours.

"As Far As We Can Go."

"We don't know just where we will land," said Rossi, when the sudden decision was made yesterday, to start today, "but we hope it will be somewhere on the Pacific Coast between San Francisco and San Diego."

Rossi and Codos had wavered between Rio de Janeiro and California as the goal of their hop, but weather reports gave the decision to California, toward which the flyers are heading by way of New York.

The nine-ton veteran of last year's record flight from New York to Syria rose slowly and steadily after bumping dangerously with her heavy load over rough ground. The Joseph Lebrix used nearly all of the 5000 feet of the runway. The plane flew low into the east before turning westward. The plane has a cruising radius estimated at 6500 miles in 70 hours' flight.

"We are going as far as we can," said Rossi, as he climbed into the cabin just before the takeoff.

Call Letters on Fusilage.

The same 650-horse-power Hispano-Suiza engine which carried the craft from New York to Syria remains in the cowling. The plane is radio-equipped and will send signals at regular intervals. The call letters are FALCC, which are painted on the fuselage and underneath the wings.

The Joseph Lebrix will receive and send wireless messages on wave lengths of 600 to 900 meters for communication with ships. It will receive messages from other stations on a wave length of 37 meters from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. Greenwich Meridian time, and on 57 meters from 9 p. m. to 9 a. m. During the night the plane will flash an illuminated letter "O" for identification purposes.

Mother's Plea Fails.

The pleas of his aged mother, who wept and fell upon her knees as the aviators made their plans in Rossi's apartment, failed to deter the pilot's determination to make the trip.

"Nothing, mama, will stop me," he replied, as Madame Rossi clung to him.

Both the flyers and their wives spent most of the evening together in the apartment, but the men were so busy with plans for their trip that dinner was passed up.

Both wives expressed confidence in the success of their husbands, but Rossi's wife said she was not giving up the newspaper stand she operates in a Paris railroad station in anticipation of financial success, "because you never know what might happen."

Both flyers were too busy for sleep before the takeoff. Codos referred to Rossi as "the boss," adding, "I will be beside him."

"We consider another flight worth while," Rossi said, "because the actual distance covered by the Joseph Lebrix from New York to Rayak was much more than the 9104 kilometers officially recognized. If we succeed now, we will have a new record which can scarcely be beaten for several years.

"I hope with a little luck to make

E. A. Sherman, Forest Officer, Tells of Dangers in Present Agriculture.

NEW YORK, May 26.—As an aftermath of the recent dust storm which swept nearly half of the United States, the Department of Agriculture warns that a great American desert may be in the making throughout the Midwest if crop cultivation and the close grazing methods of farm animals are not changed.

The dust storm was a new phenomenon for the East, reports the Forest Service, but is becoming an alarmingly frequent occurrence in the Midwest. For several years in the Great Plains region reports of wheat crops blown out of the ground have been coming in, despite the fact that wind velocities, as recorded by the Weather Bureau, have not increased.

"This is the way deserts start," declares E. A. Sherman, associate forester of the Forest Service. "Excessive grazing, which destroys the protective vegetation cover and permits the ground to be trampled into dust, and the plowing up of naturally well sodded grazing lands for grain crops, makes it easy for the wind to whip away the dry soil and develop into a destructive dust storm. Wind erosion on the plains is like water erosion in states farther east in its power to destroy rich land in a few years and to transform broad stretches of country into devastated bad lands."

TRUCK DRIVERS BACK; UNION RECOGNIZED AT MINNEAPOLIS

Special Policeman Dies of Injuries, Second Victim of Riot in Market Place.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., May 26.—The hum of business activity in the city market place today replaced violence and disorder caused by the truck drivers' strike which has paralyzed commercial trucking since May 15.

An aftermath of the riots occurred when a second victim of serious injuries died. He was Peter Erath, 60 years old, special policeman who was injured during the truck strike fighting at the market Tuesday when C. Arthur Lyman., business man, also received fatal injuries.

An accord was signed last night by representatives of the striking drivers and their employers. The union won its principal demand, union recognition, under the agreement.

Demobilization of National Guardsmen, 3700 of whom were ordered out early this week after two men had been killed, 100 injured and 200 arrested in market place riots, was completed tonight.

SALE OF ABSINTHE ILLEGAL

Food and Drug Department Issues Warning.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—Reported sales of absinthe in drinking establishments and State-owned liquor stores in some states brought word today from the Federal Food and Drug Administration that the drink is outlawed and sellers are open to prosecution under the pure food and drug act.

Importation of absinthe, a green liquor containing oils of wormwood and anise, is forbidden and if manufactured and sold in the United States it is subject to confiscation, officials said. Absinthe, they said, is dangerous because of the wormwood oil which produces a recognized form of insanity. It has been barred by many foreign countries as being similar in effect to narcotics.

NEW YORK JOBLESS STORM WELFARE OFFICE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 26.—Police battled 1000 jobless who stormed the Department of Welfare today, and before the crowd was dispersed eight officers and four civilians were injured. The jobless were led by the United Action Committee.

The first rush was blocked. Then the rioters again pushed toward the doors of the department. Reserves and emergency crews were called and the police began wielding their night clubs. The jobless converted banner poles into clubs and exchanged blows with police. As the clubs cracked on heads the jobless repeatedly rushed toward the doors, shouting demands for a hearing inside. Reserves arrived and the police pushed the rioters into side streets ending the disturbance. Police made 19 arrests, on charges ranging from felonious assault to disorderly conduct.

John Gaynor, chairman of the United Action Committee, said the attempt to push into the building was made after vain attempts to lay unemployment problems before Stanley H. Howe, acting commissioner of welfare. Howe said other appointments prevented him from seeing the committee's delegation. After the riot a protest was sent to Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia by Alexander Taylor, executive secretary of a group of clerical workers on city projects, protesting against alleged police "brutality."

ROOSEVELT ACTS TO CHECK JAPANESE RUG COMPETITION

For First Time Exercises Powers Under Recovery Act by Increasing Duties.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—President Roosevelt, exercising for the first time his powers under the Recovery Act to impose additional import restrictions, today proclaimed three additional duties on rugs.

In addition to the duties now in force, the following levies were imposed, most of them effective June 10:

Chenille rugs, wholly or in chief value of cotton, 15 cents a square yard.

Imitation Oriental rugs, wholly or in chief value of cotton, 23 cents a square yard.

Rugs, wholly or in chief value of cotton (except grass or rice straw), other than chenille, imitation, Oriental and rag rugs of the type commonly known as hit-and-miss, 20 per cent ad valorem, but not less than 5 cents a square yard.

O. Max Gardner, former Governor of North Carolina, who argued the case before the Tariff Commission last January, said the President's decision would result in "tremendous benefit" to the rug industry in meeting Japanese competition.

Dry Agents Get Two Years.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

TEXARKANA, Ark., May 26.—Convicted of accepting and soliciting bribes from defendants indicted in liquor and bootlegging cases, S. M. Gurley, former Deputy Prohibition Administrator, and Owen R. Wilson, former Prohibition Enforcement Agent, were sentenced to two years in Leavenworth penitentiary in Federal Court today. The penalties on five cases will run concurrently. They gave notice of appeal. The pair and W. N. Ivie, former United States Attorney, are to be tried on two other similar indictments at the next term of court.

TOLEDO UNION TERMS CALL FOR TROOPS TO WITHDRAW

AGREE TO CONFER WITH HIM TODAY

Volley Fired Over Heads of Crowd That Tries Vainly to Prevent Arrest of Speaker by Guardsmen—Four More Wounded.

By the Associated Press.

TOLEDO, O., May 26.—In the first serious brush today a detachment of 15 National Guardsmen fired a volley over the heads of a crowd of 1500 in the factory district which has been the center of fighting for five days. The volley was fired to frighten the crowd which was trying to prevent the arrest of a speaker, who, the militiamen said, was drunk. The troops arrested him.

A few minutes later a guardsman fired on an automobile, the driver of which he said disregarded an order to halt. The bullet struck the car. Kenneth Williams, the driver, a resident of the strike zone, called on policemen to arrest the guardsman, but they refused.

A newspaper photographer, David West, was slugged in the scuffle incident to the capture of the drunken man, and lost his camera. Two of five men arrested and placed in jail on suspicion suffered bayonet wounds. Ralph Dickens, 27 years old, was taken to a hospital with a bayonet gash in the back.

Thinks Civilian Shot Him.

Owen Dougherty, 24 years old, was shot and seriously wounded. At the hospital he said he thought a civilian in the crowd had wounded him.

When the crowd which had been steadily increasing all evening swelled to 5000, the guardsmen began a tear gas attack. Under cover of the gas, guardsmen wearing gas masks and armed with policemen's night sticks rushed the crowd, arresting alleged hecklers. More than 50 had been taken to police headquarters before midnight. They were booked on charges of loitering. Among their number were at least nine from outside Toledo, including one University of Michigan student and two University of Michigan graduates from Ann Arbor.

Late tonight a howitzer company of the 145th Infantry, Ohio National Guard, known as "the Gas Patrol," arrived from Berea, O. About midnight the crowd had dwindled to about 1000.

Two persons have been killed and nearly 200 injured in the five days of rioting.

To Meet Mediator Today.

Union leaders drafted a plan for arbitration and agreed, at the request of Charles P. Taft, chief Federal mediator, to confer with him at 9 a. m. tomorrow.

This conference will be followed by a meeting of all interested groups—Federal mediators, strikers' representatives and officials of three employing companies, the Electric Auto-Lite Co., Bingham Stamping and Tool Co., and Logan Gear Co.

The union plan was prepared in response to a request by Federal mediators after the unions had rejected the Federal plan last night and had been told by Taft that the next move was up to them.

Union Demands.

The union proposal calls for:

Withdrawal of all National Guard troops from the city.

Submission of issues involved to a labor board.

Demands for 10 per cent wage increases and union recognition to go before whatever board is agreed to.

The leaders called a meeting to pass on the plan which requires the approval of the members of the union. As soon as he learned of the counter offer, Taft asked the union leaders to defer the vote until after tomorrow's conference and they did so.

The rejected Federal proposal, it is understood, provided for the resumption of work, the re-employment of all strikers without discrimination, and arbitration of all disputes by a board composed of Taft, a representative of the Na-

WAGNER LABOR BILL REPORTED IN REVISED FORM

WILL ARBITRATE WHEN APPEALED TO

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—Greatly altered during its long stay in committte, the Wagner Labor Board bill emerged today under pressure for its enactment by Congress before adjournment.

Despite renewed efforts exerted in behalf of the bill by the administration in its concern over the growing seriousness of widespread labor troubles, there was no certainty that it would be enacted in the few weeks remaining to Congress. Senator Walsh (Dem.), Massachusetts, chairman of the Senate Labor Committee, however, said he hoped to obtain its passage.

The committee's report on the bill definitely removed the Labor Board, to which it would give congressional sanction, from the realm of an arbitrating body except in cases where both labor and capital asked that it serve in that capacity.

"Strictly Judicial."

Walsh said that "all this bill does is to set up machinery to find facts and define what interferes with fair labor practices." The committee report said the board would be "strictly judicial, not primarily a prosecuting agency to ferret out offenders."

One objective of the bill is to settle points at issue over labor representation which have snagged strike negotiations in the last year.

President Roosevelt has expressed himself as favoring the object of the bill and is reported to desire its passage at this session if it does not delay adjournment. It is likely, however, that consideration in the Senate will entail time-consuming argument.

The probability of delay in the House is even more pronounced. The House Labor Committee has taken no action on the bill. Some of its members were described as particularly concerned at the failure of the Senate to put into the measure penal provisions for enforcement by the industrial dispute board.

Defines Unfair Practices.

One of the first objectives of the Senate bill is to put into the definite form of statute the meaning of unfair labor practices. As explained by Walsh, there are now no statutes defining unfair practices. The temporary National Labor Board, he said, was confronted with the task of enforcing something that did not exist in law.

The revised measure, while preserving existing closed shops, does not demand that all shops be unionized. It does not close the door to the so-called company unions in a general manner. But it does recognize the right of workers, the report states, to demand that their employers negotiate with representatives they have duly named.

The board would be given the power, in cases of dispute over negotiating agencies to hold a secret ballot to determine whom the majority wanted.

One of the major contentions of labor was that if open elections were held, the names of the men might be picked out by factory operators, for demotion or discharge.

FLYERS HOP OFF, NON-STOP, FRANCE TO CALIFORNIA

11,000 kilometers (6800 miles, which is about 700 miles more than the estimated air distance from Le Bourget to San Diego). Such a record would stand until a new plane is especially built for long-distance flying."

A prize of 500,000 francs ($32,800) awaits the flyers if they succeed. The prize is offered by the French Government, which owns the plane.

The flyers are carrying neither parachutes nor a collapsible boat for use in event of an accident.

The slow plane is built for distance rather than swiftness. It has a maximum speed of 105 miles an hour, with a cruising speed of 93 miles. It takes off and lands at only 37 miles an hour.

By SPENCER R. McCULLOCH.
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

TOLEDO, O., May 26.—Back of the grave disorders here marking the controversy between the Electric Auto-Lite Co., maker of lighting and starting systems for many automobile concerns, and the recently organized United Automotive Federal Workers' Union, lies the question of the "recognition" of the American Federation of Labor, a problem which has drawn the national automobile industry into controversy with NRA authorities.

Other economic and political factors affect the situation but the paramount issue which makes arbitration difficult is the refusal of the company to sign a contract with a union which they regard as motivated by the American Federation of Labor.

In a word, the union leaders interpret the so-called provision for collective bargaining in the famous Section 7 (A) of the National Industrial Recovery Act to obligate employers to deal with any union of the employes' selection for the settlement of wage controversies. The employer in this case interprets collective bargaining to mean only that the employer shall deal with his own employes who may be selected by their fellows. But back of this conflict of interpretation is the issue of "open" or "closed" shop. The company fears that the eventual result of dealing with a union affiliated with the American Federation of Labor would be a "closed" shop, closed, that is, to all workers except members of an A. F. of L. union, and that this situation in turn would result in the selection of employes by union officers instead of by the employer.

The Company's Position.

J. A. Minch, vice-president of the company, which furnishes necessary equipment to 38 automotive concerns, told this writer today that his concern could not afford to deal formally with an organization which reflects "the American Federation of Labor attitude of attempting to force recognition on the automotive industry."

Minch, whose $20,000,000 concern holds contracts with the Studebaker, Hupp, Nash, Hudson-Essex and other motor car companies, narrated the history of the relationships with his company and the NRA, asserted it is "100 per cent NRA" but said it recognized the right of collective bargaining without the necessity of recognizing "any union as a union."

"We recognized the right of our men to organize," Minch said, as National Guardsmen guarded his office and plant, "and we don't care whether they are union or non-union men.

"But we are not going to turn our business over to one union. We won't sign a union contract. We will deal, we will confer with our men or their representatives but a signed union contract—no."

Minch, union leaders, and city officials were in agreement on one point—that for the past six weeks, since the strike began, NRA mediatory efforts have not functioned, lacking "teeth." What Toledo needs, he observed, is "a code for labor leaders."

Viewpoint of the strikers, as expressed by Thomas Ramsey, business agent of the union and leader of its strike, is based on the contention that the collective bargaining clause provision of the National Industrial Recovery Act makes it mandatory on the employer to deal with any union of the employes' own choosing.

Ramsey asserted that the Auto-Lite Co., even before the strike began, on April 13, refused to treat with the union, dismissed members of it, and refused subsequently to submit to arbitration or to close the plant pending an attempt to effect arbitration. While the basic demand for recognition of the union is unchanged, the original proposal of the union for a closed shop has been withdrawn and a 20 per cent wage increase has been reduced to a request for 10 per cent. Preference on the employment rules based on length of service with the company prior to the strike is insisted on also.

While NRA mediators attempt to obtain the consent of the company and strikers to agree to submit their differences to the Detroit Automobile Labor Board, which is the extent of their authority, disorders continue and civic representatives of all factions admit that civil authority has been greatly weakened because of the lack of enforcement provisions in the NRA codes.

Judge Roy R. Stuart, of the Court of Common Pleas, whose anti-picketing injunctions have been consistently violated, said today he had reached the conclusion that many workmen "feel that the courts are part of a capitalistic system and sense that the NRA mediators lack enforcement authority."

Since the inception of the codes, the Judge said, he has been unable to "observe that respect for law and order has been enhanced."

Problems of the Court.

With more than 50 violators of injunctions before him for contempt of court, many of his observations responded to by the "boos" of courtroom crowds, the judge, it was learned, is faced with the possibility of a courthouse riot should he impose sentences. Mayor Kolotz said he regarded the NRA as "essentially an industrial honor system which works only so long as it is voluntarily lived up to."

When precepts are not adhered to, he said, the result in Toledo has been "the weakening of civil authority and the creation of general disaffection."

Feeling of unrest in this community is enhanced by the general realization that the strife which resulted in the sending of troops was precipitated by special deputy sheriffs, some of them company employes, who threw tear gas bombs into the ranks of the strikers.

Mayor Klotz, who witnessed the early disorders, said that he saw the deputies throw tear gas bombs into the crowd, which he described as "peaceable although curiously thronging around the building."

John Quinlivan, Lucas County Commissioner, and for 23 years prior to his recent election business agent of the Central Labor Union, admits that he refused to honor requisitions for special deputy sheriff fees, based on injunction orders issued by Judge Stuart.

"City police could have handled the situation without the aid of troops," Quinlivan said, "but the matter was taken out of their hands at the outset."

Ignoring of injunctions results partly from prejudice engendered here in 1919 when a strike at the Overland automobile plant was broken primarily through anti-picketing injunctions. The present strike, although comparatively few men are involved, is in point of violence the worst of four major strikes here since 1900, all of the others occuring prior to the depression.

Grimness of the present strike is enhanced by a spirit of class warfare, a feeling on the part of many of the rank and file that the "capitalistic system" is ranged against them and that it embodies the law and enforcement agencies.

This feeling is intensified because of a series of bank failures here, freeing many men who had borrowed money on their homes from any sense of obligation. Formerly, the typical workman hesitated before going on strike—he considered the danger of failing to meet payments on his home, of providing for his family.

Now, with the savings of thousands swept away and their homes lost to them this feeling no longer exists. Their salaries are not mortgaged for future payments. Wages in many instances do not exist.

While most of the strikers have confronted the troops, the majority of the men composing the crowds are recruited from the ranks of about 25,000 unemployed men in this city, according to Commissioner Quinlivan, who estimated 18,000 families still are on relief rolls.

General Strike Possibility.

While numerous local unions of other industries have evidenced their willingness to join in a sympathy strike, tying up this city's utilities and industries, such a strike would, in the regular course of events, have to have the approval of the international organizations of the various trade unions. In event of "mob hysteria," which has continued for four days, such rules might be violated, Quinlivan said, although he was of the opinion the "old conservative union men" would prevent an immediate general strike.

In discussing details of some of the strikers' proposals, apart from the fundamental question of union recognition, Minch, the vice-president of the accessory company, said the wages at the plant are today "within 10 per cent of the 1929 peak while living costs are 30 per cent lower." He added that "business is off 70 per cent."

At the same time he pointed out his company's refusal to close the plant pending arbitration was due to the necessity of filling contracts with automobile companies. The automobile industry, he said, "led the way out of the depression, only to be stopped by strikes."

Production of certain major companies, Minch said, would be curtailed unless the lighting and starting equipment was delivered on schedule time. The factory was closed yesterday as a skeleton crew cleared away debris on the property, including hundreds of bricks thrown from the crowd.

History of the Company.

The Electric Auto-Lite Co. was organized in 1922 to take over the assets of a division of the Willys Corporation and it subsequently obtained control, often through stock transfers, of such firms as the USL Battery Corporation and Prest-O-Lite Storage Battery Corporation, as well as a substantial interest in the makers of Bendix drives. Besides its plant here, it maintains factories at Fostoria, O.; Niagara Falls, East Pittsburgh, Pa.; Adrian, Mich.; Muskegon, Mich.; Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and Oakland, Cal. Two subsidiary concerns here are affected by the strike.

While wage demands of the strikers change as mediation attempts develop, recent representations urge a 10 per cent increase plus time and a half for overtime over wages which they contend average 46 cents an hour for men and 33 cents for women. The company, which has made several wage increases states that its present scale is adequate and that it averages 38 cents for women and 59 cents for men.

No difficulty has been found in eplacing strikers, due partly to the circumstances that the development of simply operated machinery enables the work to be done by semi-skilled instead of skilled labor.

SILVER BILL GIVEN FAVORABLE REPORT

Committee Acts and House Is Expected to Approve Measure This Week.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—The silver bill was hurried along today by a favorable report by the House Ways and Means Committee after only two days of hearings.

Chairman Doughton (Dem.), North Carolina, said he expected to bring the measure up in the House next week and that he looked for approval without delay.

Not an opposition witness testified before the House Committee. Prof. E. W. Kammerer of Princeton University, monetary authority, was expected to voice objections to the silver purchase program today, but failed to appear.

Representatives Dies (Dem.), Texas, and White (Dem.), Idaho, urged passage. Dies, who introduced the measure in the House, explained its provisions.

The committee adopted several amendments, already added to the Senate bill, introduced by Senator Pittman (Dem.), Nevada. The principal one would strengthen the declaration of policy under which the United States will purchase silver until the metal constitutes 25 per cent of the metallic monetary reserve.

The Treasury's holding of approximately 690,000,000 ounces now constitutes 12 per cent of the metallic reserve and officials have estimated it would be necessary to buy an additional 1,314,000,000 to reach the 25 per cent ratio.

Purchases of Silver.

There was no roll call on the House Committee action today but members said only Cochran (Rep.), Pennsylvania, opposed approval. Several committee members were absent.

The bill would permit the President to take over domestic stocks of silver at a price not to exceed 50 cents an ounce and, if the Continental supply is bought by the Treasury, the price is not to go beyond a half dollar an ounce.

To add to the reserve, purchases of foreign silver will be necessary at the world market price. The time for these purchases is left to the discretion of the President.

Dies' View of the Bill.

Dies said the bill was a step to carry out the resolution adopted at the London Economic Conference to "rehabilitate silver" and predicted similar action by other countries.

"This bill, if carried out, will help adjust our debt structure by cheapening the value of gold and providing an additional metallic base to do business," he said.

Dies said an "important feature" of the bill was the tax of 50 per cent on all profits from the sale and transfer of domestic silver stocks after May 14. "Otherwise," he said, "it might be said that we are drafting legislation here to help the speculator."

ST. LOUIS CCC YOUTH KILLED IN TRUCK CRASH

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MENA, Ark., May 26.—Elbert O'Quinn of St. Louis, member of the Civilian Conservation Corps, was killed, and three St. Louis youths were injured last night when a CCC truck ran into a lumber truck and trailer 12 miles north of here. O'Quinn was 22 years old.

The injured were Jerome Thomasson, 20, who suffered a fractured shoulder; Walter Thorworth, 19, cut and bruised, and Charles Wurtz, 19, lacerations of the scalp.

O'Quinn lived in St. Louis with his sister, Mrs. Ila Kerekhoff, 3420 Caroline street. He was an unemployed truck driver when he joined the Civilian Conservation Corps in April.

The other three likewise enlisted in April. Thomasson lives at 838 McLaran avenue; Thorworth at 4114 North Taylor avenue, and Wurtz at 1616 South Twelfth street.

tional Labor Board, and a representative of the union.

The presence of the troops became a dominant issue in the peace negotiations, when the unions made the flat demand for their withdrawal. Mediator Taft said he could not guarantee this. Adjt.-Gen. Frank D. Henderson of Ohio, said at Columbus that no change in the status of the troops was in sight, and declined further comment. It is costing the State $3500 a day to maintain the guardsmen on duty in the strike zone.

Union leaders who refused to allow their names to be used said pressure was coming from labor ranks for an immediate city-wide general strike. Lawrence Aubrey, union official, said 51 of the 103 union locals in Toledo had voted for a general strike. The original call for this strike went out for June 1.

The local International Association of Machinists announced a boycott of Auto-Lite products.

The "Unemployed Council" spread handbills throughout the city calling for a mass meeting in Courthouse Square this afternoon. The response was slow. No disorder was reported.

Missiles Cleared Away.

In the strike zone guardsmen cleaned up all missiles found on public property and hauled them away. Many piles of bricks and stones on private property remained, however. The guardsmen posted signs warning curious bystanders not to remain close to the lines around the Auto-Lite plant.

The soldiers were aided by civilian officers—sheriff's deputies and police—who established flexible lines enclosing half a mile square of the area around the militia lines.

Police and fire officials began an investigation of three fires in the strike zone during last night. They suspected incendiarism. Two houses and a box car were partly burned. They had been set on fire with cotton waste.

Patrolman Henry Buckeley, 45 years old, who was gassed overseas during the war, collapsed on duty, 10 blocks from the riot section. Physicians said gas he had inhaled during yesterday's efforts of Ohio National Guardsmen to scatter the rioters caused his collapse. He was taken to a hospital.

Heywood Broun, Correspondent, Falls Foul of Militiamen.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

TOLEDO, O., May 26.—One humorous situation developed when Heywood Broun, New York newspaper columnist, was arrested last night within the strike zone. Lacking newspaper identification, the president of he Newspaper Guild was threatened with bayonets by two beardless national guardsmen while they took him to the guardhouse. There, fellow newspaper workers gained his release, but not until national guardsmen had given Broun a lesson in the gentle art of crossexamination.

One guardsmen told Broun: "I know you. You're a Communist and we've been watching you several days."

Broun protested his innocence, and, lacking identification except a hotel key, explained he merely walked through the guard lines.

Guardsmen finally decided he had merely wanted to be arrested and they proceeded to "give him the works," under which he was so confused, he admitted he couldn't tell what train he arrived here on, nor the difference between daylight time and standard time.

Now he has a National Guard pass, but he will report the riot from the comfort of a hotel room.

REPORTS PLOT TO KILL U. S. ENVOY IN CUBA

Police Chief Takes Special Precautions to Guard Ambassador Caffery.

By the Associated Press.

HAVANA, May 26.—A plot to assassinate United States Ambassador Jefferson Caffery and to destroy American property in Cuba was reported today by Cuban police, who said extraordinary precautions had been taken to guard the Ambassador.

Cayetano Fraga, chief of the technical police, said that an automobile in which it was suspected assassins were riding had been observed loitering along the streets through which the American Ambassador drives on his way home. Several efforts to capture the occupants of this car had failed, he said, because it was too fast for pursuing police machines.

"Without Caffery's knowledge, one of our radio cars follows him wherever he goes," Fraga said.

While he insisted he had no definite information regarding the identity of the plotters, Fraga blamed "Communists and other enemies of President Mendieta and of Cuba who wished this Government to fail and with it the Cuban republic."

Special policemen in plain clothes have been detailed to guard all American property and to protect prominent Americans in Cuba, including newspaper men.

Caffery, it was indicated, was selected as an intended victim by the plotters because of his relations with the present Government.

The Ambassador, a Louisianian, 20 years in the diplomatic service, came to Havana in December, 1933, as the personal representative of President Roosevelt and after the recognition of the Mendieta Government was made Ambassador.

Four men were arrested tonight in an automobile in which police said they found 50 pounds of dynamite. The four were said to be "quite prominent revolutionaries." They were lodged in jail. A former police lieutenant was among them, police said, the others being students.

SHARP INCREASE IN REGISTRATION IN FOURTH WARD

Real Estate Men Unaware of Any Great Gain in Population in Jimmy Miller's Area.

FIFTH WARD ALSO HAS MORE VOTERS

Only Other Wards Showing Marked Jumps Are Thirteenth and Twenty-Fourth.

The Fourth Ward, where, under Justice Jimmy Miller's fostering care, a vote in the ratio of 201 to 1 for the bond issue was cast May 15, has thriven in population in recent years, to judge from the registration figures.

Real estate men have not noted any great residential growth in the Fourth Ward, which is bounded by the river, Glasgow avenue, Carr and Wash streets, Cass avenue and Brooklyn street. But the Election Board's registration records point to an increase in population there and in the adjoining Fifth Ward which is approached by only two other wards, the Thirteenth and the Twenty-fourth, in the southwest part of the city.

The registration figures are declared by Circuit Clerk John Schmoll, veteran Republican leader and a resident of the Thirteenth Ward, to be "away out of line," and to point to the practice of padding. Chairman Fred Pape of the Republican City Committee has made the same charge. Chairman James A. Waechter of the Election Board, a Democrat, has replied that the election machinery was in Republican hands up to the end of 1932.

The Subdivision Factor.

The Thirteenth Ward, which lies south of Tower Grove Park, between Grand boulevard and Kingshighway, and the Twenty-fourth, which is south of Forest Park and west of Kingshighway, have had large accessions of population in the last decade, and new subdivisions have been opened in both. There has been no subdivision activity in the Fourth Ward.

But from the mayoralty election of April, 1929, to that of April, 1933, the Fourth showed a registration increase of 32 per cent, as compared with an increase of 27 per cent for the Twenty-fourth Ward and 22 per cent for the Thirteenth Ward.

The Fifth, downtown river ward adjoining the Fourth, showed a 31 per cent increase in its registration in the same period. The Fifth is State Senator Mike Kinney's ward.

When the comparison is made between the registrations for the November elections of 1928 and 1932, an increase of 26 per cent is shown in the registration of the Fourth, 19 per cent in the Fifth, 26 per cent in the Twenty-fourth and 23 per cent in the Thirteenth. None of the other wards showed an increase comparable with that of the four wards named, and seven had a decrease, in the 1928-32 period.

Most of the wards, including the Thirteenth and Twenty-fourth, had decreases in registration for the 1933 mayoralty election as compared with the previous November election, but the Fourth and Fifth had considerable gains, though the Republican City Committee, with an apprehensive eye on the river wards, tried to check the advance.

Summary of the Figures.

The registration figures for the Fourth and Fifth Wards, the Thirteenth and Twenty-fourth Wards, and the entire city, in the mayoralty elections of 1929 and 1933 and the November election of 1932, are:

	1929.	1932.	1933.
Fourth Ward....	7,731	9,892	10,231
Fifth Ward	6,312	8,096	8,273
City total.....	348,951	388,467	384,269

Revision for the two special elections of this year, the Negro hospital bond election and the bond issue of May 15, has reduced the registration of all the wards, the Fourth included. The Fourth is now down to an enrollment of 9641, of whom 7292 were recorded as voting on the bonds, and the Fifth to 6593, of whom 4538 were recorded as voting May 15. The citywide registration is down to 316,916, a figure which Schmoll insists is still "out of line."

Registration for the August primary, and for the November congressional and local election, presumably will increase the enrollment of all the wards. The Republican leaders are now discussing means of keeping surveillance on this registration.

ROYALIST PRETENDER DIES IN EXILE AT 93

CANNES, France, May 26.—Count Alfonso de Caserta, dean of the Royalist pretenders to the long-fallen thrones of Naples and Sicily, died tonight at the house of his 60 years exile. He was 93, the oldest member of the Riviera's royal colony.

The County lived two-thirds of his life in his Villa Marie Therese on the Antibes road, where he often has been visited by his cousin, former King Alfonso of Spain.

Since last March the Count had been critically ill of uremia. In April he rallied sufficiently for an operation to remove an abcess on one of his legs.

Count Alfonso's father, Ferdinand II, was King of Naples and Sicily and his family, the House of the two Sicilies, was a branch of the Bourbons descended from King Louis XIV of France.

Garibaldi's campaign which unified Italy and abolished the subordinate kingdoms in 1860 kept him from reigning.

Alfonso's half-brother, Francis II, was deposed when King Victor Emmanuel of Sardinia was proclaimed King of Italy. On Francis' death in 1894, Alfonso became head of the no-longer ruling dynasty.

He never pressed the family protest against Victor Emmanuel's appropriation of the title "King of Italy," however, and was noted chiefly as the father of 10 children, all of whom survive.

Fall of Dynasty and Flight Into Exile.

Succeeding to the throne in 1859 at his father's death, Francis II found himself the monarch of a country which awaited only the firebrand that was Giuseppe Garibaldi to flame into revolt.

Garibaldi resolved to strike first at Sicily, then a part of the Neapolitan realm, and set sail on his heroic expedition May 5, 1860. Ten days later he had won at Calatafimi a splendid victory over the Bourbon troops. Rebellion soon blazed over Sicily.

The King, described by a historian as of "a feeble nature with no mind of his own," tried to beat back the blaze by offering a constitutional government to his subjects and by a fruitless appeal to Napoleon III of France, whose only answer was that "we stand defenseless" before the movement for unification of Italy. On Napoleon III's advice, Francis II attempted to arrange an alliance with Victor Emmanuel II of Sardinia, but was blocked by the wily Count Cavour, Victor Emmanuel's Minister, who was set on making Naples a part of his sovereign's realm.

Cavour himself tried to stir up revolt in Naples through recalcitrant nobles, in order to match his accomplishments with those of Garibaldi, but Francis II became suspicious and banished several of the ringleaders.

The Bourbon King's generals were unreliable, although his soldiers were loyal and felt themselves betrayed when the generals surrendered to Garibaldi, who did not delay in crossing from Sicily to the mainland to march on Naples.

On Sept. 6, 1860, the King and Queen fled from Naples for the fortress of Gaeta, farther up the coast. In a plebiscite on Nov. 3 the populace of Naples voted for unification with Italy. Two days later the soldiers of Victor Emmanuel started the siege of Gaeta.

The sovereigns took refuge in the damp, unhealthful vaults of the fortress. A contemporary account, which told of the frightful stench of the place, concluded that "their fear must have been great indeed to have induced them to live in such a wretched hole." Four generals died in the bad atmosphere and confinement.

Napoleon III, on Jan. 10, sent the French fleet to aid the monarchs in their resistance, but withdrew at the insistence of the British. On Feb. 13 the fortress and its garrison of 8000 were surrendered. The royal family sailed away to a permanent exile.

NEW WARRANTS BASED ON BEAUTY SHOP ADVERTISING

Herbert T. Frankham, Who Was Fined for Misleading Offers, Is Named With Others.

Warrants charging publication of misleading advertising were issued by Prosecuting Attorney Rosecan yesterday against Herbert T. Frankham, proprietor of the "Lady Fair Beauty Salon," 314 North Sixth street, and William Karlson and Frank C. Peterson, who, Rosecan said, are in charge of women solicitors for the shop.

The warrants are based on certificates bearing the shop's name, which purport to give the holder, free of charge, a "$5 luster oil permanent wave," but which have worked into the gold border design in fine print the words: "A charge will be made with this free permanent wave for shampooing set and trim."

Frankham was named in five warrants based on complaints of five women, and Karlson and Peterson were named in four of them. Rosecan said 150 complaints about the certificates have been received by him and the Better Business Bureau.

Frankham was convicted and fined $250 on a similar charge by a jury in Court of Criminal Correction last Feb. 19. His motion for a new trial is pending.

Their Plea Rejected by Building Contractors; Now Get $10.80 to $11.76 for Eight Hours.

Union hoisting engineers have demanded a wage increase to $13.50 for a six-hour day in building construction, effective next Friday.

Employers rejected the demand on the ground that conditions in the industry do not justify an increase over the present scale for engineers, ranging from $10.80 to $11.76 for an eight-hour day.

Other features of the demand are: No engineer may be discharged for any cause without consent of the union; men reporting for work without having been notified that the job would be shut down are to be paid a full day's wages; work in excess of six hours daily, and on Sundays or legal holidays, will be paid for at double time.

There are 138 men in the union, Local No. 513. The union has a separate agreement with contractors doing municipal street and sewer jobs and has made no request for a change in wage scales for this type of work.

FARMER PREVENTS WEDDING, KILLING THREE AND SELF

Thomas Hayes, 69, Ramsey, Ill., Shoots Housekeeper, Her Daughter and a Neighbor.

By the Associated Press.

RAMSEY, Ill., May 26.—A wedding party that ended in the murder of three and the suicide of the slayer today was described by Henry Spires, 24 years old, a farmer who was to have been the bridegroom. He testified at the inquest into the killing of his 17-year-old sweetheart, Rose Harris, her mother, Mrs. Myrtle Harris, 40, and William Roberts, 60, by Thomas Hayes, 69-year-old farmer for whom Mrs. Harris was housekeeper. Hayes later killed himself.

Spires had called at the Hayes home, intending to take Miss Harris, her mother and the mother's sister, Mrs. Lottie Durbin, to Vandalia for the marriage ceremony.

Officers said Hayes apparently suffered a "brain storm," because of the thought Mrs. Harris and her daughter would leave him after the marriage.

Story of the Murders.

Spires said he and Miss Harris were waiting in the car when they heard Mrs. Harris scream. "Look out, he's coming with a gun."

"Hayes came at us with a shotgun," the young man related. "Rose and I got out of the car and started in different directions. Hayes fired at me as I ran through a field, but missed. Then he started after Rose. She dodged around the car several times before he shot her. Rose's mother screamed to him to stop, and he started after her, yelling 'I'll kill you too.' She fell near Rose.

"Roberts, a neighbor, ran up and took Hayes' gun away from him. Hayes drew a revolver and killed Roberts, then got the shotgun again. He shot Hrs. Harris twice more."

Spires said Hayes then turned on the daughter again and fired as she lay wounded and begging for her life.

Hayes then walked to a coal shed and shot himself in the heart as officers arrived. They had been called by Mrs. Durbin. She and a farmhand on the Hayes farm also told of the murders.

Hayes' estranged wife, Mrs. Clara Hayes, testified that her husband visited her yesterday and appeared highly nervous. She said he mentioned the approaching marriage of Rose Harris, but seemed reconciled to it. He had been under a doctor's care recently, she said.

One Victim Had Sued Slayer.

Hayes operated a hardware store and confectionery in Ramsey. Mrs. Harris and her daughter worked there alternately, while Hayes farmed.

Mrs. Harris, it became known today, recently filed suit against Hayes for $2680, alleging he had not paid her for her 10 years' service as his housekeeper and had not repaid $400 he borrowed from her in 1924.

Hayes and his wife have been estranged for 10 years. Surviving him are a daughter, Mrs. William Ketchem of Ramsey, and two sons, Dr. Louis Hayes of Alton and Hughey Hayes of Ramsey.

Mrs. Harris is survived by a son Woodrow Harris, who made his home at the Hayes farm. Roberts a widower, is survived by four children.

INQUIRY IN KILLING OF WITNESS TO BE RESUMED TUESDAY

Case of Murder of Aid in Kidnaping of Dr. Kelley Presented to County Grand Jury.

Convening yesterday, the St. Louis County Grand Jury at once took up the investigation of the murder of John C. Johnson, State's witness and confessed aid of the kidnapers of Dr. Isaac D. Kelley. The inquiry will be continued Tuesday when the grand jury meets again.

The Johnson case was presented by the office of Prosecuting Attorney Anderson. No reference was made to it in the instructions given by Circuit Judge Mulloy, who impaneled the grand jury.

Johnson, a Negro, on whose farm in St. Charles County Dr. Kelley was held by the kidnapers for a day in 1931, was murdered May 12 at the home of Deputy Sheriff Newbold, near Lambert-St. Louis Field. Although at liberty on bond, he had been staying there in protective custody. It had not been made known publicly that he had confessed that Angelo Rosegrant, Felix McDonald and Bart Davit had held Dr. Kelley on the farm.

Mystery of License Plates.

In connection with the murder inquiry, the grand jury will inquire into the mysterious disappearance from the St. Louis State Automobile License Bureau of the license plates numbered 512-955, which were used by the slayers. The plates were taken from the office, apparently on April 4, without a record being made of their ownership. Another set of plates from the same box, numbered 512,977, disappeared at the same time.

Judge Mulloy cautioned the grand jurors if anyone sought to influence their conduct of their duties to report at once, so that the person might be "dealt with according to law." He added that report should be made also if anyone attempted to intimidate or coerce any witness before the grand jury.

Concluding, the Judge said: "The thoroughness with which your functions are executed will be the best evidence of your conception of public duty." He also called attention to rumors that "unfair and unlawful practices will be indulged" in the primary election Aug. 7, suggesting efforts by the grand jury to unearth such practices.

Joseph Carr Is Foreman.

Joseph Carr, 7293 Manchester boulevard, Maplewood, was selected by Judge Mulloy as foreman of the jury. Carr is a grocer and member of the Maplewood City Council.

A change was made in the personnel yesterday. In place of Floyd E. Norwine, 630 West Polo drive, Clayton, president of the Norwine Coffee Co., Ernst Gieselmann, retired farmer of Black Jack, was made a member. The grand jurors were chosen by Sheriff Deuser on order of the four Circuit Judges of the county. The personnel was announced Thursday.

DRIVER KILLED AT GRADE CROSSING BY FREIGHT TRAIN

Robert Gray, Negro, Is Victim of Collision at Frisco Tracks and Sublette Av. —Gates Not Operating.

Robert Gray, Negro truck driver of 2027 Biddle street, was killed when a west-bound Frisco freight train struck his ash truck at the intersection of the tracks and Sublette avenue at 3:30 p. m. yesterday.

Gray, accompanied by George Howard, Negro, of 2335A Biddle street, was driving south. The crossing, which is about a block south of Manchester avenue, is equipped with gates which are not operated after 3 p. m. because of light traffic on Sublette. There are no flashing or sounding signals at the crossing. A building close to the crossing obstructs the view of the tracks for anyone approaching from the north, witnesses said.

John McElroy, engineer, and Paul Pope, fireman of the train, were told to appear at the inquest Monday. Witnesses reported the train's whistle was blown before the accident.

Gray was thrown from the cab of the truck and his head crushed. The truck was wrecked and dragged 300 feet. Howard leaped and was unhurt.

WHOOPING COUGH EPIDEMIC ON WANE AFTER 35 DEATHS

Health Officer Expects City to Be Free of Disease by July 15.

A whooping cough epidemic which has caused 35 deaths this year is abating and the city should be virtually free of the disease by the middle of July, Dr. H. D. Chope, city epidemiologist, said yesterday.

Because those infected may communicate the disease from one to three weeks before it is diagnosed, whooping cough is difficult to control, Dr. Chope explained. Warm weather and the closing of schools, he added, will be the principal deterrents.

Health Department records show that 1276 cases have been reported this year. Of the deaths, 14 were of children less than a year old and age groups up to five years show a total of 33 of the 35 deaths.

Mrs. Jeanette Johnson telephoned Miss Lee's sister, Mrs. Mamie Fong, 1702 Chouteau avenue, who arrived at the Olive street apartment building a few moments before Miss Lee died at 11:30 a. m. Mrs. Fong told police that her sister, formerly employed as a presser at cleaning establishment, had been in ill health for three years and had threatened to end her life.

Miss Lee, who was 41 years old, told her sister last week that in case of her death a letter in a downtown safe deposit vault would give full instructions about burial.

OTTMAR MOLL, MUSIC TEACHER, DIES AT 56

Pianist - Composer Spent 39 Years in Instruction in St. Louis.

Funeral services for Ottmar A. Moll, composer and music teacher here for 39 years, who died yesterday, will be held Tuesday afternoon at 1 o'clock at his home, 2033 McCausland avenue. Burial will be in Lebanon, Ill., his birthplace.

Mr. Moll, 56 years old, died at his home of pneumonia following blood poisoning induced by an abscessed ear. He had continued to give instruction until a few weeks ago.

Numbered among his pupils were many of St. Louis' leading pianists. In 1910 he discontinued concert playing and devoted himself entirely to teaching and composing. He wrote the choral music for "Achilles in Scyros," a poem by Robert Bridges, and many songs and piano pieces.

Mr. Moll's career began at the age of 11 when his teacher, Robert Goldbeck, took him to Chicago for a recital. In St. Louis he also studied under Sophie, Geraldini, George H. Hutchinson, Charles Kunkel, Alfred Ernst and Ernest R. Kroeger.

From 1904 to 1907 he studied in Europe, mainly in Berlin under Barette Stepanoff and Edgar Stillman Kelley. On his return he gave numerous recitals here until he turned entirely to teaching. From 1912 to 1923 he was director of the piano department at Lenox Hall, a school for girls which closed in 1929. His studio was in the Studio Building, 511 North Taylor avenue.

POLICE QUESTION FIVE IN MURDER OF BOOTLEGGER

VICTIM FOUND SHOT DEAD NEAR ROAD

The murder of Mike Palazzolo, 25-year-old bootlegger shot to death Friday night in St Louis County, remained unexplained last night as deputies at Clayton questioned five persons arrested for interrogation in the case. All denied knowledge of the identity of the slayer or of motive for the crime.

Had Threatened Reprisal.

He intended to have reprisal on Mushenick, he told his family, because Mushenick had slapped Palazzolo's friend, Miss Delphine Scott, 18-year-old factory worker, in a quarrel in a beer tavern at Nineteenth street and Cass avenue several days ago.

Palazzolo's first stop, policemen learned, was at the home of Mushenick's friend, Miss Ann Dyn, a a factory worker, at 1912 O'Fallon street. There he demanded Mushenick's address, but left without obtaining it. Next he went to the home of Miss Scott at 4069 Easton avenue, but had a quarrel with her over his intention to "get Mushenick." After that he went downtown, chatted with a friend for a while, then went home, arriving in his father's automobile about 10 o'clock.

Meanwhile, Palazzolo's brother, Monte, told policemen, Vitale had called for Mike at the Palazzolo home at 8 o'clock and again at 9 o'clock, and had returned at 10, asking each time for Mike. He was parked in front of the Palazzolo home when Mike arrived there from downtown.

Mike chatted with Vitale at the curb for a few moments, his brother said, then went into the house, left the ignition keys of his father's car there and joined Vitale. Monte said he himself "had a premonition something was going to happen" and added that as Mike rode away with Vitale he called to him, "Never mind, I'll be back in a few minutes."

His body was found 45 minutes later by Albert Marker Jr. as he drove over Florissant avenue on his way to his home near Ferguson. Palazzolo lay on his back on the west side of the road, just off the macadam, his head to the north, his straw hat a few inches away.

Deputies reported he had no money in his pockets. In a breast pocket they found a letter from an Internal Revenue agent which was an official notice that a warrant in distraint would be executed upon him unless he paid delinquent Federal taxes totaling $520.

Two residents of the neighborhood, John Capra and Arthur Theis, truck gardeners, reported to Night Policeman C. O. Jeske of Ferguson that they heard two shots about 10:40 o'clock. Theis, who lives on Florissant avenue a few hundred feet from where the body was found, said that immediately after the shots an automobile without lights sped south from the scene.

Mushenick, who has served reformatory and penitentiary terms, respectively, for theft of auto tires and robbery, was arrested yesterday morning at 3933 (rear) North Twenty-third street, after members of the Palazzolo family had said he was reported to have made threats against Mike as a result of the incident in the Cass avenue tavern.

Vitale was arrested at his home by detectives, who also took along his brother-in-law, Harry Regina. The two young women were taken in for questioning. At noon all were taken from police headquarters to St. Louis County for further questioning.

Palazzolo was arrested three times in the county last year on bootlegging charges, and once in St. Louis. In 1930 he was sentenced to serve four months in jail and pay a fine of $400 by United States District Judge Davis on charges of possession and sale of liquor. In a raid on his home in October, 1932, Federal agents seized a large still and destroyed 10,000 gallons of mash.

He was last arrested in St. Louis on Oct. 13, 1933, by Federal agents, who also took his brother, Monte, and Frank Rizzo and Gino Lumetta to headquarters to be photographed. The agents reported they had found the men at a St. Louis County still after arresting a Negro truck driver in St. Louis with a load of their alcohol earlier in the day.

HOOVER DEDICATES MORRIS DAM NEAR PASADENA

Structure, Built in 25 Months, Will Hold 12,800,000 Gallons of Water.

By the Associated Press.

PASADENA, Cal., May 26.—The $7,500,000 Morris Dam was dedicated by Herbert Hoover today as "a structure which will be standing 1000 years hence."

Built in the last 25 months to back up 39,300 acre feet or 12,800,000 gallons of water, the dam is part of the link in the chain of lakes and aqueducts that will join Southern Californio with the Colorado River.

"As an engineer," the former President said, "I take especial pride in the exhaustive planning and investigation, the scrupulous construction obtained by its engineer leader, Mr. Samuel B. Morris. Today, after cities and the Roman empire itself have disappeared, you may find their aqueducts still serving the new peoples and new cities which have risen in their place. So will it be with this structure."

RAIN BRINGS FLOODS IN CHILE

Water in Capital Suburbs; Six Deaths—8-Day Fall in Some Parts.

By the Associated Press.

SANTIAGO, Chile, Hay 26.—Inundating rains in Chile for two days, with no sign of a letup, have brought rivers to the point of flooding suburbs of the capital. Sandbag levees placed along the Mapocho River and the San Carlos Canal were under water tonight.

There is suffering in the provinces. The problem of sanitation is reported serious at Andacollo. The bodies of five gold seekers were found near there. Many houses in Union, Coquimbo, crumbled under flood waters. A girl was drowned at Jarilla. Rail connections have been cut off. In some sections it has been raining for eight days.

DR. AVERY A. SHAW HEADS NORTHERN BAPTIST GROUP

ROCHESTER, N. Y., May 26.—Dr. Avery A. Shaw, president of Denison University, Granville, O., was elected president of the Northern Baptist Convention today, succeeding the Rev. William S. Abernethy of Washington, D. C.

The convention approved the recommendation of a commission of 15 to unify the religious and missionary educational work of the denomination under a council of Christian education. The merger is to be effected at the opening of the convention year of 1937-38.

Overriding the objections of a minority the convention recommended to its members the following pledge: "Reserving the right of national self defense by such means as may seem to me wise, effective, and Christian, I from now on definitely repudiate all aggressive war. I will cross no national boundary line to kill and to destroy, nor will I support my Government in sending its Army and Navy to do so."

The 1935 convention will be held at Colorado Springs.

CONSTABLE ELUDES CAPTURE AFTER KILLING SHERIFF

Thackerville (Ok.) Officer Thought Victim Had Stolen Credit for Important Arrest.

THACKERVILLE, Ok., May 26.—Posses searched unsuccessfully today for Constable John Smith, sought for shooting to death Sheriff Sam H. Randolph of Love County, here yesterday.

Ill feeling between Smith and Randolph extending over several years as the result of political differences came to its fatal climax after the Constable made a remark about the Sheriff's work. Witnesses said Randolph considered the remark insulting and slapped Smith. The Constable then shot the Sheriff and fled, Under-Sheriff Lovell Green said.

Smith and Randolph participated in the recent arrest of Leo Hudgins for the murder of Lieutenant-Commander S. J. Trowbridge of San Diego. The Randolph family said Smith had been nursing the belief that the Sheriff stole the credit from him for the arrest.

Both officers were married. Randolph had eight children, and Smith has two.

THREE ROBBERS SLAIN AT BANK IDENTIFIED AS STORE SLAYERS

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 26.—Three would-be robbers who were slain Friday in an attempt to rob the South Holland (Ill.) Trust & Savings Bank were identified today as the men who killed Anton Bekaitis in a store holdup in 1932.

Mrs. Regina Salack, owner of the store, made the identification of their bodies after Isadore Pincus died. His companions, John Cozzi and Ben Toccio, died Friday of shotgun wounds inflicted by a bank guard whose son had been killed in a previous robbery of the bank.

WOMAN SELLS FERRY TO BUY BEAUTY SHOP

Miss Louise Zeller Gives Up Davis St. Franchise—New Boat to Continue.

Finger waves are more attractive than Mississippi waves to Miss Louise Zeller of 214 Davis street, who is disposing of the good ship Mary Ellen, which for five years has been cleaving the water between the foot of Davis street and East Carondelet, and venturing into the seas of business as proprietor of a beauty shop.

The Davis street ferry, which has been operating in some form for 75 years, is to be continued, Miss Zeller says, but under new management and with a new steel hull boat capable of carrying 20 automobiles, twice as many as the Mary Ellen can manage.

The Mary Ellen was put into service here as a ferry boat in 1928 by Captain Charles A. A. Zeller, veteran river man, who on his death in 1931 left the boat and franchise to his widow, Mrs. Elizabeth Zeller. Miss Louise Zeller continued to handle the ship's business and financial affairs and her brothers, Harry and Arthur Zeller, have been operating the boat.

Business has been good, Miss Zeller says, and it has not been unusual for the ferry to take in as much as $200 on a Sunday. But the bigger craft is needed for the trucks and autos that now patronize the ferry, and rather than take the responsibility of getting a new boat she is going to open a beauty shop. The boat and franchise are being sold for about $5000.

REPAVING ON MANCHESTER

Asphalt to Replace Bricks on Six Blocks in Maplewood.

A six-block section of Manchester boulevard, is being repaved by the State Highway Department as part of the truck route of U. S. Highway No. 50. The work will be finished in about two weeks. Traffic is not being detoured.

The old brick paving is being removed from roadways about 16 feet wide on either side of the car tracks, and asphalt, six inches thick, laid in its place. The improvement extends from the St. Louis limits to Sutton avenue, connecting with the concrete roadway at Sutton. The Webb-Boone Paving Co. has a $19,000 contract for the work.

CONFEREES READY TO REPORT MARKET CONTROL MEASURE

It Will Be Laid Before Senate Tuesday and, If Approved, Will Go to the House.

PRESIDENT ACCEPTS 'HAPPY COMPROMISE'

House Members Agree to Special Board and Senators Accept 45 Pct. Margin Clause.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—The long controversial task of writing a law for the regulation of the nation's security markets tonight entered its last phase, with completion and final enactment within a week assured.

Conferees of House and Senate reached a complete agreement on all the measure's many and intricate details. On Tuesday their report will be laid before the Senate. As soon as it approves, the report will go to the House. Then President Roosevelt will sign the bill.

The agreement reached today put the measure in its final form. The conference report must be either accepted or rejected by Senate and House, with no amendments permitted.

Special Board Provided.

The measure provides for regulation by a specially created commission of five members. It calls for the registration of exchanges and listed securities with the administrative board, and empowers the latter to require extensive and frequent reports on the financial condition of listed corporations.

The bill gives wide discretion in the imposition of minimum margins to the Federal Reserve Board, but for its guidance sets up a standard under which the purchaser of securities would be required to post at least 45 per cent of its current market value.

In addition, the measure outlaws numerous "manipulative and defective" devices, specifically including pools, wash sales and the giving of options. Short selling and stop-loss orders are made subject to such rules as the commission may deem appropriate.

The commission, too, is directed to investigate the feasibility and advisability of completely separating the functions and activities of broker, dealer and specialist.

Comment by Counsel Pecora.

Ferdinand Pecora, counsel to the committee, who was in charge of the long investigation of Wall street and banking practices, called the bill a "happy compromise" which would prevent repetition of many of the practices denounced as evils which his long inquiry disclosed.

"It will purge the securities markets of the evil practices and abuses that have been shown to exist in the past," he said.

"It will make available to investors more complete and reliable data with regard to the value of securities than have heretofore been available to them. It will thereby give greater confidence to investors.

A Brake for the Board.

"The power given to the Federal Reserve Board over margins puts in the hands of the board a brake which will enable it to check undue or excessive speculation and give it a firmer control over the use of bank credits and stock market transactions. It spells the end of the manipulator, juggler and pool operator.

"The restrictions and requirements imposed by the act upon brokers, dealers and corporations having listed stocks are in my opinion entirely reasonable and readily workable. They should experience no difficulty in adjusting themselves to these restrictions and requirements."

The ultimate phase of conference consideration was devoted to a discussion of the measure's two big controversies: The House bill called for administration by the Federal Trade Commission, the Senate for the special commission; the House bill's margin restrictions were considered stricter than those of the Senate.

Both Houses Yield.

The result was that the Senate conferees accepted the latter and the House managers approved the special commission. In this way they avoided an open Senate discussion of a delicate situation that had arisen from the exclusion of Senator Glass (Dem.), Virginia, from the Conference Committee.

Glass was author of the special commission amendment. He charged that failure to name him a conferee was a personal affront and part of a plot to throw his amendment out of the bill. His friends said today that the compromise was entirely acceptable to him.

The margin requirements which were approved become effective on Oct. 1 next, so far as new transactions are concerned. Margin accounts already in existence on that date will not have to be changed to comply with the law until July 1, 1937, unless some change is made in their status prior to that date.

45 Per Cent Figure Advisory.

The 45 per cent minimum margin figure is purely advisory and the Reserve Board has complete power to fix whatever figures it deems advisable and to change them at will. It can, moreover, set differing margin standards for different issues of stock to meet the argument that when the more stable, steady securities are purchased, the margin posted need not be so high. It can issue varying regulations for the maintenance of margin accounts after the original margin has been posted.

In most other respects, the bill becomes effective July 1, unless the commission shall not have been appointed by that time. Roosevelt is understood already to have given the selection of its personnel some thought, and it is understood the appointments will be made well before that date.

In some quarters, there was an inclination to believe James M. Landis was almost a certain appointee. He is at present a member of the Trade Commission. He was the author of the Securities Act of 1933, and played a prominent part in drafting the present bill.

Others mentioned were Pecora and Thomas Corcoran, counsel for the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, who also was a committee adviser throughout the bill's various legislative stages.

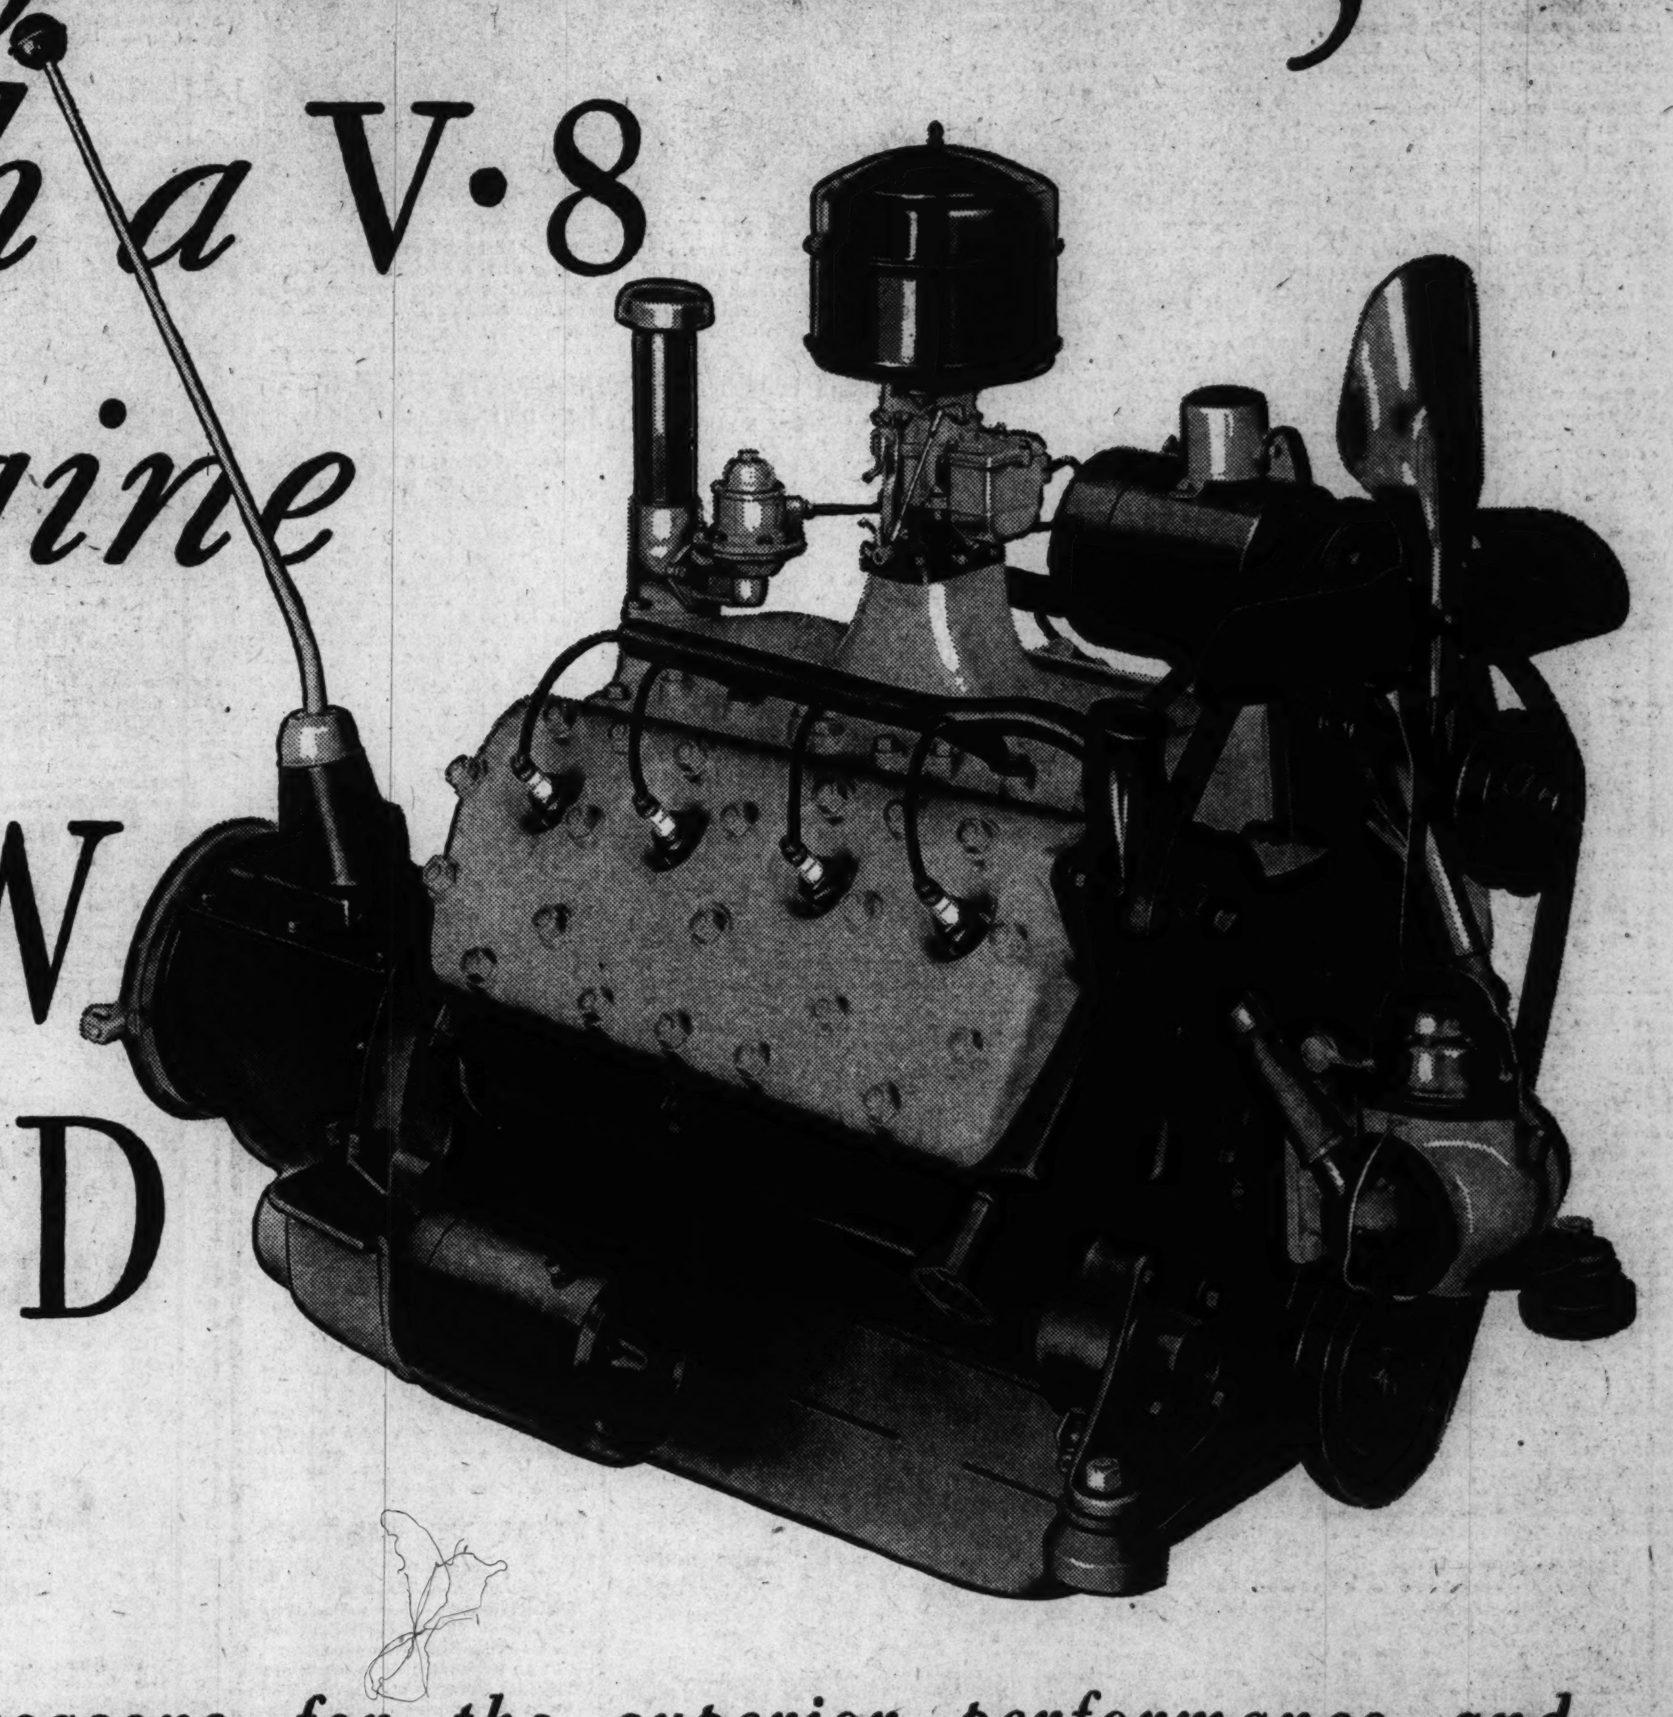
NEW FORD V·8



Definite reasons for the superior performance and efficiency of the V-type engine

THERE'S no guessing about the superiority of V-type engines. They hold every major record on land, on water and in the air. For years they have been used for the finest motor cars in this country.

We designed a V-type engine for the Ford because it has certain basic, fundamental advantages that cannot be duplicated in any other type. It costs more to build a V-type engine—a great deal more. But we absorb that cost for the sake of getting better performance on the road. Here are just a few of the advantages of Ford V-8 design:

MORE EFFICIENT DESIGN—The Ford V-8 engine is more efficient because the eight cylinders are divided into two short banks of four each and placed opposite each other in a compact V-shape design—instead of being strung out in a long straight line.

ONE-PIECE CASTING of cylinder blocks, crankcase and exhaust passages. An exclusive Ford V-8 engine feature that means better performance and economy. Keeps operating parts in permanent alignment by providing exceptional rigidity for entire engine. Also increases smoothness, gives longer life to bearings and all moving parts.

BETTER FUEL DISTRIBUTION—Shorter and more direct fuel passages to cylinders increase engine efficiency.

SIMPLER COOLING SYSTEM—Ford V-8 design brings all cylinders close together and results in simpler cooling system within the engine. The Ford V-8 has two water pumps.

MORE EFFICIENT LUBRICATION—Oil lines are shorter in the Ford because of V-8 design. Less distance for oil to travel. More efficient lubrication.

GREATER SMOOTHNESS because of inherently correct engine balance resulting from 90° V-8 design with 90° spacing of crank-throws on fully counterbalanced crankshaft. Precision weighing of pistons and connecting-rods assures accurate running balance.

INCREASED BODY ROOM—Ford V-8 engine takes up less space in hood because of shorter, more compact design. That permits more of car's length to be used for the passengers. It is one reason why the Ford V-8 has more interior room than any other low-price car.

PROVED PERFORMANCE—V-type engines hold every major record on land, on water and in the air. (Seaplane.) In every test, they show their superior efficiency and performance.

Those are the advantages of the V-type design. The foremost engineers in the country acknowledge the superiority of this type of engine and use it in the finest automobiles, speed boats and airplanes. Only the Ford gives you a V-8 cylinder engine for less than $2500.

The Ford V-8 is the most remarkable engine ever built because it combines V-8 performance with economy. It delivers more horsepower per gallon of fuel than any Ford engine ever built. Dynamometer tests prove it in the laboratory. Ford owners by the thousands have proved it on the road. They know, as you will know, that no car costs less to own and run than the New Ford V-8.

ST. LOUIS PROGRAM FOR OBSERVANCE OF MEMORIAL DAY

Services for World War Dead Will Be Held Today in Cemeteries by Veterans' Groups.

Observance of Memorial Day will begin today with services, honoring all St. Louis' World War dead, by the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars in all city and county cemeteries.

Wednesday the customary services by the G. A. R. and Spanish War Veterans, joined in parade by the Sixth Infantry, will be held at Jefferson Barracks. County Legion posts will gather for a parade and speaking exercises in Ferguson.

Exercises in the cemeteries today will be brief. American Legion posts will go to 41 cemeteries, placing the national colors and the Legion's emblem beside each soldier's grave. Women's auxiliaries will place wreaths at the entrances to the cemeteries. In many instances services will be held beside the grave of the man for whom the post was named.

Service for John H. Quick.

In Memorial Park Cemetery, Melrose and Lucas and Hunt roads, members of Marine Corps Post No. 206 will gather at the grave of Sergeant-Major John H. Quick, winner of the Congressional Medal of Honor and famous Marine Corps hero, for their sixteenth annual Belleau Woods Memorial Service. Quick, 30 years in the Marine Corps, was a hero in the Battle of Belleau Woods.

Veterans of Foreign Wars will visit seven cemeteries. The George H. Durfee Post will go to Waterloo, Ill., for services at the Durfee grave.

On Wednesday a special service will be held at the grave of Gen. William Tecumseh Sherman in Calvary Cemetery, at which Ransom Post of the G. A. R., of which Gen. Sherman was first commander, will turn over care of his grave to the Richard Anderson Post of the American Legion. Only four members of the Ransom Post are still living, and only one, Eugene E. Latta, will be at the services.

At the Jefferson Barracks services on Wednesday the thinning ranks of Civil War veterans will also be noticeable. Only 39 participants in the war, 17 members of the United Confederate Veterans and 22 members of five G. A. R. posts, remain in the St. Louis area. Not all will be able to attend.

Downtown Parade Planned.

The Spanish War veterans will join in the service, first holding a downtown parade. They will go to the barracks by bus. Led by Col. Walter J. Kreuger, commandant at Jefferson Barracks, the veterans and the Sixth Infantry will parade on the grounds to the National Cemetery.

Speakers include Col. Kreuger; Fred W. Cheever Jr., vice department commander of the United Spanish War Veterans; William T. Haller, president of the County Council, Veterans of Foreign Wars; Col. E. J. McMahon of the American Legion, and J. M. Claypool, commander of the United Confederate Veterans.

The parade of the county legion posts on Wednesday will begin at Florissant road and January avenue, Ferguson, and go to the Ferguson baseball park. J. Grant Frye, State commander of the legion, will be the speaker.

A group of young people will hold a Memorial day parade from Leonard and Easton avenues to Fairgrounds Park as a protest against war and class hatred in observance of the fourth annual National Youth day.

There will be no regular delivery of mail on Memorial day. Collection service in the residential areas will be between 6:30 and 9 p. m.

MAN FOUND BURNED AT STAKE

Police Wonder if Death Was Accident, Suicide or Murder.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, May 26.—The burning to death of an unidentified man in a remote part of the city remained a mystery today as police continued their investigation.

Tied to a stake near the pyre was a silver crucifix and around the neck of the charred body was a trace of a cord from which a Catholic scapular medal had been suspended. Added to these bits of evidence, a police chemist obtained ashes from the scene in an effort to establish if the fire was accidental, or whether it was started by the man with suicidal intent or by a murderer. Flames from the strange pyre early today attracted patrolmen to the spot. The body was burned beyond recognition.

$40,000,000 ILLEGAL PROFIT BY OFFICERS CHARGED IN SUIT

Action at Utica, N. Y., for Receivership for Associated Gas Is Second Similar Action.

By the Associated Press.

UTICA, N. Y., May 26.—A second suit was filed in Federal Court here today against Howard G. Hopson and John I. Mange, officers of the Associated Gas & Electric Co., charging "illegal profits of at least $40,000,000." A receivership for the company is sought in the suit.

The action is the second in recent weeks against the officers. It alleges Hopson and Mange operate the Massachusetts Voluntary Trust Co. through a $10,000 investment, "which later was returned." Through this concern, it charges they "control and operate the huge corporation known as the Associated Gas & Electric system." The petition alleges Hopson and Mange, through control of Massachusetts Trust, "control the election of officers of the 264 concerns forming the Associated system."

"Dissipation of the assets and manipulations therein," the petition states, "have resulted in the loss to security holders of over $300,000,000. Total liability of the defendant company and subsidiaries, exclusive of the parent firm, on common stocks amounts to a grand total of over $829,000,000."

The latest suit was filed by Roscoe Irwin of Albany and Maurice L. Serling of New York, attorneys representing three stockholders, Edgar L. and Harriet A. Lewis and Joseph Capese.

The suit filed a few weeks ago asked for an order restraining the officers and directors of Associated Gas and its subsidiaries from "interfering or transferring assets of the defendant company," appointment of receivers, an accounting and permission to examine the books.

NO COMPLAINT AGAINST SOUTH SIDE DAIRY CO.

In an account of a meeting of the Ways and Means Committee of the Board of Alderman on the 1934-35 city budget, published in the Post-Dispatch on May 12, the South Side Ice Cream Co., 7001 Michigan avenue, was erroneously referred to by Health Commissioner Bredeck as the South Side Dairy Co.

The news account had reference to an investigation of conditions at the South Side Ice Cream Co. plant as the result of which the company was ordered by the City Health Department to correct certain unsanitary conditions and complied with these instructions.

Bredeck declared that his reference to the South Side Dairy Co. was in error, as the City Health Department has never questioned sanitary conditions at the South Side Dairy Co., which has its offices and dairy at 2921 Salena street. Bredeck said that the South Side Dairy Co. had been inspected by his department and was found to be in strict conformity with all Health Department dairy regulations.

RELIEF GARDENS YIELD PRODUCE TO TILLERS

Radishes, Lettuce, Turnips and Beets Have Been Harvested From 800 Plots.

The men and women who weeded, spaded, hoed, planted, sprinkled, drove in vine sticks and tied leaves during the past six or eight weeks in the seven St. Louis gardens operated by the Missouri Relief and Reconstruction Commission are beginning to get returns from their work in the form of fresh vegetables on the dinner table.

Radishes, lettuce, turnips and beets have already been harvested in the plots planted about April 1. Tomato vines have climbed to two feet, cabbages have grown fat, cauliflowers are bleached white inside their huge green leaf cups and are ready for picking, carrots, spinach, parsnips, peas, celery, lima beans, cucumbers and okra will soon be full grown.

The drouth has not hurt the gardens, as they are easily sprinkled with hoses. The gardeners may not raise corn, melons, pole beans or potatoes, as they take up too much room for the 24 by 50-foot plots. Neither may they devote more than half the plot to one vegetable, as the supervisors desire them to have a balanced diet.

On Relief Rolls.

Most of the gardeners are unemployed and on relief roles, and the work not only provides them with fresh vegetables during the summer, but gives them something to occupy their time.

At the gardens at Kingshighway and San Francisco avenue, and at Tower Grove and Magnolia avenues, about half those working plots are not on relief roles, but are carrying on gardens kept since three years ago under the community garden plan sponsored by Julius Baer. The state took them over this year.

Typical of the latter is Mrs. Otto Forster, 5663A Labadie avenue, wife of the chef at the Statler Hotel. She won the $25 first prize at the Kingshighway and San Francisco garden three years ago. She spends an average of six hours a week at the work and raises more than she and her husband can eat. The rest is given to a poor family in her neighborhood.

50 Heads of Cabbage.

One hundred tomato plants in her plot will produce 25 or 30 bushels before the summer is over, and there are about 50 heads of cabbage and 400 beets.

In the gardens a block south, at Natural Bridge, which were not opened until late in April, the tender green shoots are just beginning to show. There Joe Egan, 3309 Arlington avenue, a bronzed former concrete worker, said he provides most of the vegetables for his nephew's family. "And it's better than sitting around," he added.

August du Rus, 4915 Farlin avenue, a former paper hanger, thought he and his wife would save only about 75 cents a week by eating vegetables from the garden, but Mrs. Rose Quoss, 3856 St. Ferdinand avenue, wife of an unemployed meatcutter, was more optimistic and thought the saving for her family would be $3 a week. She walks two miles to and from the garden about four times a week to attend to it.

There are 845 plots in the seven gardens, of which 800 are occupied. The State provides the tools and seeds used. Other gardens beside the three mentioned are at Compton and Eads avenues, Kingshighway and Arsenal streets, Tower Grove and Shenandoah avenues, and one for Negroes at Spring and Chouteau avenues.

In addition, a 100-acre garden at 4258 Goodfellow avenue is worked by homeless men to provide food for the cafeteria maintained for them at Sixteenth and Pine streets. The drouth has damaged the crop there, as the tract is too large to be sprinkled.

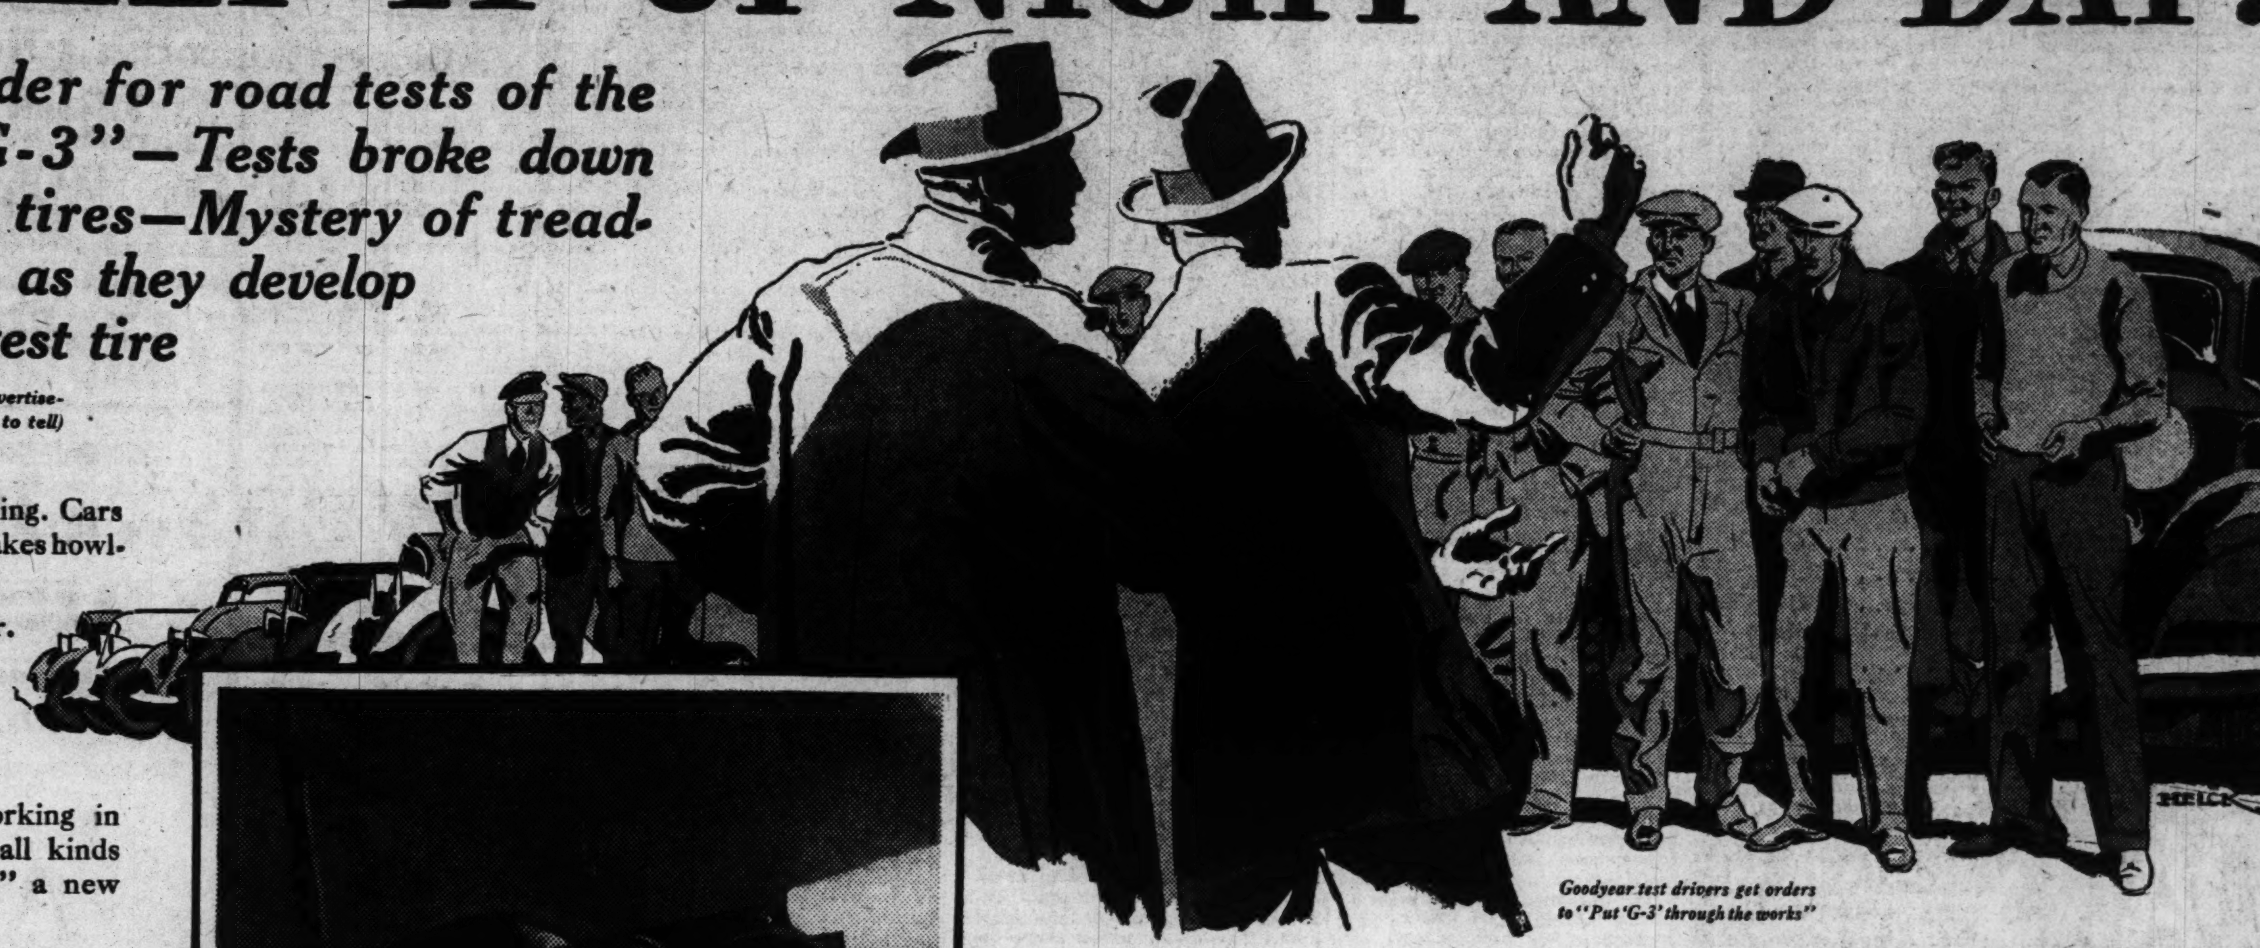
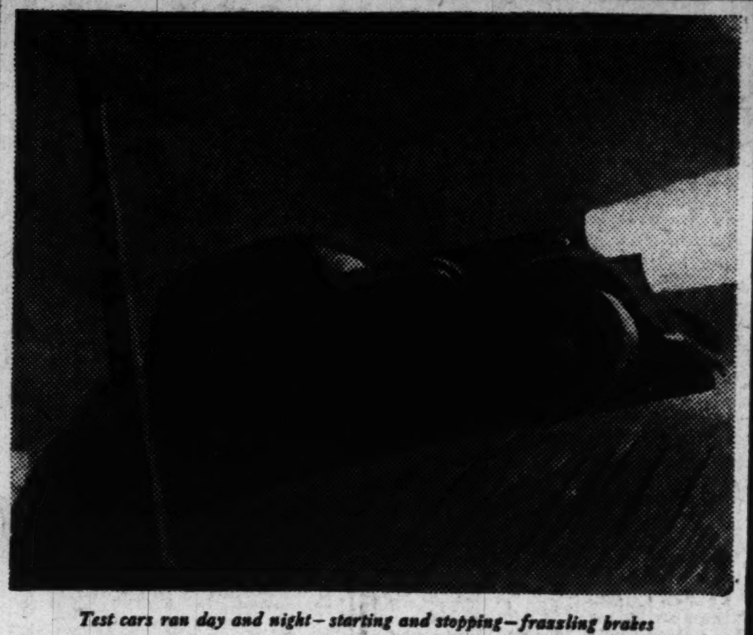
"Speed up to 50—Jam on the Brakes—Speed up to 50—Jam on the Brakes—and KEEP IT UP NIGHT AND DAY!"

That was the order for road tests of the amazing new "G-3"—Tests broke down cars but not the tires—Mystery of tread-wear drives men as they develop Goodyear's greatest tire

(Yes, this is longer than ordinary tire advertisements—but it has an extraordinary story to tell)



Goodyear test drivers get orders to "Put 'G-3' through the works"



Test cars ran day and night—starting and stopping—frazzling brakes

YOU never saw such mad driving. Cars rushing through the night, brakes howling and motors roaring.

Go! Speed up to 50 miles an hour. Then—WHAM! Brakes! A fast full stop. Over and over again, hundreds and hundreds of times.

The Goodyear test drivers, working in shifts, day and night, through all kinds of weather, were "trying out" a new type of tire.

The cars were good new automobiles—at the start. You know what excellent brakes they have. But such abuse frazzled brake linings. Every 8 hours, the bands had to be adjusted. Every 72 hours new brake lining was required.

"What's the idea?"—you probably ask.

The Tread-Wear Mystery

It all began with a mystery. Reports were appearing from the Goodyear "performance detectives" telling us that treads were wearing out too fast.

All treads, all makes of tires, even our own.

These "performance detectives"—Goodyear salesmen moving over the entire United States—are quick to pick up information like that. It keeps the factory men right on their toes.

When this matter of tread-wear was first reported we tell you candidly we got excited. Suspected something had gone wrong in manufacture.

So we checked the whole plant—everything from raw materials to shipping. We upset routines and applied a new and more costly control method, and re-checked and re-analyzed every step.

We couldn't answer for the other fellow's tires but we could and did make sure that nothing had gone wrong at Goodyear.

But still the reports came in. "Treads wearing too fast. Not just on Goodyear tires—on all makes."

For a time, it seemed blank mystery. There we were, absolutely certain the fine quality of Goodyear tires remained supreme; but the alarms from our "performance detectives" continued.

Then, one day, something definite took shape. Reports came from everywhere—east, west, south and north. But for some strange reason, certain regions seemed to stand out more than others.

For instance, Carolina, a wonderful spot for driving, because of its fine roads and scenic beauty—Arizona, where wide open spaces and smooth roads invite you to "step on it" hour after hour—or California, world-famous for its fine highways.

Chemists, trouble-shooters, development engineers rushed there. They went out along the highways, sampled and analyzed soil and grit. They studied humidity, weather records.

Three Tread Terrors

They returned with exhibits of various "tread-killers." Granite grit from Carolina mountains. Cruel, glassy debris from volcanic deposits in deserts, and harsh, jewel-hard sands from dry lakes. They made sandpaper from these, fixed it to high speed "grindstones" and carefully noted how different compounds and tread designs withstood the swift scouring and grinding.

First, they noted that the regular production Goodyear tires were superior in resistance to other makes.

But, by this time, they had new orders: "Give us a tread tougher than any." The work went on.

Word came out of the laboratory and ran like wildfire through the factory that one of the many new tread designs was winning over all others, over all previous Goodyear treads.

"Which one is it?"

You get the slow, even wear of closer-nested non-skid blocks and ribs.

You get more rubber in the tread—an average of two pounds more per tire.

—all of which adds up to 43% MORE NON-SKID MILEAGE at no extra cost to you!

The Test Cars Start

Shortly, "G-3" All-Weather tires were made for the fleet of Goodyear test cars. The drivers hitched up belts. Something was going to happen. Then came the command for the day-and-night battle to put "G-3" through "the works."

Over and over the test roads sped the "G-3" tires, rasped to sudden full-stops every two miles in a way you might have to stop once in a life-time. The strain practically wrecked the cars, but "G-3" came out of it a champion!

Of course, there was temptation to tell the world immediately. We even thought up alluring names for the new tire. But the chief executives decided on another plan.

They ordered "G-3" made up in a few sizes and sent out to Goodyear Dealers with no ballyhoo or announcement. That was months ago, and, sure enough—the "performance detectives" soon reported, "You've licked it!"

Real Reason for the Affair

Now we know what started the "mystery." Simply this: the new, modern automobiles with their flashy power and improved brakes, sprint speeds and fast-ride comfort, have put an unparalleled job up to tires.

This fact became most apparent where roads were toughest or cars rolled up mileage fastest. Alert Goodyear men spotted it, and Goodyear answered the problem.

There you have the plain "G-3" story. Go on, now, and examine the facts that make this simply-named engineering triumph offer you tremendous advantages in safety and economy.

The first and most important fact is: the new "G-3" keeps the famous All-Weather tread design—with grip where the tire contacts the road. With modern speeds on smooth roads, tires need grip more than ever—or powerful brakes are useless.

BUT—those non-skid blocks are nested closer and there are 16% more of them.

ALSO—the tread is broader by 5½%!
AND—the riding-ribs are 11½% wider!

Supertwist Makes It Possible

But the basic success of "G-3" is in the ability of the famous Goodyear Supertwist carcass to stand up under the additional sidewall strain imposed by wider tread with more rubber in it. No other tire-maker has this advantage. In this phenomenal tire, extra-durable, extra-elastic Supertwist easily bears the new wide-tread load.

The story of "G-3" has a most happy ending—COSTS NOTHING EXTRA TO BUY.

LOOK RIGHT HERE

Watch the rest of the industry try to copy this amazing tire. Watch them try to duplicate Goodyear's claims. But, remember, you have to have "non-skid" before you can have "non-skid mileage." And to have "non-skid," you have to have GRIP where you see it here—GRIP in the center of the tread—the place where it counts, because it's the spot where the tire contacts the road. Look at the grip on this Goodyear Tire and ask yourself why buy any tire that lacks this safety?

U. S. FARM LOANS $72,000,000 IN THIS AREA IN YEAR

30,000 Agriculturists in Missouri, Illinois and Arkansas Have Received Financial Aid.

One year old today, the Farm Credit Administration of St. Louis has disburesd $72,000,000 in loans to more than 30,000 farmers of Missouri, Illinois and Arkansas.

Since all Federal farm credit agencies were consolidated into the Farm Credit Administration by President Roosevelt's executive order of May 27, 1933, the administration has made loans totaling $1,273,000,000 to farmers throughout the country. In addition, creditors of farmers refinanced by the Government agencies voluntarily have reduced their obligations by about $46,000,000.

F. W. Niemeyer, general agent of the Farm Credit Administration in St. Louis, said its loans, at reduced interest rates and more liberal terms of repayment, had saved thousands of farmers from foreclosure.

Complete Credit System.

The Farm Credit Administration, he said, has not only provided new financing to help overcome the worst financial depression in history, but has been charged with the task of building a complete and coherent system of credit agencies for agriculture.

Toward that end there have been established four units within the Farm Credit Administration: The Federal Land Bank, which makes long-term mortgage loans on farm lands; the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank, which discounts farm paper for banks, agricultural credit corporations and local production credit associations; the Production Credit Corporation, which helps organize, finance and supervise local production credit associations, and the Bank for Co-operatives, which makes loans to farmers' co-operative buying and marketing associations.

Bonds to Creditors.

Of the $72,000,000 lent to farmers in the three states served by the St. Louis office of the Farm Credit Administration, $63,000,000 was lent to 22,000 farmers by the Federal Land Bank. Since March 26 the bank has been using bonds of the Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation in closing its loans. The first issue, guaranteed by the Federal Government both as to principal and interest, bore interest at 3¼ per cent and announcement has been made of a new issue on which the interest rate will be a flat 3 per cent. These bonds may be given by farmers to their creditors instead of cash, and have found ready acceptance.

The Intermediate Credit Bank, during the past year, discounted $8,300,000 of farmers' obligations, $3,500,000 of that amount for local production credit associations organized by the Production Credit Association. The discount rate has been lowered to enable the associations to make their loans at 5 per cent.

The Bank for Co-Operatives disbursed $700,000 in loans during the year. It makes short-term working capital loans on which the interest rate is but 3 per cent and also long term loans to finance the purchase or construction of buildings or other facilities required by cooperative associations.

Prices of Farm Lands.

W. I. Myers, Governor of the Farm Credit Administration, said in Washington yesterday its operations definitely had stemmed the tide of foreclosures which threatened agriculture a year ago. Prices of farm lands have risen, he said, and there have been fewer forced and voluntary sales of farms.

A breakdown of the total amount lent by all institutions under the Farm Credit Administration during the year is approximately as follows: Federal land banks and Land Bank Commissioner, $791,000,000; Federal intermediate credit banks, $170,000,000 (not including rediscounts for regional agricultural credit corporations and production credit associations amounting to $203,000,000); regional agricultural credit corporations, $209,000,000; production credit associations, $27,000,000; emergency crop loans, $32,500,000; central and regional banks for co-operatives, $34,000,000; loans from the Agricultural Marketing Act fund before establishment of the banks for co-operatives, $8,000,000, and loans by the Land Bank Commissioner to joint stock land banks, $1,500,000.

VETERANS ARE GUESTS AT WHITE HOUSE PARTY

Mrs. Roosevelt Joins in Singing of Song "Smiles" by Crippled Soldiers.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt joined with veterans in singing a wartime favorite, "Smiles," at the annual White House veterans' garden party here today. The President also was there. Mrs. Roosevelt invited college boy entertainers for the occasion and had Representative Connery of Massachusetts, who used to sing to the doughboys in the trenches, do his act ever again.

President Roosevelt shook hands with the crippled veterans from all Washington's hospitals and the Red Cross groups which minister to them.

Mrs. Roosevelt was in a gay mood, and when the handshaking was over and the President sat down to chat with some of the Civil War veterans present, she led the crowd down to the fountain where the Marine Band played, and acted as an informal mistress of ceremonies.

Mrs. Roosevelt joined in the community singing, standing in the front row, beside the line of wheel chairs.

SIX DEAD IN FIREWORKS BLAST

28 Injured, Factory and Six Homes Wrecked in Spain.

By the Associated Press.

ALICANTE, Spain, May 26.—Six persons were killed and 28 injured in an explosion in a fireworks factory here tonight. Some of the injured are in critical condition.

The factory was demolished and six nearby homes were wrecked and 12 others so badly damaged that authorities ordered them torn down. Searchers were combing the ruins for other bodies. The explosion was attributed by authorities to carelessness in handling half a ton of dynamite.

LOSS OF $10,261,000 BY FRISCO IN 1933

The annual report of the Frisco Railroad for 1933 shows a loss of $10,261,449 after deduction of fixed charges totaling $13,466,838, compared with a loss of $10,093,676 in 1932. Operating revenues amounted to $40,683,596, with operating expenses of $33,822,276, as against $42,672,136 and $34,651,811, respectively, for 1932.

James M. Kurn and John G. Lonsdale operated the railroad as trustees in bankruptcy during the last three months and as receivers during the first nine months. The Frisco was placed in receivership Nov. 1, 1932, by order of Federal Judge Faris.

Assets and liabilities are balanced at $468,390,553, as compared with $469,562,422 at the end of 1932. Current assets are listed at $12,664,447, against current liabilities of $39,274,474. On Dec. 31, 1932, current assets totaled $8,986,628 against current liabilities of $24,633,966. The increase in current liabilities during 1933 is accounted for largely by a change in unpaid matured interest from $3,246,615 to $16,111,616.

The report shows the average number of employes during 1933 was 13,793, a decrease of 110 from the average number employed in 1932. Loadings decreased by 8263 cars, or less than 2 per cent, as compared with 1932. Taxes paid totaled $3,318,440, equivalent to 8.2 per cent of gross revenue and 48.3 per cent of net revenue. This was a decrease of $488,965, or 12.8 per cent, compared with the payment in 1932.

(Average mileage operated in 1933 totaled 585.57 miles, a decrease of slightly more than four miles, with expenditures per mile of road amounting to $1198, compared with $1043 during 1932.

Long-term debt is listed at $286,307,766, common stock at $65,543,226 and preferred stock at $49,158,300. Notes payable remained the same at a total of $14,132,038, divided as follows: $5,190,000 to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, $5,136,863 to banks, $3,805,175 to the Railroad Credit Corporation.

PRESIDENT TURNS ON ILLUMINATION AT CHICAGO FAIR

Exposition "Imposing Demonstration of Courage and Confidence" — Mrs. Roosevelt Starts Fountain

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 26. — Blaring bands and marching troops swung down the Avenue of Flags today in the gala premier of the second year of A Century of Progress Exposition. The colorful procession proceeded to the Lagoon Theater, where there were addresses by city, State and fair officials.

Tonight President Roosevelt, through a talking picture, turned on the night illumination. Mrs. Roosevelt turned on the Great Fountain in the same manner.

A display of rainbow light flooded the Fair when the figure of the President was flashed upon the screens of three theaters on the grounds and thousands of persons saw him press a button.

Mrs. Roosevelt was cast on the same celluloid sheet. As she closed a switch, the throngs saw the world's largest fountain spout up.

At 9 p. m. paid admissions reached the 146,880 mark—more than 27,000 above the 1933 inaugural day attendance.

Daylight Military Parade.

Major-General R. D. Keehn, grand marshal, led the daylight parade down Michigan boulevard. The Black Horse Troop, regiments of infantry, calvary and artillery, and naval contingents tramped behind him as an escort to Gov. Henry Horner of Illinois, Mayor Edward Kelly of Chicago, President Rufus Dawes of the Fair and others.

Tanks and caissons rumbled along ahead of units of American Legion, G. A. R., and Spanish-American War veterans and representatives of Polish, Belgian, French, Italian and British fighting forces.

Cadets from St. John's Military Academy convoyed the queen of the big show and her glittering court. The Notre Dame University and Chicago High School orchestras were in the line of 10,000 participants.

An audience assembled in the crescent - shaped amphitheater. Speakers appeared on the stage of the Lagoon Theater.

"Chicago stands at the doorway of another epochal event in its civic history," Mayor Kelly said. "This year's fair is repeated by request and is a still more gigantic spectacle than last year's exposition.

"There is no question but conditions are better from an economic viewpoint. We should praise God that we have a leader of such worth at the head of our Government. President Roosevelt, through his wisdom and will-to-do, has piloted us a long way out of our difficulties. I pause to pay grateful respect to him."

Rufus Dawes called attention to the feat of Col. Roscoe Turner in establishing a new record for a flight between Pittsburgh and Chicago. He had greeted the pilot a few hours earlier on the completion of his 430-mile flight in one hour and 44 minutes. He linked the swift trip with the epochal journey of the Burlington Railroad's new steel train, which later arrived and was taken to the Fair.

What President Said.

President Roosevelt said in his sound-picture address:

"The millions of our people who visited the exposition of 1933 must have seen in it, as I did, an inspiring demonstration of courage and confidence. Those who will come to the exposition of 1934 will see how abundantly that courage and that confidence were justified. They will discover in this new exposition many evidences of the recovery that has been brought about and see many signs pointing the way along that upward path on which we, as a nation, have set our feet.

"The most critical days of a national emergency have for the most part passed. The unsound structures have been and are being torn down. A rebuilding from the bottom up is in progress.

"A plan and a definite objective existed for this exposition. It has to show not merely the progress of the century represented by the life of Chicago as a municipality, but the means by which this progress has been attained.

"A Definite Objective."

"Likewise, a definite objective is also being followed by those to whom have been intrusted the administration of national affairs. The individual parts in this planned program are by no means inflexible or infallible. As I often have said, we may in some respects change method while the objective remains the same. Time and experience will determine.

"The big objective is constantly before us. It is the restoration of our national well-being and the providing of a greater opportunity for humanity from the bottom up to prosper and find happiness.

"I am firmly convinced that this exposition will contribute to that end. It will serve a desirable means of bringing our people into closer contact. It will aid in the strengthening of national morale. It will create a demand for the latest products of science and industry, and, furthermore, it will add to our general enjoyment.

"Now, as I employ the forces of electricity by pressing this telegraph key on my desk and thereby illuminating the exposition, I wish for a Century of Progress the greatest measure of success and for its visitors many happy and well-spent hours."

Hopes to See the Fair.

Mrs. Roosevelt, in her sound picture address turning on the great fountain, said:

"I recall so vividly the strikingly beautiful lighting and color effects of the exposition of last year, and I have heard much of the changes which have been made to add to the attractiveness of this year's fair. One of these additions of which I have heard much is the great fountain. I hope that it may be possible for me to see it during the coming summer."

General Motors Exposition Will Be Held in Auditorium

Elaborate Displays Planned for Exhibition Set for Week Starting Saturday, June 2.

The new Municipal Auditorium has been selected as the scene of the General Motors product exposition which will be held in St. Louis June 2 to 9, inclusive, as one of 61 such shows to be staged in key cities that week. The local exposition will open at 2 o'clock next Saturday afternoon, and is planned to be the most complete of the kind ever held here, in number, variety and quality of the products displayed and in the character of the decorations. Admission will be free.

Benny Rader's orchestra will play for the formal opening as well as afternoons and evenings throughout the week.

The displays of automobiles will include representative lines of each member of the General Motors family, and are expected to be more complete than is possible at the usual type of automobile show. They will be arranged conveniently for leisurely inspection. Spectators will be able to step from group to group of cars, exclusively the product of General Motors, and to learn about "knee action" in detail.

There will be Cadillac models, in all the luxury of their special Fleetwood and Fisher bodies; new La-Salles, with bodies exclusively by Fleetwood; Buick straight eights, which now include a recently introduced low-medium price model; Oldsmobile eights and sixes; Pontiac eights and Chevrolet sixes, which include a new lower price series recently introduced. In addition, there will be a complete line of Chevrolet and GMC trucks and commercial units.

Other General Motors products shown will include refrigerating and air conditioning equipment by Frigidaire, a variety of accessories displayed by United Motors Service, and the new Delco harmonized home heating unit.

The settings for the show are perhaps unique. Described as a carnival of music festivity, the hangings are designed to express the spirit of spring and early summer and the spirit of happiness which improved economic conditions are bringing. All the backdrops will be in green, with large silver brackets at intervals holding flowers. Overhead, broad ribbons in spring shades will be gathered together over the center of the exhibition hall. The family name of each company will appear on the backdrops in silver letters.

Benny Rader, who for eight years was the first violinist with the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, has been engaged to furnish the music for the show through arrangements completed with the Music Corporation of America.

Rader was conductor of the Garden Theater Orchestra for four seasons, conductor of the Fox Theater Orchestra for five years, and for the past six seasons has directed the orchestra for the annual Veiled Prophet ball. His orchestra has played over KSD and other St. Louis stations.

The General Motors exhibition will be much larger than a similar exhibition held by General Motors in St. Louis two years ago when the attendance on the final night at the Arena exceeded 35,000 persons.

Barney Oldfield to Manage Chrysler Track at Chicago Fair

For the past two years, he has been serving as Highway Safety Director for the Plymouth Motor Corporation. He is expected in Chicago soon to make preliminary plans for the speed runs and sand pit tests that will feature the motordrome show.

On Oldfield's staff will be more than 20 expert drivers, including speedway stars, stunt drivers and experts from the Chrysler engineering laboratories.

Various models of Plymouth, Dodge, De Soto and Chrysler cars will be found on the track at the Chrysler Motors exhibit and visitors will be invited to select their favorite cars and ride with Barney and his staff drivers.

On the west straightaway is a 100-foot long ramp with a grade of 25 per cent and an incline of 45 degrees.

The track is but a part of the Chrysler Motors exhibit at A Century of Progress. The exhibit will be one of the largest at the Fair, covering seven acres of ground. The main building has more than 68,000 square feet of floor space.

Longer Mileage From New Tread Compound in U. S. Royal Tires

"Triple Tempered Rubber" Developed to Increase Greatly Life of Casings.

Triple-tempered rubber, a new tread compound tempered for more miles, greater safety and trouble-free travel, has been developed by the United States Rubber Co. and is being used in the manufacture of United States Royal tires.

The new tread compound is an important evolution from "tempered rubber," which added thousands of miles to tire life. Credit for its development goes to Dr. J. W. Temple, research engineer of the company's tire division.

In 1923, field engineers began reporting that tire mileage was steadily decreasing. The reports came from all parts of the country. The first few of them were sufficient to arouse the curiosity of Dr. Sidney M. Cadwell, director of the tire development department.

"We can solve this problem," he told his staff of scientists and engineers. "The answer lies in the improvement of motor car design. Cars are being built with greater power and higher speed. Quicker starting, faster running, sudden stopping, all these mean increased tire wear. It's up to us to make our tires tougher and more resistant to wear."

Dr. Cadwell and his staff began a long series of experiments which ended successfully with the adoption of "tempered rubber" in United States tires in 1931.

As early as 1929, however, Dr. Cadwell said to Dr. Temple: "The trend in cars is to more power and higher speeds, and that means faster tread wear. I want you to think as far beyond the present work as you can and see if it is possible to improve on the lines we have been following."

Dr. Temple was one of the chemists on Dr. Cadwell's staff, who was connected from the beginning with the development of "tempered rubber." He was familiar with literally hundreds of variations on the original idea, with their weaknesses and their advantages.

So he chose the most promising and started in again, discarding the failures, ironing out difficulties, and consolidating the improvements. A new chemical, with particular properties was needed. It was made to order. Finally, in December, 1933, with a background of millions of test miles on the road, the new tread was fully proved and put into production.

Tire, Battery Code Mass Meeting Called for Tomorrow Night

A mass meeting open to all tire and battery dealers in the St. Louis trade area will be held in the New Auditorium at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow night.

The new tire and battery code will be discussed and explained. Jesse G. Johnston, president of the Greater St. Louis Tire & Battery Dealers' Association, said yesterday that any and all questions about the code and its working would be welcomed and answered at the meeting.

Everybody engaged in retailing tires, tubes and batteries, and in servicing them, must comply with the provisions of the code, Johnston said.

Johnston also stated that the present dealers' organization would be revamped and that new directors would be elected to conform to the code.

Chris-Craft Exhibit At Boat Show Here

Schneider Sales & Service, 4919 South Kingshighway, distributer of Chris-Craft runabouts and cruisers, will exhibit the Chris-Craft line at the St. Louis Boat and Sport Show.

In its exhibit will be found the new Model 83 cruiser. This firm has already sold six of these cruisers, which list at $1590. These boats have comfortable beds for four, toilet, galley and running water, stove and other necessities. They are built of Philippine mahogany, double plank bottom and batten seam sides. Their length is 24 feet and beam 7 feet 9 inches. The speed is 20 miles per hour.

The Chris-Craft Corporation has just announced a 30-foot cruiser which will "sleep" six, at a list price of $2290. Schneider Sales & Service report the sale of 19 Chris-Craft runabouts which are being used on the Mississippi and the Lake of the Ozarks.

Ford Co. Launches Truck Advertising Newspaper Campaign

An extensive newspaper advertising campaign, designed to bring before the public the great number of trucks and commercial cars available for commercial hauling now manufactured by the Ford Motor Co., has been started throughout the United States.

"We believe that newspapers offer the best medium through which to reach the prospective truck buyer," said M. N. Johnson, St. Louis manager for the Ford Motor Co. "For that reason, we are going to tell their readers about the various size Ford trucks and commercial cars and how they are designed and built for 95 per cent of the commercial hauling uses in the world.

"The truck owner and truck driver both are interested in specifications and performances of trucks, because lowered costs of a standard design will mean more profit to them and mean faster and safer service to those who have need of this type of transportation.

"The impending truck sales campaign has been outlined to all dealers in this territory. The immediate result has been that each Ford dealer will have a man assigned to a truck school, where he will be drilled in the requirements of truck owners. This training will make it possible for this special truck salesman in the dealer's organization to step into a truck buyer and be able to lay before him an outline of his truck needs with a view toward saving him money in original cost, depreciation, operation and maintenance."

Buick Production Averaging 500 Cars A Day, Curtice Says

Swinging into production at a rate higher than in any period thus far this year, the Buick Motor Co. is building an average of 500 cars a day and will produce more than 11,000 units in June, the largest month's schedule during 1934, according to figures made public by Harlow H. Curtice, president and general manager.

With the announcement of the new Series 40 Buick in a lower price range, a large bank of orders is on hand at the factory requiring peak production to meet the demands of the sales organization, Curtice said.

Monday, May 21, a total of 586 new Buicks were shipped, the largest single day's shipment since 1929.

The Buick dealer organization, Curtice said, has increased 26 per cent in the past year, much of that gain having been made since Jan. 1. On May 1, Buick had a total of 2627 dealers as compared with 2082 on May 1 last year, a gain of 545 dealers, or slightly over 26 per cent.

New Willys 77 Cars Refined and Improved, Displayed in St. Louis

A noticeable refinement in the exterior of the new 1934 Willys car, which is being shown by the Southwest Automobile Co., distributer, is the change in the louvres which now are definitely streamlined to conform with the streamlining of the hood and body.

Except for such refinements and mechanical improvements, the general appearance of the new Willys is similar to that of the distinctive 1933 model, which set a precedent in streamline design.

The two-passenger Willys coupe delivers here for $499 and the four-passenger sedan for $519, both cars complete.

Dual Highways Efficiency.

An engineer at the University of Maryland has figured that two-lane highways can carry 1000 motor vehicles an hour without congestion, while three-lane highways remain virtually open with 1600 cars.

Supercharged Graham Sets Cross-Continent Record of 53 Hours

Averages 62 Miles Per Hour on Run From Los Angeles to New York.

A Graham supercharged eight now holds the record for the fastest transcontinental run in a stock motor car between Los Angeles and New York City. This record—53 hours flat—was made by Ted Ellis. The previous record, made in 1931, was 57 hours, 38 minutes for 3149 miles. Including detours, Ellis covered 3285 miles in his record-breaking trip. Timing of the trip was in charge of Western Union officials.

The Graham averaged 62 miles an hour throughout the run, despite 45 stops en route for gas and tire changes. Top speed was 90 miles an hour. The stops averaged 10 minutes each. Ellis did all his eating in these intervals. All told, he spent $3.20 on food, mostly egg sandwiches and milk.

The new record is twice as fast as a railroad crossing and about half as fast as a coast-to-coast flight in a passenger plane. Ellis traveled alone. He thus set a new record for solo driving.

Upon leaving Los Angeles, Ellis put the car in high gear and in high it remained for the duration of the journey. He drove at high speed through the Sierras, over mountains 7000 feet high, and exceeded his 62-mile average over pitted, sandy desert roads.

There were no stops for repairs or parts en route. Upon arrival the oil was changed, the body washed and the car was ready to start on its return journey.

Oldsmobile Factory Runs Night and Day On Double Shift Basis

Oldsmobile has built more cars in the first five months of 1934 than in the entire year of 1933, according to C. L. McCuen, president and general manager of Olds Motor Works at Lansing.

"The Oldsmobile factory is running day and night on a double shift to keep pace with car orders," said McCuen. "Factory payrolls have also reached a new all-time high, with employment even exceeding the peak of 1929. There is no slackening in the demand for Oldsmobile sixes and eights.

"June production schedules are being set at an even higher mark than in May."

Firestone Executives Address Meeting of Dealers in St. Louis

The Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. held a sales meeting at the Jefferson Hotel Fridy afternoon and evening that was attended by over 500 Firestone dealers from St. Louis and the surrounding territory.

G. B. Edwards presided and introduced C. E. Routh, local branch manager for Firestone. Routh, in turn, introduced his assistant, E. H. Fahrenkrog, who gave a talk on the proper handling of sales in the tire business. He likewise discussed the construction of Firestone tires and their many saleable features.

Immediately following the afternoon session, a buffet luncheon was served in the Gold Room. There Richards introduced Paul V. Means, manager of the Battery Sales Department of the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. at Akron, as well as Brownie Carslake, who is in charge of the Firestone Educational Bureau at Akron.

Following their talks a six-reel movie was shown of the Firestone exhibit at the Century of Progress Fair in Chicago. This showed the large group of buildings that Firestone has and the actual making of gum-dipped Firestone tires. It took the audience from the beginning of construction of a Firestone tire to its completion.

Another movie showed last year's Indianapolis 500-mile race.

Tires to Smoke Again at High Speeds Made in Race at Indianapolis

"There is not an engineer in a thousand that will believe that tires smoke at modern racing speeds—unless he has seen it," says E. Waldo Stein, veteran Firestone racing tire expert who has devoted his time to the speedways since the early days when he rode at Indianapolis. "Yet I can take the engineers around and show them tires smoking almost any time, from tire treads grinding on the track."

The spectators at the 500-mile Indianapolis race on May 30 will see the usual haze of smoke hovering above the track, and few will stop to consider that any part of the smoke may be due to any other cause than exhaust fumes. However, if they look closely as the cars negotiate the turns, they will see smoke rising from the brick track in back of the whirling right rear tire of some of the fastest cars. Traveling 140 miles per hour or faster on the straightaways, the cars go into the turns with a terrific thrust on the tires. This continues mile after mile over the hot brick.

The drivers choose their tires with extreme care and in the Indianapolis race practically every driver uses Firestone tires. Likewise, in other championship races throughout the country, on dirt tracks as well as brick, Firestone tires are on the winning cars.

New Goodyear Tire Winning Sales Gains, Kemmerer Reports

"Public interest has been stirred to a pitch rarely experienced by the tire industry over the advent of the Goodyear 'G-3' tire, with tire sales climbing correspondingly, a telephone survey of the country's major markets indicates," says George Kemmerer, manager of Goodyear Service, Inc.

"Never before have I seen such a wave of interest in a new tire development on the part of the average driver.

"Following the introduction of the new 'G-3', which Goodyear tire engineers assert will give 43 per cent more non-skid mileage at no advance in cost, sales executives in Akron telephoned key dealers and branch managers all over the country to learn local reactions.

"In every section enthusiastic reports were the rule. A dealer in Beverly, Mass., had to increase his tire sales force the first day. A Chicago house received 10 telephone inquiries on the Sunday morning the announcement appeared. An Allentown (Pa.) dealer's warehouse withdrawals jumped 40 per cent in three days.

"Here in this territory many prospects who have been postponing the new tires they need for summer driving are now equipping with 'G-3's' many with a full set.

"The new 'G-3' tire, which was announced after exhaustive tests had proved its unusual longevity and safety, is marked by a flatter tread, wider riding rib, narrower groves and more non-skid blocks."

Cutaway Auburn Car Chassis Shown Here Cost $12,000 to Build

Frank C. McDonald, president of the Southwest Auto Co., distributers of Auburn cars, has arranged with the Auburn factory to show at its salesroom a special cut-out 126-inch wheelbase chassis of an Auburn car which McDonald is informed costs in the neighborhood of $12,000 to build.

This chassis shows all working parts and is covered with glass so one can see just how they work, including dual ratio which is a feature of Auburn cars.

The chassis will be on exhibition at the Southwest Auto Company, 3000 Locust street, for the next two weeks.

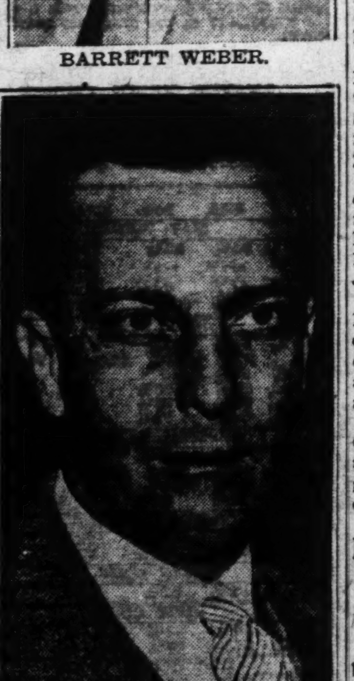
BARRETT WEBER.



WALTER AFF.

M. N. Johnson, manager of the Ford Motor Co. in St. Louis, announces the appointment of Barrett Weber, Inc., as an authorized Ford dealer at 3540 South Kingshighway.

Barrett Weber, president of the firm, has been in the automobile business since 1920, was formerly associated with the Weber Motor Car Co., and has been in business on North Grand avenue since 1928.

Walter Aff, vice-president and general manager of the new company, has been in the automobile business since 1918, starting on Gravois avenue. He has been active in the sale of low-priced cars in the neighborhood of the company's new location for the past four years.

According to Weber the location at 3540 South Kingshighway will be temporary headquarters until a new building is completed. He said his company would have service facilities at the South Kingshighway address and would also maintain heavy service headquarters at 3008 North Grand until the new plant was completed.

Milton Oil Co. Dealers Holding Increases From Advertising Campaign in "Post-Dispatch."

A 300 per cent increase of sales, as a result of an exclusive advertising campaign in the Post-Dispatch, is attested to by the Milton Oil Co., marketer of Dixcel scientifically lubricated gasoline and motor oil, Milt-O Penn oil, and distributer of Hyvis motor oil and Pennsylvania tires.

C. M. E. Reeves, vice-president of the company, stated that direct results from the exclusive Post-Dispatch advertising were the rule rather than the exception and that in most instances the gains by the individual dealers in Milton products had been maintained. "The response has been amazing," he said.

The Milton Oil Co., according to J. L. Weiner, St. Louis manager, is the largest independent marketer of oils and gasoline in the Middle West. The company has 400 outlets, having facilities in the Southern half of Missouri, Southwest Illinois and Southeast Kansas.

Executives of the company include E. H. Milton, president; Harry Milton, general manager; C. M. E. Reeves, vice-president; H. M. Fredkin, advertising manager, and J. L. Weiner, St. Louis manager.

The Milton Co. is marketer of Dixcel scientifically lubricated gasoline, Col-Tex ethyl, Dixcel motor oil and Milt-O Penn motor oils, and distributers of Hyvis motor oils and Pennsylvania tires.

According to Weiner, the Milton Oil Co. is one of the few companies that have available at all outlets gasoline, oils, greases, batteries, accessories and tires.

Pontiac Adds Many Features to Exhibit At Fair in Chicago

In the great General Motors building, at the Chicago Century of Progress Fair, the Pontiac Motor Co. has retained all of its features of a year ago and has added several outstanding attractions.

A comprehensive array of the newest knee-action straight eight Pontiac models again is suported by the full-sized glass-enclosed working model showing a Pontiac engine with its exclusive fountain cooling system of water circulation.

The mechanical talking Indian Chief that mystified so many Fair visitors with its ability to converse intelligently with young and old alike, is back at its old stand.

Added attractions include a costly highly finished chassis showing the action of all working parts. Of especial interest is the functioning of the "knees" in "slow-motion" rhythm, the coiled springs compressing and extending within the walls of their cut-out cylinders.

What actually happens to the working parts of a Pontiac straight eight engine after it has been driven the equivalent of three times around the world is spread out in plain sight. It is a display of a completely disassembled 1934 engine after 75,000 miles of actual service. The wear was so slight that in the case of most of the vital parts the measurement was in fractions of a thousandth of an inch.

Dodge Sales Director Confers With Dealers From St. Louis District

Akers Points Out Steady Gains in Deliveries Since First of the Year.

Dodge dealers in the St. Louis territory met Monday at the Chase Hotel to discuss with F. H. Akers, director of sales of Dodge Brothers Corporation, sales and advertising plans for the summer.

Akers declared that Dodge Brothers had implicit faith in continued business activity in America and that the company's manufacturing and merchandising plans for the summer season were formulated accordingly.

Every phase of automobile retailing was given careful consideration during the all-day session of retailers and factory representatives.

Consistently-increasing 1934 retail deliveries, Akers said, constituted the basis for Dodge's faith. He quoted from the summary of sales on the first 19 weeks of the year—Jan. 1 to May 12—which shows deliveries at retail of 82,178 passenger cars and trucks, as compared with 37,387 units delivered in the same period of 1933—a gain of 119.8 per cent.

Analyzing the report further, Akers said that of the total of 82,178 sales, 35,225 were of Dodge passenger cars, 31,315 of Plymouths, and 15,638 of Dodge commercial cars and trucks. The increase in truck sales, he said, has been even more impressive than in the passenger car line, the gain this year over 1933 being 479.4 per cent.

The meeting was called and presided over by D. B. Benedict, St. Louis regional manager for Dodge Brothers Corporation.

New Speed Car for Campbell.

Sir Malcolm Campbell, British speed king, hopes to attain a speed of 300 miles an hour this year in a car designed by two German airmen. This new machine is unusual in appearance, looking very much like a huge beetle.

Demonstrating Knee Action

George Bilgere, president of the Bilgere Chevrolet Co., starting a Chevrolet car on the corduroy road that his firm has opened at Grand and Carter for demonstrating the smooth riding effect gained by knee action front springing. One of the front fenders of the car has been cut away so that the action of the front springing may be watched.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 26.—Securities stumbled to the end of the dullest week in nearly a decade, a week in which silver provided virtually the only enlightenment, but it failed to glow very cheeringly, as far as speculators were concerned.

The stock market declined rather sharply early in the week, as President Roosevelt's silver message failed to provide any further indications of probable inflation than did the earlier outlines of the program. But the selling quickly dried up, and prices recovered gradually during the remainder of the week. The price average of 90 representative issues finished at 77.5, a net loss for the period of only .5 of a point.

The turnover in the stock exchange for the week was only 3,179,390 shares, or less than the average turnover per day at this time a year ago. The previous week had seemed quiet enough to commission houses, with only 5,733,444 shares. Activity in bonds was better maintained, with a volume for week of $54,973,000 par value, against $67,560,000 a week previously, but the price trend in corporate issues kept to a slightly downward slant. The index of 60 representative issues ended the period at 85.8, a net loss of .4 of a point.

The sluggishness of the markets reflected both the discouragement of speculators and the apathy of investors. The restrained silver program provided nothing that inflation-bent speculators could sink their teeth into, and professional traders wrapped themselves in gloom while the bill to regulate the securities act took final form in conference committee.

Stock Exchange Bill Progress.

News at the end of the week that the final bill would probably provide for a separate commission to administer the act was moderately encouraging to part of the financial community, since Wall street proponents of that form of administration have taken it for granted that the personnel would include some persons who have had actual experience in the securities business, and would therefore not impose "unworkable" regulations. But there was no general agreement on this point in Wall street, some circles expressing the view that the Federal Trade Commission, with its experience with the Securities Act, might be better qualified than a brand new commission.

The indifference of investors seemed to be based largely on uncertainty over the business outlook between now and midsummer, when the trend is normally downward, and the fact that the situation is made a little more obscure than usual at this time of year by the indications of intense labor unrest in some sectors. Steel production declined a little more, and the cotton textile industry obtained NRA permission for a 25 per cent production cut, but the decline in automobile production was checked, for the moment at least.

The silver market was indifferent to the Washington white metal scheme, probably reflecting in part the proposed 50 per cent tax on speculative profits, and also the belief that the Treasury's buying program would be pursued cautiously. The dollar strengthened against foreign currencies, after a slight monetary dip. Bar silver at New York closed at 44¾ cents, off ¼ of a cent for the week.

Sensitive commodities, as measured by Moody's index of 15 items, lost ground during the week, although grains again firmed on further drouth reports. Wheat and corn showed net gains for the week of about 2 cents a bushel, while cotton futures lost 15 to 30 cents a bale.

Prices Edge Up at Week End.

For the third consecutive session, stocks edged upward Saturday. Dullness was unbroken as the Stock Exchange ended one of its slowest weeks in recent years.

Sugar stocks attracted some buying, following announcement of beet-sugar quotas for domestic producers, and on expectation insular quotas would be fixed next week, under the recent sugar bill passed by Congress. American Sugar rose more than 2 points, holding most of its gain to the close, desepite a reduction of 1-10th of a cent in the price of refined sugar.

Professional trading continued to mark time. Transfers on the Stock Exchange during the two-hour session totaled 279,300 shares, not much larger than the turnover a week ago. The average price of 90 stcoks moved up .5 of a point, to 77.5.

An additional rise of more than a cent a bushel in wheat supported an early show of strength in stocks, but profit-taking erased gains of cereals. Wheat closed ⅛@¼ of a cent lower. Corn reacted also after a further early advance, closing fractionally lower.

Week-end tapering off of trading accentuated quiet in foreign exchange and bond trading. Quotations moved narrowly.

Aside from American Sugar, the sugar group was featured by gains of fractions to 2 points in American Beet Sugar preferred, Great Western Sugar, Cuban-American Sugar and Puerto Rico Sugar.

Electric Auto Lite and other motor and accessory shares held up well against the strike news from Toledo.

Improvement in sentiment was attributable chiefly to prospect of an early compromise agreement on the Federal stock exchange control bill in the Senate-House conference.

The British pound recorded a decline of ⅜ of a cent at $5.09⅛ and the French franc was .00½ of a cent lower at 6.60¼ cents.

Dutch guilders lost .08 of a cent at 67.80 cents, Belgian belgas were unchanged at 23.42 cents and Swiss francs eased .04 of a cent at 32.52 cents. Canadian dollars were 1-32 of a cent down at 100.21⅞ cents.

NEW YORK, May 26.—Foreign currencies ended the week with a soft tone against the dollar. Sterling and gold currencies alike registered small declines, while German marks again provided the feature with a sharp loss.

The pound sterling lost ⅜ of a cent in New York, closing the week at $5.09⅛. Ths dollar had ended the earlier London trading with a ⅜ of a cent gain at 5.09 to the pound.

The price of gold in London declined a halfpenny to 136 shillings, 6 pence a fine ounce (equivalent to $34.77 on the basis of the dollar's opening price of $5.09½). Bars valued at about $1,095,400 were sold to an unrevealed buyer, thought possibly to be the British Exchange Control.

The latter was reported to have been selling gold in Paris and restoring its holdings through purchases in the London open market.

French francs led the gold currencies to slightly lower levels. The franc declined .00½ of a cent to close at 6.60¼ cents. The dollar ended the Paris trading at the equivalent of 6.60½ cents to the franc, compared with 6.61 cents on Friday.

German marks revealed further acute weakness, falling off .21 of a cent to 39.17 cents. This level was almost 3 per cent below parity of 40.33 cents. Marks for future delivery in New York were quoted at wide discounts below spot delivery prices.

At the closing price for French francs in New York, the dollar was valued at a premium of .46 of a cent over par. This compared with a premium of .37 of a cent on Friday and a discount of .29 of a cent a month ago.

WEEK'S METAL REVIEW

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 26.—Continued fair demand for lead at steady prices stood out in otherwise quiet markets for nonferrous metals during the past week.

Buying for June requirements was said to have been fairly well distributed among the various consuming branches. Statistics for April showed a further slight increase in smelters' stocks, but the gain was smaller than in any of the previous seven months.

Approval of a code of fair competition for the industry was reported and said to be principally a labor agreement.

Copper remained quiet, business being confined mostly to carload lots at the unchanged basis of 8.50c for "Blue Eagle" metal. Attention of the trade was still centered on various rulings of the code authority for disposal of output and stocks.

The authority extended the ban against selling non-code copper in the domestic market to June 15. Easiness of scrap attracted buying from Japan and Germany, it was reported.

Tin continued its irregular fluctuations within a narrow range in a quiet market. Tin plate mills, while still holding operations to around 75 per cent of capacity, were said to be restricting metal purchases owing to uncertainty over the labor outlook. Announcements were still being awaited regarding plans for a buffer pool by the International Tin Committee.

Zinc demand was limited owing to the outlook for decreased steel production and possible smaller metal requirements for galvanizing. An ore price reduction at the opening of the week reflected the recent decline in metal quotations and higher mine output, but smelters were not inclined to make further concessions, and prices were unchanged.

Further downward readjustments in antimony prices to the basis of recent declines in Chinese quotations failed to attract buying interest, and the market remained dull.

Further declines in the price for heavy melting scrap were regarded as reflecting the outlook for decreasing activity. Pig iron shipments were maintained.

STEEL INSTITUTE REVIEW OF EARNINGS AND EMPLOYMENT

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 26.—Small, non-integrated companies in the steel industry fared better in earnings in 1933 than the larger, fully integrated concerns, according to a report just made by the American Iron and Steel Institute which covered 190 steel companies.

The report showed that 57 integrated companies with a total investment of $4,423,077,377 had a combined net loss of $64,798,707 in 1933 while 133 companies with an investment of $484,668,907 had combined net earnings of $5,104,475 for the year.

The return on investment for the smaller companies amounted to 1.83 per cent while the loss on investment for the larger companies was 0.75 per cent. Stockholders in the smaller companies which have only about 10 per cent as much capital investment as is reported for the larger companies, received 54 per cent as much in dividends as stockholders of the larger concerns.

Total wages and salaries paid by the 190 companies in 1933 amounted to $455,600,916 compared with $20,380,224 distributed to stockholders in cash dividends.

Reflecting increases in wages and employment under the steel code, total wages and salaries for the 190 companies increased from $173,890,603 in the first half of the year to $281,710,313 in the last six months, an increase of 62 per cent. This compared with an increase of about 40 per cent in operations over the same period. Average operations for the year were 34 per cent of capacity.

The combined condensed balance sheet of these companies, as reported by the institute, shows a total investment of $4,907,746,284 in 1933. The number of stockholders was 514,244.

Net property value and investments in affiliated companies of all these organizations at the end of 1933 was $3,803,061,831, a decline of $117,271,278 from the preceding year.

43 RAILROADS' NET OPERATING INCOME LARGELY OVER 1933

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 26.—Net operating income of major railroads continued to run well ahead of the past two years in April, results of the first 43 roads to report showed.

The reporting roads had net operating income in April of $22,001,000, an increase of 63.9 per cent over the 1933 month's total of $13,420,000 and an increase of 39.8 per cent over the aggregate of $15,742,000 in April, 1932.

The April results were below March, however, and showed a less impressive gain over a year ago. In March, net operating income of the same roads approximated $30,975,000, an increase of 260.3 per cent over March, 1933.

Gross revenues of the 43 reporting roads in April amounted to $149,862,000. This represented a gain of 19 per cent over the $125,919,000 total in April, 1933, and a gain of .5 per cent over April, 1932, when the total was $149,095,000. WHEAT HAS SETBACK LATE AFTER RALLY

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 26.—Possibilities that next week would witness general breakup of drought led to wheat price setbacks late today that more than wiped out earlier gains.

The Government weekly weather forecast pointed to a period of probable showery conditions, and with profit-taking on a large scale did much to cause a right-about-face of market action. Downturns of values, however, did not ensue until after September delivery of wheat and also of oats as well as cash corn had overtopped season high price records.

Wheat closed easy at the same as yesterday's finish; corn ¼@½c down; oats ⅛@½c up, and provisions unchanged to 7c decline.

At first, the wheat market was dominated by a brisk general purchase movement that accompanied reports of continued bad crop conditions over areas. New jumps in prices soon carried the market up about 1½c before profit-taking set in.

Forecasts of unsettled weather in the Dakotas Sunday did a good deal to shake confidence of wheat buyers, and to accelerate setbacks of prices. It was not, however, until the Government weekly forecast, prophesying for the country as a whole was out that downturns tumbled the entire market at times to below yesterday's finish. Offerings at this stage were well absorbed, though, and the market in the final dealings gave evidence of power to rally.

Corn and oats mainly followed the fluctuations of wheat. Reports from sections of the Central West indicated damage to oats and barley.

Provisions averaged lower, influenced by slackening of shipper call for lard.

Grain futures purchases yesterday totaled 41,194,000 bushels, corn 8,435,000. Open interest in wheat was 90,739,000 bushels, and in corn 65,538,000.

NEW YORK SUGAR.

NEW YORK, May 26.—Raw sugar was unchanged today. Local refiners were interested at 2.75, but holders generally asked 2.80. While there were no sales today, it developed that late yesterday a local refiner bought 20,700 bags of Philippines due next week at 2.75, while an outport refiner bought 18,000 bags of Philippines for early June arrival at 2.78 and 40,000 bags of Porto Ricos for May shipment at 2.80.

Futures were slightly more active and prices firmer on increased week-end covering and some buying by houses with Cuban connections. Final prices were 2 to 3 points net higher.

The buying seemed to be promoted by expectations of an early announcement on the quotas, and by indications of increasing consumption as evidenced by Washington advices that the United States will consume 6,476,000 short tons, raw sugar value during the current year. This figure the official estimate of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, is about 24,000 tons in excess of the consumption figure included in the recently enacted sugar stabilization law.

Offerings were comparatively light and mostly in the way of realizing with final prices at the best of the session. July contracts sold up from 1.35 to 1.36 and closed at the latter figure. September advanced from 1.61 to 1.64, closing at 1.63-64. The refined market was unchanged at 4.10 for fine granulated, with only a moderate inquiry reported.

GAINS MARK SLOW BOND MARKET TRADE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 26.—The bond market remained in its lethargic condition in the week's closing session.

Transfers were slightly larger than on the preceding Saturday, although the total was only $5,142,000, par value. A week ago the aggregate was $4,592,000. The average for 60 domestic corporate issues was unchanged at 85.8. This represented a loss on the week of four-tenths of a point.

The market appeared to be waiting for possible information regarding the Treasury's financing plans, especially with respect to the conversion of the called fourth Liberty 4¼s. The general expectation was that an exchange offering to replace the called issue would be entirely for conversion. The intervention of a holiday next Wednesday also tended to check trading.

Transactions in United States Government issues were limited to about $1,000,000. Most of the Treasury's obligations registered small gains. Home Owners' Loan Corporation 4s declined slightly.

Texas Corporation, McKesson & Robbins, Columbia Gas and Electric and Consolidated Gas of New York issues also made small gains. There was some irregularity among industrial bonds in general, but small advances were predominant. Utility issues made a good showing.

German obligations scored gains up to two points throughout the list, with the notable exceptions of the German Government 5½s and 7s, which declined ½ point and 1½ points, respectively. Argentine issues rose a fraction to a point and a half.

QUIET IMPROVEMENTS MARKS CURB SESSION

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 26.—Quiet improvement again appeared in today's brief Curb session. Transfers, which approximated only 49,000 shares, provided the smallest week-end total since July 16, 1932, when 30,000 shares changed hands.

Alcohols were rather firm, while a few specialties got up around a point. Cities Service preferred shares were higher.

STUDY RUMORED PLAN TO SELL SECURITY INTRA-STATE ORALLY

Suggested That Proposal Would Put Deal Outside Securities Act.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—Securities officials of the Trade Commission have for study the reported plan of a group of New York bankers to float an issue of local transportation bonds twithout regard to the securities act.

The bankers were said to believe that if the bonds were sold only in New York State, the transactions would not be in interstate commerce and, therefore, would be outside the act.

Commission officials declined a formal opinion on the question, but it was said that so long as the transaction was entirely within New York there probably could be no objection.

"In New York "means there could be no advertising that went across state lines, no interstate telephone calls, or use of the mails, or sale of securities for later resale out of the State.

Officials do not believe the suggested transaction is applicable to many security issues.

SCOUT CAMPARALL OPENS NEXT FRIDAY

The seventh annual Boy Scout Camparall, which means three days and two nights in an encampment of pup tents for 1000 scouts, will be held this week-end on the old aviation field in Forest Park. Scout officials have carded some new stunts, like the Cub dog show, and have invited parents of all scouts to spend Saturday on the field with their sons.

The scouts, in patrols of eight, will arrive Friday afternoon and put up their shelters. Each of the districts will have its separate section, with the field commissioners in charge. The rest of Friday will be devoted to getting the camp in order and to practicing for the 14 scout projects which will be given on Saturday.

The projects are courtesy to the flag, map-making, tracking, first aid, fire by friction, knot tying, fire-building, water-boiling, scout pace, campcraft, cookcraft, personal appearance, discipline and a mystery project.

Parents have been invited to come Saturday afternoon, bring their lunches and stay for an evening program of entertainment which includes professional vaudeville acts and troop stunts.

In the afternoon the Cubs will hold a dog show with each Cub displaying his own entry. Each of the districts will have an intertroop scoutcraft meet and a handicraft exhibit from headquarters will be on view.

Scouts will cook all of their own meals and be graded on the perfection which they reach in cooking. On Sunday morning all must go to church. Sunday afternoon the prizes will be awarded during a final review before scout officials and toward dusk camp will be broken.

By James M. Gould.

They're still in the "resilient" class, those Browns. It is a law of physics that whatever goes up must come down and so Hornsby's club, losing the opener of the series to the Yankees, yesterday, by a 4 to 1 score, bounced back into fifth place just as easily as, recently, they hopped up to third.

The Browns have been really winning lately on punch rather than pitching and so they haven't had a chance to waste any especially good hurling performances. Yesterday—maybe some of the youngsters were awed by that "New York" on the Yankee shirts—they seemed to forget what bats were for and also wasted a better-than-fair bit of work by Irving Hadley. Hadley struck out eight of the Yanks and faltered only in the first and eighth.

New York's victory was only the team's third in 10 games on this Western trip while the defeat was the fourth for the Browns in the same number, and the fifth in the last 15 games.

Murphy, Rookie, Stops Browns.

With several of their veteran pitchers under the weather, the Manhattan merry-go-rounds presented one John Murphy, late of Newark, as their pitcher and this recruit right-hander, really did some excellent work. The Browns refused to take advantage of several opportunities offered in the earlier innings of the game and, in the late sessions, Murphy was entirely too much for them, holding Hornsby's men hitless in the last three innings and permitting only five hits altogether.

The Yanks played without Ruth and looked rather listless and colorless, but they didn't have to have much life or display any varicolored hues to beat the Browns of yesterday.

Now the Browns are four games out of the lead and one out of third. Second place is three games away.

Burns Hits Home Run.

Hadley looked as though he weren't going to stay very long when Combs and Saltzgaver, first two Yanks up in the first inning singled. Saltzgaver's hit put Combs on third and he scored on Byrd's fly to Pepper. This slight advantage was immediately erased when Burns, with nobody aboard, hit his homer into the seats in right-center. A line drive it was and the ball was still going up when it landed. Unfortunately West just previously had hit into a double play.

With one out in the third, Saltzgaver singled. Byrd raised a fly to right and Campbell muffed it, Saltzgaver galloping to third and Byrd reaching second. Naturally, in this

Brownie Notes

FOR the second game of the series, today, the Yankees' probable pitcher is Charley Ruffing, who, with Jim Bottomley, made Nokomis, Ill., known to the baseball world. Buck Newsom will pitch for the Browns. The game will start at 2:30 o'clock.

Yesterday was Murphy's second start as a Yankee. He is a graduate of Fordham and served with Newark before coming to the majors.

According to New York newspaper men this present Western trip is the worst the Yankees have experienced in 20 years.

Babe Ruth encased his portly form and lame back in a neat brown ensemble and watched the game from the stands. He is hopeful of being in today's contest.

Hadley was constantly "in the hole" on Yankee batters in the first and second innings. In these frames he was more fortunate than effective.

Saltzgaver, recently brought back from Newark to play third for New York, apparently liked Hadley's pitching assortment. He singled his first two times up.

With a runner on second and no one out in the fourth, Crosetti made no attempt to bunt though the Yanks were but one run to the good. He did walk, but he had several swings, most of them fouls, before he got on.

Except for that muff of Campbell's, the Browns couldn't complain of bad "breaks" in the early innings. Nine Yanks reached first in the first four and only two of them got around.

Fortune did frown, though, in the fifth when Hemsley walked to start and went to third on Bejma's hit to left. Bejma made the mistake of thinking the blow was good for two bases and was nailed at second on Byrd's good throw to Crosetti.

Burning Up, under restraint for the first half mile, moved to the leaders with a rush while racing on the outside turning into the stretch and showing good speed easily held Altmark safe. The latter made a bid for contention at the far turn and under good handling outgamed Malolo. The latter rushed to the front, had good speed, but appeared to be short.

$2 mutuels paid: Burning Up, $9.66 win, $5.38 place, $3.84 show; Altmark, $10.98 place, $6.80 show; Malolo, $3.80 show.

By Dent McSkimming.

Burning Up, a six year old son of the famous Black Toney, is appropriately named, for he gave the Fairmount Park race track a good scorching to add zest to the fine program which marked the opening of the 34-day meeting at the Collinsville course, yesterday afternoon.

As the crowd of 10,000 craned necks to see what had become of the odds-on favorite, Zekiel, the horse from Texas, Burning Up, went right on burning up the track, coming from third position at the head of the stretch to pass the favorite, then overtake Malolo and win by a length and a half, proving to the satisfaction of most observers that he was pounds the best horse in the race.

Altmark Runs Second.

Because of the fact that he had twice broken the track record for six furlongs at Aurora this month, Zekiel was an outstanding choice in the betting. Burning Up, a record breaker at Arlington Downs, Tex., last month, was the second choice. Malolo, known to be a fine sprinter when in good racing condition, was regarded as a doubtful quantity because he had not been to the barrier since last October. He closed at 5 to 1. But at the very outset it was apparent that Malolo was a well-conditioned race horse. He was off in front, opened up a lead and then held on gamely as May tried to send Zekiel to the front on the turn. Burning Up had to fight it out with Zekiel for the first half mile and the effort didn't seem to tire him for he came with plenty of speed in the stretch. Altmark also displayed good speed in the last quarter and passed the tiring Malolo to take second money.

Flying Cadet and Wise Eddie, the other starters in the field of six, were never serious contenders.

Long Shots Have Big Day.

It was a gala day for the race goers except for the fact that they had trouble finding the winners. They put their cash on what appeared the logical choice, but the outsiders kept on upsetting the applecart. Monde set the fashion by refunding $58,96 in winning the second race and Mokan kept in style by paying $19. Justice B., winner of the third, was another long shot and a ticket on Thistle Lucy in the sixth was good for $17.

Wagering Is Lively.

The opening-day crowd was not nearly a record breaker, but it was all that the track management hoped for in view of bad business conditions. The wagering was lively, and it was apparent that the earlier closing time of the mutuel windows was working no great handicap on the bettors. The siren signifying the close of betting sounded just as the horses reached the post, whereas in the past the windows remained open until after the race had actually started, causing some wierd shifts in the probable odds and the refunds. He Must Have Confidence.

EXCEPT from the financial standpoint—and that's the important thing to fighters—Pop Foster appears to have made one bad match for his pet, Jimmy McLarnin.

From the McLarnin angle there is not one feature to recommend the affair, except the possibility that it will enhance his bankroll about $75,000. Of course, in these times, that is almost enough to excuse any indiscretion in mere matchmaking.

However, here's POP FOSTER, the situation from McLarnin's outlook:

He stands to lose his title, where Ross does not.

Being the bigger man, popular sympathy will be against him and with the under dog, or smaller man.

As the heavier man and a champion, he will be at the disadvantage of having to force the fighting or be booed out of the ring.

If he wins, it will merely be said: "What else could you expect from matching a big man with a punch against a smaller man without one?"

In other words, McLarnin has not one thing to gain in prestige or popularity and everything to lose. If outpointed, his drawing power will sink to the freezing point and perhaps to zero. If badly beaten or stopped, it

Stanford Wins I. C. 4-A Meet; 13th Victory for The West in 14 Years

PHILADELPHIA, May 25.—Stanford University's small but sturdy band of athletic stars turned the 58th Intercollegiate A. A. A. A. track and field championships into another Far Western rout today, pulling away from all opposition to capture the team trophy with unexpected ease in a meet otherwise featured by two dazzling double victories for "Bullet Bob" Kiesel, University of California sprint ace, and Bill Bonthron, Princeton's champion middle distance runner.

Thanks mainly to the marked superiority of two young giants in the weight-tossing events, John Lyman and Gordon (Slinger) Dunn, who took the first two places in both the shotput and discus, Stanford had no trouble at all in rolling up 25¼ points. Six of the seven Indians from Palo Alto figured in the team scoring, captured four first places altogether and removed any doubt as to the outcome by the time the meet was half finished.

Tenth Straight for Far West.

It was the tenth consecutive I. C. A. A. A. A. victory for a Pacific coast team, the thirteenth triumph in 14 years and Stanford's fourth annexation of the East's most highly prized track and field trophy. "Dink" Templeton's pupils who last won the championship in 1927-28-29, succeeded Southern California, which did not send a team this year after scoring four successive victories.

Yale, as expected, led the Eastern challenge but finished nearly 10 points behind the winners with a total of 25½, thanks chiefly to the fact the Eli's pole vaulting trio, led by Keith Brown and Frank Pierce, in a first place tie, collected 11½ points in this event alone. California, with three first places, landed in third place with 20 points while New York University finished fourth with 18 and Harvard fifth with 16¼. The rest of the teams were scattered through the standing, including Michigan State with

Runyan Victor By a Stroke Over Hagen and Cox

By the Associated Press.

WESTFIELD, N. J., May 26.—Paul Runyan, frail young professional from Westchester, came on with a rush in the last two rounds of the Metropolitan Open golf championship today to win with a 72-hole total of 287 and stamp himself an outstanding contender for the National Open beginning at Merion June 7.

Runyan holed a tricky five-foot putt on the home green after recovering from a bunker to post a 71 and nose out the two veterans, Walter Hagen and Wiffy Cox, leaders at the halfway mark, by one stroke.

Craig Wood, who lost the British open to Denny Shute in a playoff last year, finished fourth with 291 and behind him came John Kinder, 293.

Starting the final round two strokes behind Cox, who led the field with 214, Runyan was out in 34, one under par, to take the lead at 63 holes and he held his narrow advantage through the final nine.

DIZZY DEAN WILL TRY TO CONTINUE CARDS' BIG PUSH

By J. Roy Stockton

Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

PHILADELPHIA, May 26.—Rain and cold weather stopped the Cardinals this afternoon for the second successive day, which is a stepping stone to the thought that since the Redbirds started their present drive, by defeating the Cubs in the last game of a series at Chicago, no team has been able to stop Frankie Frisch's forces in two consecutive contests. Since they started their present drive the ambitious St. Louis Nationals haven't had a two-game losing streak.

The drive, during which the Redbirds have won 18 and lost only 6, started with that decision over the Cubs, April 29. That was the opening shot in a seven-game winning streak, with three straight over the Reds and three straight over the Phils. Bill McKechnie's Braves broke the string by taking the first game of a series of three, but the Cards took the next two from Boston and three from the Giants for five successive triumphs, before the Giants salvaged the final of the series.

Dizzy Next, Then Hallahan.

Since then there have been no long streaks of victories, Brooklyn, defeated in the first game at Sportsman's Park, won the second, ending the Cards' stand at home. On the road the Redbirds won the first and third games of a series at Boston, did the same thing at the Polo Grounds and then lost to the Dodgers and followed with a victory.

Since they left Chicago the Cardinals have won six series and broken even in two abbreviated two-game sets, the Dodgers having the honor of being the only team to hold the Frisch forces ever since the Big Push started.

And now, if weather doesn't interfere, the road should be sufficiently smooth to expect another long winning streak. Dizzy Dean will face the Phils tomorrow afternoon in the delayed opening game of a series curtailed to two by rain, with Bill Hallahan slated to work Monday. Then three games at Cincinnati, after which the going will be a bit rougher as the Redbirds engage the tough Pirates in four

U. S. Soccer Team Opposes Italians In Title Tourney

By the Associated Press.

ROME, May 26.

CHAMPIONS all, 16 all-star teams from North and South America and Europe begin play tomorrow in the world soccer championships.

Three teams have come from across the Atlantic to do battle with the pick of the Continent —United States, Argentina and Brazil.

The American eleven already has proved its mettle with a 4-2 victory over Mexico in an elimination game Thursday and meets Italy in a stern test here as a feature of the opening round.

Argentina has defeated Chile in an elimination match in South America and meets Sweden, conqueror of Lithuania and Esthonia in the trials.

The United States-Italy game is expected to tax the huge National Stadium to capacity. The Italian team is rated one of the best on the Continent and is favored to defeat the rugged American side.

Reports from other capitals indicate capacity crowds will be on hand for all the opening matches.

Miss Babcock Is Eliminated in French Net Meet

PARIS, May 26.—Another powerful American threat, Caroline Babcock, member of the American Wightman Cup team, was eliminated from the French hard court tennis championship at the Roland Garros Stadium today. Miss Babcock went down to defeat before Fraulein Marie Louise Horn of Germany, 4—6, 1—6, in a third round match.

Dorothy Andrus of Stamford, Conn., was another American victim, Miss Andrus falling before Mme. Suzanne Mathieu, ranking Frenchwoman, 7—9, 4—6, in the second round.

Americans fared better in the mixed doubles, Josephine Cruickshank, fifth ranking United States player, and Baron Beta von Kehrling of Hungary conquering Nancy Lyle and Charles Hare of England, 9—7, 6—4, in the second round. Wilmer Hines, former North Carolina collegian, and Lucia Valerio of Italy vanquished the French team of Suzanne Barbier and Bernard, 6—3, 6—4, in the same round.

By Gayle Talbot

Associated Press Sports Writer.

PRESTWICK, Scotland, May 26.—Literally blinding his opponent with the greatest exhibition of competitive golf ever shot in the championship, W. Lawson Little, 23-year-old Pacific Coast husky, today overwhelmed hapless Jimmy Wallace, Scottish carpenter, 14 and 13, to win the British amateur title. He was the third native American to win the British championship.

The gallery of upwards of 12,000, which swarmed after the match hopeful of victory for their native idol, gave the square-shouldered American one of the greatest ovations ever accorded a golfer in this country.

Takes 12 Up Lead.

For the rest of their lives, every man, woman and child who watched the long-hitting Little turn up this strenuous seaside course under most trying conditions will remember the invader's red-hot 66 to be 12 up at the end of the morning round and his three under par score for the concluding five holes.

When the new champion and Wallace returned from the twenty-third hole, where the slaughter ended, a solid lane of cheering Scots made a triumphant pathway to the clubhouse for the victor and the vanquished. There the spectators remained patiently for another look at Little, who ducked into the clubhouse to change his clothes for presentation of the trophy.

A New Champion to Scots.

Regardless of their disappointment over Wallace's crushing defeat, the natives of the land of heather love a great golfer and when Little made a charming speech in accepting the trophy, they interrupted him after every sentence with a booming cheer.

Throughout the sensational, record-cracking match, Little's face was a mask of determination but he smiled when the cup was presented to him by the venerable Marquis Ailsa, acting for the Prince of Wales.

As far as 12,000 Scots are concerned, Little now supplants Bobby Jones and the veteran Harry Vardon as the world's greatest golfer. They saw him shoot 23 holes in eight under par, including seven birdies and an eagle for a new all-time record for this classic tournament.

Little's 66 in the morning shattered the professional course record of 69 hung up by MacDonald Smith and smashed the amateur standard of 71 set by E. Blackwell. That sizzling round also created a new low for championship rounds.

Only once in what was to have been a 36-hole match did Little yield to par. The lapse occurred at the sixth hole where he required two putts from six feet for a 5. Otherwise he was even with par or under regulation figures.

The chunky Californian sent the PHILADELPHIA, May 27.—Pennsylvania today won the Adams Cup for varsity eights, feature of the annual American Henley Regatta, by one and a quarter lengths. Navy was second and Harvard third.

The Navy junior varsity eight won the New England challenge cup, beating the Harvard crew by two-thirds of a length, with Pennsylvania only 10 feet back of the Crimson.

The Pennsylvania freshmen eight defeated the Harvard yearlings which included Franklin Roosevelt Jr., by three-quarters of a length. Navy was third.

The Pennsylvania varsity 150-pound crew won the Joseph Wright challenge cup, beating Princeton by three-quarters of a length and the rest of the field that included Columbia, Navy and Cornell.

ROSS MEETS M'LARNIN FOR WELTERWEIGHT TITLE TOMORROW

COAST FIGHTER TO OUTWEIGH CHICAGO BOY SEVEN POUNDS

SPECULATORS SELLING $10 TICKETS FOR $30; 70,000 EXPECTED

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 26.

BARNEY ROSS, lightweight champion who challenges Jimmy McLarnin for the welterweight championship Monday night, went through his final heavy workout in a local gym today. He boxed three rounds with Al Cassimini and exercised five more punching the bag, skipping rope and shadow boxing.

He came into New York from his training camp at Ferndale yesterday.

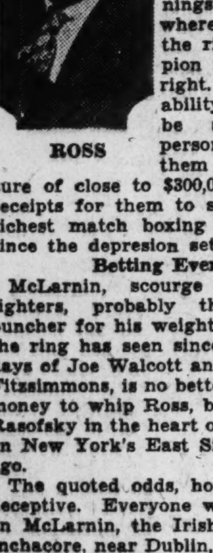
McLarnin, who will stay in Atlantic City until tomorrow, took no chances of receiving a last minute injury and was content with three rounds of shadow boxing in his training camp. He is close to the 145-pound weight he has agreed to make by noon Monday or forfeit $10,000.

The free milk fund for babies, promoting the show, announced today that indications of a sellout house of 70,000 were so great that 5000 seats at $1 had been squeezed into the more distance spaces of the Madison Square Garden bowl on Long Island to give everyone a chance to be there.

The cheapest tickets on sale previously were $2 with the best seats priced at $10. Speculators were selling the latter freely at $30 each today.

NEW YORK, May 26.—The Saga of two Horatio Alger boys comes down to a final chapter in the ring of the Madison Square Garden bowl on Long Island Monday night.

But for one of them—smiling, sleepy-eyed Jimmy McLarnin or glittering little Barney Ross—there must be the unreality of the unhappy ending so foreign to the fiction plots of boyhood's favorite author.



ROSS

They fight 15 rounds for the welterweight championship of the world, these two youngsters who have battled up from the most meager beginnings to a place where each enters the ring a champion in his own right. In all probability there will be some 65,000 persons cheering them on, a treasure of close to $300,000 in gate receipts for them to share in the richest match boxing has known since the depression set in.

Betting Even.

McLarnin, scourge of Jewish fighters, probably the greatest puncher for his weight and inches the ring has seen since the fabled days of Joe Walcott and Ruby Bob Fitzsimmons, is no better than even money to whip Ross, born Barnett Rasofsky in the heart of the ghetto on New York's East Side 25 years ago.

The quoted odds, however, are deceptive. Everyone wants to bet on McLarnin, the Irishman from Inchacore, near Dublin, but respect for the lightweight champion is so great that even money is the best offered. At that price very few are willing to back the clever, swift, game little fellow who must concede McLarnin nearly 10 pounds and try to survive the deadly fire that beat down Al Singer, Ruby Goldstein, Sid Terris, Kid Kaplan, Joey Sangor, Jackie Fields, and even the great Benny Leonard among Ross' Jewish brethren.

Ross expects to weigh in tomorrow noon at 138 pounds. McLarnin must scale 145 or forfeit $10,000.

With four years of age in his favor, Ross plans to storm in on McLarnin from the opening bell, depending on his aggressiveness and incessant driving with a lightening left hand to keep the Irishman covering, too busy to nail the fast moving target with either of his deadly hands.

McLarnin Punching Hard.

McLarnin has slowed up somewhat, but has never punched harder than in his training drills at Atlantic City. He has caught these dazzling fellows before and he expects to drill Ross before the match has gone half a dozen rounds.

"I've found that the way to fight the swift ones is to move them into a corner, where speed doesn't count, and then let them have it with both hands," he says. "It works a great deal of the time."

Both warriors are in razor sharp condition, and McLarnin appears to have held all his strength in his battle with a weight that will have come back to 148 or 149 pounds by the time he enters the ring about 8:45 p. m., Eastern standard time. Ross' heft will change no more than a few ounces after the weighing in.

If Ross beats McLarnin he will be the first lightweight champion ever to hold the welterweight title at the same time. Benny Leonard lost on a foul to Jack Britton the only time it was ever tried before.

The fight will not be broadcast.

LAWSON LITTLE.

Lawson Little, son of a United States Army surgeon, learned his golf in China. On a golf course in Tientsin, where his father was stationed at the time, Lawson surprised onlookers by driving across bunkers from the tee which bisected the fairways, 200 to 250 yards away.

They were designed primarily, on the improvised Chinese links, as hazards for second shots when the old gutta percha ball was used. They still serve the same purpose for the shorter hitters.

Little's father enjoyed his son's exploits and encouraged him in his long driving, especially when officers of the British Army were present.

Lawson returned to this country with his father and continued his golf education in various army posts where the elder Little was stationed, but when the father was transferred to the Presidio in California, Lawson began serious tournament competition.

He made golf history at Pebble Beach in the 1929 United States amateur championship when he defeated Johnny Goodman in the afternoon of the day that Goodman eliminated Bobby Jones in one of the most startling upsets in the history of the tournament.

Little attracted attention in that event also with his long shots over inlets of the Pacific Ocean which cut into the course.

Last summer at Kenwood, Cincinnati, in the amateur, Little defeated Maurice McCarthy and Ross Somerville, Canadian, defending champion but lost to George Dunal who ultimately won the title.

Little is a stocky chap and is such a slow, deliberate player that he is annoying to his opponents, although his slowness is not intended for that purpose.

Little has been a resident of San Francisco off and on for several years but is not well known except to his immediate golfing fraternity.

The husky black-haired youngster is slated to rub elbows with the Mayor and other civic authorities when he returns here to join his Col. Little has been transferred Col. Little has been transferred back to the Presidio from Fort Warren, Wyo.

His home club while here was the Presidio course, constructed for the officers of the Ninth Corps area but open also to a limited civilian membership.

At Stanford University, where he is a junior majoring in economics, Little is known as a quiet youth. His intimate friends mostly are students, who like himself, find their recreation on the campus golf course. He is captain of the Stanford golf team.

Eddie Twiggs, Stanford coach, held Little out of intercollegiate competition last fall and winter so he has two years more to play. He did not report for the current spring quarter, in order to devote his time to practice for the matches abroad.

In the Western amateur at Portland, Ore., several years ago, he lost a first round match to Chick Evans of Chicago, but Evans paid him the compliment of: "That boy is a comer."

He was born in Newport, R. I., and will be 24 years old next June 24.

HOROMETER LOSES FIRST TIME IN EIGHT STARTS

TORONTO, May 26.—Horometer, Ontario-bred racer which won the King's Plate at Woodbine last Saturday, today lost his first race in eight starts as he finished second in the Hendrie Memorial handicap closing the spring meeting.

gallery wild at the 505-yard third hole in the morning. He belted two healthy wood shots to put the ball 15 feet past the cup and then sank the putt for a brilliant eagle 3, demoralizing the carpenter, who snared a birdie.

Little's Long Drives.

Little again emphasized his driving power at the 288-yard sixteenth where he poled out a lone one to the edge of the green and followed this up by laying his approach stone dead.

After the match was over, Little expressed regret that it didn't last longer, and well he might.

There was a jubilant and dramatic scene around the clubhouse after the presentation when Little went out to the eighteenth green with one of the club's oldest members and engaged in a putting contest with a century-old wooden putter. He won hands down and several thousand Scots, who still lingered around more than an hour after the match was concluded, cheered heartily.

Little gained the final by virtue of victories over the following opponents: R. W. Ripley of Banstead Downs; Lester Rankin of Sunningdale; Eric McRuvie of Scotland; Lionel Munn of Ireland; Gordon Peters of Glasgow, and T. A. Bourn of Sunningdale. Bourn was beaten in the 1933 final by the Hon. Michael Scott, who did not defend the title this year.

While Little was scorching the course, Johnny Goodman, American open champion, who was put out in the fifth round by Leslie Garnett, looked after the transportation of Little's baggage to Liverpool, from where the American Walker Cup players left tonight on the S. S. Laconia on their homeward journey.

Following the precedent established by Bobby Jones in 1930, when he won the championship, Little personally is bringing home the trophy. Jess Sweetser, who was the first native American to win the title, had the cup sent over after him.

SIX MORE AUTO DRIVERS QUALIFY AT INDIANAPOLIS

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 26.—Despite repeated requests of track officials, drivers dallied today and time trials lagged for the Memorial day 500-mile race at the Indianapolis motor speedway.

W. D. Edenburn, American Automobile Association steward in charge of the race, that never before have the drivers been so dilatory as they have been this year.

Edenburn warned that no qualification runs would be permitted after sundown Monday. The track will be open for time trials from 1 p. m. Sunday until sundown. The time for starting trial spins Monday still is undetermined.

Drivers out for tuning up spins today seemed to drive a bit cautiously over that stretch where Pete Kreis, the Knoxville (Tenn.) pilot, and his mechanician, Bob Hahn of Chico, Cal., were killed yesterday and where later Babe Stapp of Los Angeles grazed a wall, slightly damaging his machine.

The spot seemed destined to cause trouble for again today it was the scene of a skid by Verne Orenduff of Paterson, N. J. The driver brought his machine to a stop without disaster.

The thirty-three cars that make the best aimes in the qualifying trials will be permitted to start the race next Wednesday. Prior to today, 16 had met the qualifying test—a 25-mile run at an average speed of 100 miles per hour or better.

Race enthusiasts began to arrive for the annual classic. A car from Portsmouth, O., pulled up outside the speedway gates and parked in the coveted place that will permit the occupants to be first into the grounds on race day.

In the car were thre young men who gave their names as Raymond Rooley, J. B. Russell and "Red" Gardner, all of Portsmouth. They said it was their sixth year to join the early lineup at the track. Last year they were fourth in line. Their car was equipped with a radio and beds.

Lou Moore of Los Angeles was the first driver to qualify today. He qualified with an average of 113.442 miles per hour.

A short time later Cliff Bergere of Los Angeles earned a place in the starting lineup by turning the 10 qualifying laps at a speed of 115.203 miles per hour.

Evans, piloting one of two oil-burning engines in the classic, averaged 102.414 miles per hour, the fastest time ever made by a car of its type on the local course.

'One-Hoss' Stable Puts One Over in Fairmount Opener

"Ever been ruled off?" was a routine question asked of Dunbar when he paid his owner-trainer license fee.

"No, but I would be better off if I had been ruled off 20 years ago," the veteran answered with a laugh.

But even a one-hoss stable has its moments. Mokan won the third race on the opening-day program and paid $19 to $2.

Armour Is Jittery.

Tommy Armour has the "yips." He says so. Which means that this famous golfer who has won the U. S. Open, the British Open and the St. Louis Open, among many other championships, gets an attack of nerves on the greens which spoils his putting touch. This strange ailment, says Tommy, is probably the result of 15 years of highly competitive golf resulting in a tangling of the nerves and destroying the golfer's smooth coordination in putting.

"When you line up a putt, you feel, just as you are about to hit the ball, as though someone had cracked you right at the base of your skull with a club and all the nerves in your body feel as though they are trying to jump out of your ears," said Tommy, "the result is an involuntary jerk of your muscles, a stabbed and missed putt.

"Bobby Jones was in the same fix at Augusta. He used to follow me around quite a bit in tournament play and last summer in the National Open at Chicago, he noticed me jumping at putts and remarked, 'Why, Tommy, you are pulling up on all your putts. Why don't you stroke the ball smoothly?'

"I told him that I had reached the point where I couldn't do it which seemed to puzzle Bobby.

Jones and Hagen Afflicted.

"After the Augusta tournament I asked him if the symptoms I described were not present in himself and he said 'exactly.' And I told Bobby that he had the 'yips' and the best thing he could do would be to play no tournament golf, for once that disease gets you there's no shaking it.

"Walter Hagen is another afflicted with the trouble. Both Walter and myself are just as long or longer off the tee than we ever were and our iron play is good, but the putting touch is gone.

"Anyway there's too much emphasis on putting. I said it once and repeat it that putting destroyed the greatest competitive game of all, golf.

"There is an old woman in Sidney, Australia, nearly 80 years old, who has never played a regular round of golf yet all the greatest stars in the world who go to Australia are pitted against her on a putting clock and she invariably wins. Now when such a thing can happen there's something wrong.

Count Each Putt Half Stroke.

"A man spends years developing his drive and approach shots. Yet on a par four hole he can hit two perfect shots onto the green, an opponent can hit three indifferent shots to reach the same destination and halve the hole by running down a long putt, or perhaps winning it if the good golfer should happen to take three putts. The element of luck enters too strongly into putting.

"But the only suggestion I have ever heard to cure the trouble was from Bernard Darwin, son of the famous naturalist and a prominent English golfer, who said that a putt should count for half a stroke. This naturally sounds at first that it would still be equal for everybody, but consider what would happen: A good golfer is on the green in two; a poor one is in a trap in two. He blasts out onto the putting surface in three and runs down a long putt. Score 3½, which the good golfer can tie, even if he takes three putts, and can win the hole with the conventional two putts."

Armour is decidedly against the proposal to standardize the teaching of golf by professionals. He thinks the man who has developed the best system of instruction should be paid a premium, which would not be the case if all professionals taught the same system.

Teach by the Book.

"There are too many professionals who know too little about golf and the teaching of the game," he said. "A great many of them have stock answers to questions by their pupils, such as 'you swayed when you hit that one,' or 'keep your eye on the ball.' Now in order to justify his existence, this kind of professional tries to impress upon the pupil that golf is an exceedingly difficult game, that you have to do thus and such with your hands, arms, feet, head, eyes, nose and mouth to play properly and forgets the fact completely that in order to play golf well you must some time or other learn to hit the ball."

A native of Scotland, Armour thinks the eclipse of British golfers by Americans is due to the lack of one outstanding player in the British Isles to set an example.

"Good golf is a matter of example," he said. "Wherever you see a country with a few really great golfers you will always see numerous stars develop. Bobby Jones' example in this country probably resulted in the many good players developed here in recent years. There is nobody in Britain, at present, who is a truly great golfer."

Tommy is now connected with the Medinah Country Club in Chicago. He was here for an exhibition Friday. Paired with Johnny Manion, Sunset, he lost to Orville White, Meadowbrook, and Jim Fogertey, Osage, one down.

Lost—A Golf Bag.

Mrs. Harold H. Scott, member of the Norwood Hills golf team, lost her golf bag at Normandie Friday when a caddie put it in the wrong automobile. The women's district team play is scheduled for Normandie Monday and Mrs. Scott asks whoever has the bag to please either bring it to Normandie or to let her know so she may get it.

Stanford Wins I. C. 4-A Track Meet for Fourth Time

Stanford's short-putter, Lyman shared the day's record-breaking laurels with Kiesel, who equaled two meet marks and lowered another with two marvelous performances on a track still heavy from the effects of yesterday's downpour.

Despite a poor start, Kiesel rushed to the front quickly in the 100-meter final, broke the tape three yards in front of John McManus of Boston College, with Dick Hardy of Cornell, the defending champion, fourth, and equaled the record of 10.6 seconds, made in last year's first whirl at the metric distance. Kiesel also was credited with equaling Frank Wyckoff's meet mark of 9.6 seconds at the 100-yard mark. The Californian came back in the 200 with another great burst of speed, spread-eagling his opposition as he finished five yards in front of Bob Kane of Cornell, in 20.9 seconds, cutting two-fifths of a second off the meet record.

Lyman twice broke his own I. C. A. A. A. A. record in the shotput, besides surpassing the well-battered listed world record, as in quick succession he tossed the 16-pound ball to distances of 52 feet 11⅝ inches, and then on his final throw, 53 feet 2¾ inches. This was still shy of Jack Torrance's unofficial world's mark of 55 feet 1½ inches, made in the Drake relays this year, but it wiped out the Stanford star's 1933 high mark of 52 feet 8½ inches.

Bonthron repeated his 1933 "double" in the 800 and 1500 meter runs. Coming from behind with a characteristic rush in each event, Bonthron timed his "kick" just well enough to overhaul the flying Gene Venzke, Pennsylvania sophomore, in the last few strides of the 1500 meters and win by a yard in 3 minutes 56 seconds.

ROCK SPRINGS TO OPEN TITLE PLAY AGAINST ADAMS

The elimination series for the grade school baseball championship and the Post-Dispatch trophy and medals begins tomorrow. Rock Springs, winner in Group C, meets Adams, leader in Group B, on diamond No. 12 at Forest Park.

Both Rock Springs and Adams went through their regular schedule without meeting defeat, each scoring five straight victories so tomorrow's contest will find both teams striving to keep their slates clean.

Blow won the right to play in the semifinals by going through a season with five straight victories. Laclede met defeat only once. This game also is scheduled on diamond No. 12 at Forest Park.

The third game in the semifinals is slated Thursday when Clay, survivor in Group D, meets the winner of the Rock Springs-Adams game. This game will be played on diamond No. 1 at Sherman Park.

The finals will be played next week.

BURNING UP WINS "INAUGURAL" BEFORE 10,000 AT FAIRMOUNT

The track appeared to be in first-class condition and the time made in the handicap indicated that it was truly fast. Burning Up went over the six furlongs in 1:11 4-5, which is three-fifths of a second slower than Gay World's track record. The first quarter was run in 22 4-5 seconds, thanks to Malolo's burst of speed.

Reno Wins Two Straight.

Reno again displayed fine horsemanship in taking advantage of a very slight opening at the head of the stretch to come through and win with Mokan in the third. Had the two leaders, Venarock and Wigrose, hugged the rail at the stretch turn, Mokan would surely have lost the race, for he apparently did not have enough run in him to go around on the outside. With scarcely enough room to squeeze through without scraping the fence, Reno took the chance and won the race, outlasting Wigrose by a length.

It is just possible that if Jockey Manifold had a chance to ride the fourth race all over again he would try to put more daylight between his horse, Battling Knight, and the rest of the field than he did yesterday. Getting off on top at the rise of the barrier, Manifold appeared content with merely keeping his horse one length in front of Gulfelano. That was well enough for half a mile, but in the meantime Jockey W. Lowe was bringing Justice B. up on the outside and in the last sixteenth it was Justice B. and not Gulfelano that Manifold had to worry about. But he started to do his worrying a little too late and Justice B. was the winner.

J. Dyer's second winning mount was Thistle Lucy, which finished a length and a half in front of Fayette Prince in winning the sixth race. Preferred, coming from far back, was third. Dyer had his troubles getting Thistle Lucy down in front at the finish, for Fayette Prince stole the lead at the turn and looked for a moment like the winner. Lucy still had a good run in her and Dyer got it out of her. The others were not factors. The betting was evenly spread over the field of seven in this race and the winner paid $7.20.

Who Win Wins.

Who Win? Why, Who Win win. At least he won the seventh race, coming up in close racing quarters between Abe Furst, the pacemaker, and Wild Transit to take this most exciting race of the day. The favorite, again, was far back, this time Our Sandy. Abe Furst had a slight advantage throughout the mile race, until the leaders reached the sixteenth pole when both Who Win and Wild Transit took a run at him, Wild Transit on the outside. The latter was moving fast and might have won had he made his bid earlier. Who Win paid $7.74.

Pharatime to Run Tomorrow.

Tomorrow's program will be featured by another six-furlong sprint, in which Joe Cattarinich's Pharatime will make his local debut. It is expected that this race, in which six will start, will lie largely between "Butsy" Hernandez's Captain Joy and Pharatime. Captain Joy will have to carry 115 pounds, as compared with Pharatime's 105.

The two-year-olds, those gazelle-like animals that capture the fancy of the women fans, again will open the progam with a four and one-half furlong sprint. Three of these youngsters are recent winners: Jacqueline D., Margie's Doll and Annie N. Specs, one of the entries in this race, was once the property of C. V. Whitney and now is racing for E. K. Bryson.

The Limit.

WHEN big league rosters reach the limit
The baseball owners have to trim it,
And those who are the limit go
As for the majors they're too slow.

And some must fall outside the fold
Because they have become too old;
The bell for others will be rung
Because, alas, they are too young.

And so in baseball's ebb and flow,
We see the players come and go;
The old still claim they have their stuff,
The youngsters say they're old enough.

Amos Rusie, at one time the greatest of them all, is assistant groundkeeper at the Polo Grounds in New York. Amos now prepares the pitching box for other stars to shine in.

To hear the music lovers titter!

The way it looks now there will be more 20 home-run hitters than 20-game pitchers if the rabbit doesn't crack under the strain.

Is Casey pointing the championship of the Grapefruit League?

Bill Tilden is of the opinion that the United States Davis Cup team hasn't got a chance. And perhaps never will have as long as Bill continues to spread his net for the unwary amateur.

Kay Francis the movie star was injured while putting her dachshund out. Putting out a dachshund is a man's job. At best it is a long-drawn out affair and some people have been willing to call it a day after getting the docksie half way out.

A Stern Chase.

We recall the case of our own pet dachshund, Henry W. Longfellow. Perhaps you have heard us speak of him. Some dog, Henry! One day he conceived the idea of chasing his tail within the confined limits of an efficiency apartment. He didn't have a dog's chance, so we took him out to a circular dog track where greyhounds were wont to pursue the electrified rabbit. Henry never did catch up with his tail as the Sheriff closed the track just as he was on the point of making both ends meet.

Charley Gelbert and Rabbit Maranville with only two sound legs between them are putting up a

"Mack Hurler Cuts Thumb On Bottle And Leaves For Home."

Again the menace of the deadly pop bottle. There ought to be a law.

See where a frog named "General Grant" won the championship of Calavras County for the standing broad jump. "Budweiser," the record holder which tried to pull a comeback, wasn't his old self by several per cent.

"How Long" is the name of a San Francisco Chinaman.—Believe it or not. We take it, however, that his friends call him Long for short.

And the pity of it is that when Amos was setting the league afire he didn't get as much as they pay a first year rookie these days.

280 Miniature Yachts to Sail Over Jefferson Lake Course in Regatta of St. Louis Schools

By Harold Tuthill.

"Sailing, sailing, over the bounding main," or, to be more precise over Jefferson Lake in Forest Park will be 280 miniature yachts next Wednesday. The event is the third annual model yacht regatta of the St. Louis Public Schools and will start at 8:30 a. m.

Competition will be in three classes for sailing craft only. In the "S" group are boats under 20 inches in length with not more than 200 square inches of sail and the hull may be hollowed out or solid; in the "M" class the boats must be between 20 and 30 inches, not more than 350 square inches of canvas and the hull must be hollow. Only the single-masted sloop type of yachts may be entered in these classes.

Larger Boats.

Larger boats will race in the "U"-"R" division. The hull must be between 30 and 48 inches long and must be hollow. The boat may be either a schooner or a sloop and may carry either a schooner or Marconi rig.

All the yachts are the products of their skippers' hands and have been constructed under the supervision of instructors in the Elementary Manual Arts departments. Boats purchased from commercial houses or built by commercial manufacturers or professional craftsmen are barred.

With the exception of the "S" type, the skipper may have an assistant, called his mate, to help him sail his craft. The mate shall be like the skipper, a school boy, because fathers and relatives of the skippers are prohibited from rendering advice on the proper tack and coaching by any except the skipper and mate will disqualify the entrant.

The racing course for the "S" class will be from the east to the west bank. For those in the larger classes, the boats will start from the north bank, sail to the south and return. Obviously at some stages of the race the wind is going to blow directly into the boats and that is when a skipper's ingenuity is brought into play. He must set his boat so as to realize the greatest pushing power on a recognized tack and still be able to keep his craft from heading into shore too often.

When a boat bumps into the shore, the skipper is permitted to re-set the course, but he must not shove, push or propel his craft. Using sticks to bring his craft in, or to shove off, is very much taboo and will lead to disqualification.

Determining Winners.

The winners will be determined on the preliminaries and the finals. If a boat secures points in the preliminaries those will be added to the ones gained in the finals and the skipper whose craft totals the greatest number of points will be awarded a trophy.

Miscellaneous rules which affect the boys are those pertaining to fouls, which can disqualify the offender. A foul shall be committed when a boat bumps into or becomes entangled with another, except when the skippers of the boats affected agree to continue sailing. If the skipper of the offended boat chooses he may race his craft in another heat.

Also it is a foul to interfere with oncoming craft when the skipper is re-setting his tack from shore. Should interference occur through the carelessness of any craft other than those entered in the race, the yacht against which the offense is committed shall be entitled to enter in the succeeding heat of that race. Should the offense be made in the final, the race shall be run over, except if the offense is committed by a craft representing the same school or Manual Arts Center. In that case the race shall continue. This is meant to affect a boy who is floating a boat and not in the race.

For the information of those yachtsmen who want to see the miniatures go bounding over the lake, the racing course on Jefferson Lake is adjacent to and north of Oakland avenue, a block west of Barnes Hospital.

Major League All-Star Game To Be Held in New York July 10

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 25.—The annual all-star game between the outstanding players of the American and National Leagues today was set for July 10 at the Polo Grounds as K. M. Landis, Baseball Commissioner, and the League presidents, John Heydler and William Harridge, decided to alternate the game each year in the future between the two circuits.

Several changes in handling the contest, which turned out to be a tremendous success when sponsored in Chicago by a newspaper last year, were decided upon at the meeting of the baseball officials.

A committee of sports writers from the New York chapter of the Baseball Writers' Association will handle the balloting contest to determine the makeup of the two teams. The American League won the first of the series, 4 to 2.

The Polo Grounds will serve as the home club for the National League just as the White Sox ball park in Chicago served as the home grounds for the American League players last year. In the future the leagues will alternate in choosing home grounds in whatever cities are awarded the contest. President Harridge won the choice of the site with the toss of a coin last year.

Starting time for the game was set at 12:30 p. m., Eastern standard time, and if rain should force a postponement, the match will go over to the morning of July 11, starting at 10 a. m.

Managers and coaches of the two teams will be picked by the league heads, but the lineups will be chosen by vote of the fans conducted by newspapers throughout the country. The top 20 in each league after the ballots are all in will make up the squads from which the managers will choose the starting nines.

A memorial to John J. McGraw, former manager of the Giants and leader of the National League team in the first game, will be unveiled at the Polo Grounds before the start of the contest. The date, July 10, is just 32 weeks from the day McGraw signed his first managerial contract with the Giants.

Hancock to Play Central.

The Hancock High School baseball team will meet the Central High nine tomorrow afternoon at the Public School Stadium. Hancock students plan to attend the game in a body.

Something Wrong In Fight Game Or Fish Business

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, May 26.

SOMETHING is wrong. It may be the fight game and then again it may be the fish business. It may even be King Levinsky, the personality kid.

Mrs. Lena Levy, the fish boy's manager, says it's the chin belting business which ain't what it used to be.

The Lakeside Fish & Oyster Co. would like to collect a little bill of $947.98 from the Kingfish.

"The King and I have lost money in the last few years," she snapped when brought before the bar in Superior Court. "The game ain't what it used to be."

33 Drivers Are Entered in Races At Ramona Today

With 14 speed car pilots and 12 white and seven Negro stock car drivers, a total of 33 entries has been received for this afternoon's program at the Ramona Speedway. Late yesterday a 10-lap stock car contest for white drivers was added to the card, bringing the total of events to nine, after half a dozen stock car owners had objected to entering the reverse gear feature, in which the machines are driven backward, instead of forward. There will be at least six in the reverse race, however, the management announced.

A last minute entry was that of Tommy Booker, formerly of Indianapolis, who will drive for the first time since his crack up, last season when he ploughed through the fence at Ramona. The program:

Three 10-lap prelims, the first beginning at 2:30 o'clock, for the four pilots registering fastest time in the forenoon qualifying trials; a 10-lap stock car contest for Negro drivers; a two-lap reverse gear number for white stock car pilots; a 10-lay consolation for non-money winners in the speed car preliminaries; a five-lap match race for the two-speed car pilots registering fastest time in the qualifying trials; a 10-lap stock car event for white drivers; and a 35-lap feature grind for the three winners in each of the three speed car prelims and the first money winner in the consolation.

CUBS ARE SECOND AFTER DEFEATING BRAVES, 6 TO 4

BOSTON, May 26.—Singles by Pinch Hitter Phelps and by Jurges, each with the bases loaded in the eighth, and each scoring two runs, gave the Cubs four runs and enabled them to beat the Braves 6 to 4 in the first game of the series. The victory put the Cubs in second place in the National League race, dropping the Cardinals to third.

Galan's double in the sixth, followed by Klein's single and Pinch-Hitter Babe Herman's double, gave the Cubs their first two runs off Cantwell, who further weakened in the eighth. Doubles by Spohrer and Berger, a Lee single and two passes by Warneke and a fielder's choice play in the fifth, gave Boston its four runs.

games in three days at Pittsburgh.

Dizzy Dean said tonight that he was eager to mix with the Phils here. Dizzy wants to make Jimmy Wilson moan. Jim and Dizzy were great pals when both were in St. Louis uniforms, and that only makes the rivalry keener.

"My arm is stronger now," Dizzy said. "Much better than it was in New York."

"How about that two-man strike?" He was asked.

"Forget it," was the come-back. "Paul and I are three-strike men, not a two-man strike. Watch us mow down the enemy. I'll take 'em tomorrow and the only thing that makes Paul feel bad is that he may not get a chance in this series. But he'll take the Reds. One victory is just like another, I keep telling him. But he's like me. He wants to pitch every day. Won't we look good in that world series? Me and Paul ought to be able to win a world series all by ourselves."

Breadon Has Had No Word.

Sam Breadon, president of the Cardinals said he had received no word from Manager Frisch nor from the Deans relative to players' reported demand for more money.

"I guess it was just Diz popping off" he said.

Asked what he would do in the event the players threatened a strike, Breadon said he would cross that bridge when he came to it.

WESTERN WINS PREP MEET, 4TH IN FOUR YEARS; BLIVES STARS

Cuts and bruises failed to discourage Milton Blives of Western Military Academy and he won three firsts, a third and a fourth for a total of 18 points yesterday afternoon, enabling his school to win the ninth annual Preparatory League track championship for the fourth consecutive year. Western scored 48 points, with McBride nosing out C. B. C. for second by one-half point, 37-36½. St. Louis U. High was fourth with 32½.

In the first race, the 120-yard high hurdles, Blives was favored. The race started. Blives leading. At the fourth hurdle he lost his stride and hit the barrier, stumbling, but recovered to keep his lead. The sixth timber loomed up, Blives again stumbled, and this time fell. He suffered numerous small cuts on his legs. He did not place. C. B. C. took the first two places and the lead over Western.

Third in the Century.

The second event, the 100-yard dash, followed. Blives also was in this. He failed to get going in the century and placed third.

Western's hopes for its fourth straight Prep League victory seemed about gone. Blives had a rest in his track events as a teammate, Bob Cutler, won the mile event in the record-breaking time of 4 minutes 40 seconds. While Blives was "resting" between races, he took fourth place in the pole vault.

Paschal-Palumbo won the next event for McBride, the 440-yard dash and his school led, Western being third. While this event was held, Blives improved the 'shining moment' by winning the high jump and placing his team in a contending position for the team standing.

The 220-yard dash was next and again Blives failed to finish. After being in a contending position until the last 15 yards, he lost his footing and took another header into the dust, adding to his scratches and bruises.

He Wins in Low Hurdles.

The 220-yard low hurdles was next run off, and Blives sped over the low timbers in 27.7 seconds for his first and last track victory.

Blives' last event was the discus throw, which he won with a toss of 109 feet 8 inches. Thus, because he didn't mind a few spills and bruises, he scored 18 points and was the chief factor in leading his school to victory for the fourth time in the last four years.

Three other records were broken besides Cutler's record run in the mile. Jack O'Toole of C. B. C. vaulted 11 feet ½ inch to break the old mark by half an inch.

Diffley of McBride put the shot 46 feet ½ inch to better Varney's throw of 45 feet 6½ inches made in 1933. Henderson of Western tossed the javelin 159 feet 9 inches, beating out Wrobel of C. B. C. by 6 inches to win the javelin throw and set a new distance for that event.

Ross Sitting Pretty.

ON THE other hand, Ross has everythnig to gain and not a thing to lose. Even a knockout would not injure his standing, while a victory would put him in a class with the famous ring heroes of history and enhance his earning power tremendously.

Perhaps $75,000—if he gets it—will be a sufficient stake to justify McLarnin's risk. It won't be long now, with Jimmy, before he seeks the armchair and slippers, and it isn't certain that "gates" like the Ross fight is expected to produce will again be possible for him in his own class. The welterweights are washed up. No boxer in that division is capable of giving Jimmy a fight.

So McLarnin perhaps more wise than seems at first thought may be right in taking the cash and letting the credit go, from the economic standpoint.

But we'd rather be Barney Ross—is he sitting pretty!

N. B. A. Is Displeased.

THE National Boxing Association, through its president, E. A. Foster, has voiced official displeasure at the Ross-McLarnin match.

"These overweight and out-of-class matches are neither natural nor helpful. They breed distrust and serve no purpose except to make fans spend money," Mr. Foster commented recently. "If fighters would stay within class limits, there would be less criticism of boxing."

Possibly the N. B. A. head had in mind the last big fight in which a lightweight champion clashed with a welterweight king. That was in 1922 when Benny Leonard, still lightweight champion, and Jack Britton, welterweight titleholder, mingled in "one of those things" for the 147-pound title.

Benny was coming up, Britton was going down, and both liked the money—so they made a match. It was in the no-decision days, a time when it was easy for fighters to stall along and make a flash without anybody being hurt.

Leonard was to come in at 140 pounds and, as one writer put it, "nobody was to be hurt."

Benny Forgot His Lines.

But Leonard dropped Britton in the thirteenth round, whether accidentally or not isn't known. But apparently it wasn't the idea for Britton to be knocked out, so Benny rushed up to the champion, then on one knee, and took another poke at him—Benny, who in the ring always was as cool as a popsicle.

That disqualified Benny and saved the Britton bacon. Everyone's prestige was preserved and the money divided—to be eventually lost in the stock market, at Belmont Park or in some other parking place for all come-easy money.

But the fight didn't leave a good odor. Promoters since then figured they could get along without a repetition of the welterweight-lightweight inter-division championship match, until somebody discovered that McLarnin and Ross would make a "natural."

However, we do both the boys in tomorrow's match the justice to believe that they will give the fans a real run for their money. Besides, there's no no-decision exit for these principals.

He Deserves to Win.

IF Thomas Yawkey doesn't get results from that Boston Red Sox team, it will not be because he hasn't taken the elastic off his bank roll. On top of all his expenditure for talent during the winter, Yawkey has dug down again and bought Wesley Ferrell and Porter of the Cleveland club, giving up Seeds and Weiland as players in the deal—and lots of other "seeds" bearing Uncle Sam's stamp.

Ferrell is a gamble, but a worth while one. There is no reason to believe that this once great pitcher, who had only one bad season, should not regain the remarkable form of previous years and prove of great value. Ferrell is still young; and if his disposition in the past has been a trifle tart, it probably has been sweetened by this time.

Yawkey is gambling that Pitcher Ferrell will deliver; and if he does, there will be real reason to watch the Red Sox' smoke. With Grove rounding to shape and Ferrell pitching in anything like his form of two or three seasons ago, the Red Sox may be a pennant possibility.

Overlooked by All.

BECAUSE he has made every effort to rebuild a broken outfit, Yawkey deserves a favorable break. The remarkable part of the situation is that no American League club except the Red Sox has been willing to take a gamble on Ferrell.

He would have made Hornsby's team, if in form, and with Blaeholder and Hadley not yet doing their stuff, he would have supplied the needed pitching deficiency in a time of need.

Burleigh Grimes is another pitcher who ought to be worth a gamble for a team that needs immediate pitching relief. There isn't any doubt that Grimes can go at least five innings at top speed and he might go an occasional nine, with good rest.

SENATORS STOP RALLY IN NINTH BY WHITE SOX AND WIN, 9 TO 7

CHICAGO, May 26.—Washington staved off a late White Sox challenge to take the opening game of the series today, 9 to 7.

Alvin Crowder, in trouble after a fine start, fanned Evar Swanson with the tying run on base for the final out in the ninth.

Heinie Manush led the Senators' 13-hit attack off three White Sox pitchers with a double and three singles. Crowder, except for Bob Boken's homer, was in complete command until the eighth when, leading 8 to 2, he bogged down and the Sox scored four runs on two passes, two infield hits, Bluege's error and two infield outs.

HIGH QUEST TOSSES RIDER, SINGING WOOD WINS WITHERS

ROUSTABOUT RUNS SECOND; THIRD PLACE TO CHICKSTRAW

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 26.—The charm that Mrs. Dodge Sloane's Brookmeade Stable has held over the three-eyar-old turf division was broken today when Mrs. John Hay Whitney's Singing Wood, running over a rain-soaked track, won the fifty-ninth running of the Withers mile at Belmont Park.

High Quest, the 7 to 5 choice and winner of the Preakness, was entrusted with the task of adding the $20,000 stake to the stable's long string of victories, including the Kentucky and Florida derbies. The son of Sir Gallahad III stumbled as he left the barrier, however, tossing his jockey, Mack Garner, to the muddy track. The veteran rider was not injured.

With Bobby Jones, who rode High Quest in the Preakness, handling the reins, Singing Wood, winner of the $100,000 Belmont Futurity as a two-year-old, came from off the pace to take command rounding the turn and drive to victory.

One and one-half lengths back at the finish was another of the family's colts, C. V. Whitney's Roustabout, while another four lengths to the rear in third place trailed George D. Widener's Chicstraw. Mrs. Payne Whitney's First Minstrel, dated with Chicstraw as the chief contenders in the race, bowed a tendon and finished sixth in the field of eight.

The weather and track were far from ideal. The racing strip was muddy from rains of the last 36 hours, while additional showers fell at frequent intervals during the afternoon.

Despite the adverse elements, a crowd of 10,000 saw Singing Wood reel off the mile in the good time of 1:37 4-5, only two-fifths of a second slower than the record for the event hung up by the great Man O' War in 1920. The victory was worth $16,000 and boosted his earnings to $104,[illegible]. His backers and they were numerous, received 8 to 1.

Ten originally were clated to start but Mrs. Sloane scratched Cavalcade, winner of the Kentucky Derby, and Joseph E. Widener withdrew Peace Chance. Bob Smith, trainer of the Brookmeade stars, believed High Quest capable of handling the opposition and preferred not to take any chances on an off track with Cavalcade, which he is pointing for the American Derby at Washington Park June 2.

Back of the three leaders in order trailed Alex Gordon's Sir Thomas, Gentle Knight, First Minstrel and Identify.

The Whitney family dominated the program, winning four of the six races. In addition to the Withers, Mrs. John Hay Whitney accounted for the Charles L. Appleton Memorial Cup Steeplechase and its purse of $2900 with Rocky Run, an outsider. Mrs. Payne Whitney won the first event with Never Change and the four and one-half furlong dash for juveniles with the highly regarded Plateye.

Monde, under good handling, was kept close to the rail while racing forwardly from the start and, under strong pressure, outlasted Flying Don at the finish. GRANITE CITY WINS EAST SIDE TRACK CARNIVAL

POINT TOTALS.

SCHOOL.	Senior.	Junior.
Granite City	36	20
Edwardsville	29	12
East St. Louis	27	17
Wood River	21	8
Madison	16	26
Alton	10	1
Collinsville	8	27
Belleville	8	32

(Senior points were the only ones computed in final check to determine winner, as this was the first year for the junior division.)

Granite City today rests at ease after having successfully defended its Southwestern Illinois track title yesterday afternoon at Wood River, collecting a total of 36 points. Edwardsville was second with 29, while East St. Louis, the school picked to upset predictions, finished third with 27.

What gave Granite City their 1934 title, however, can be told in two words, Gallauer and Beeler. A two-man track team, if one ever existed. Steve Gallaue was good for three firsts for 15 points, while Claude Beeler accounted for a like number of points. Both were responsible for Granite's winning the 880-yard relay race and so between them rests the total of 35 points.

Beeler, in winning his three events, established two new records. The first being in the broad jump and the second in the 220-yard low hurdles.

In all, six new records were made in the meet. The most outstanding was in the 880-yard run. Eller of Wood River, after laying back for more than half the way, giving Karlonski of East St. Louis a long lead, stepped out in the last 100 yards to win handily in the new time of 2 minutes 5.6 seconds.

Trapshoot on Wednesday

The Gillespie, Ill., Gun Club, a mber of the Southern Illinois apshooting League, will hold a istered shoot on Wednesday, Memorial day, to which marksmen of St. Louis district have been ined. The event, which will be d both morning and afternoon, is ctioned by the American Trapoting Association.

Fishing Season Opens Wednesday.

WHEN Missouri's 1934 fishing season opens this week State conservation officials suggest that anglers have the following information pasted in their hats:

The season opens at sun-up, May 30.

All legal-size fish may be taken on hook and line.

Limits are: Bass, trout, channel cat, 10; crappie and white perch, 15; jack salmon, 5; goggle-eye, 20; not more than 25 game fish in possession daily.

Minimum length limits: Jack salmon and channel cat, 12 inches; drum, 9 inches; large and small mouth bass, 8 inches; crappie and calico bass, 6 inches; goggle-eye, 5 inches.

While channel catfish will be in season Decoration Day, the closed period on this fish will start June 1 with the opening of the squirrel shooting season.

License requirements: County, $1 permits holder to hunt and fish in own and adjoining counties; State $1 fishing or State $2.50 hunting and fishing license permits one to hunt or fish anywhere in the State. The non-resident season fishing license costs $3 while a $1 "trip" license permits one to fish anywhere in the State during a 15-day period.

Fishing Conditions Good.

All State Game and Fish officials, including Wilbur C. Buford, Commissioner, believe anglers will find fishing conditions throughout the State the best in many years. The opinion is based upon their personal observations while in the field, and upon the observations of veteran anglers who have been observing fishing conditions regularly in advance of the season's opening. While the State department's first fishing condition bulletin has not yet been released the game wardens who make up the reports for streams in their districts for compilation in the department's office in Jefferson City say that almost without exception the streams will show a bettered fishing condition.

From one stream in the St. Louis area which is not generally known as an outstanding fishing stream have come this spring many tales of good fishing. This is Bourbeuse River which crosses U. S. Highway No. 50 near Union. Early season campers and cottagers on this stream who have been fishing for rough fish and catfish in this stream have reported many catches of bass which, owing to the present ban, were returned to the water.

Artificial Lures Effective.

If rains do not come throughout the major fishing stream a ea anglers will find their artificial lures effective, fishermen say. Plugs and wet flies are considered best, although in some instances dry fly fishing may be justified. In the event of rains a few days before the season opens live bait fishing would be better recommended.

While the State Game and Fish Department is planning to give anglers every assistance in finding water which will prove productive to their efforts the department also wants all who go on stream or lake to know that the full force of game wardens will be on hand to check licenses, creel and length limits. Joe Green, chief of wardens, is directing his force of wardens and their special warden assistants to maintain full vigilance over the public waters of Missouri.

A supply of the map and folders issued by the State Game and Fish Department late last summer and which shows the principal fishing streams, and how they may be reached, are yet available, E. L. Preston, publicity director, says. These may be obtained without cost on request by individuals or tourist information bureaus. The State Highway Commission's weekly corrected highway conditions report also will be available for migrating anglers.

State Conservation officials say they would be interested in having anglers write their department and tell of their fishing luck and observations regarding enforcement conditions on the streams and lakes. These communications from sportsmen should be very valuable in checking up on general conditions and would be a guide to policy formulation from time to time.

Old 'Brown Stocking' Star Tells How Tebeau Found He Couldn't Scare Hurst

By W. J. McGoogan

Theodore Breitenstein, who was famous as the pitching half of the famous "pretzel battery" of the Browns in the last ten years of the nineteenth century with Heine Peitz as his catcher is now in charge of the locker room of the Forest Park pavilion and there in his little office in the southwest corner he talks of the glories of baseball in his day as he checks up on the towel and soap supplies for Forest Park golfers.

"We didn't think we were great pitchers in my day when we won 20 games a year and worked in only that many. Usually three pitchers were enough to carry a club through a 154-game schedule and usually the pitcher on his days off played in the outfield," Breitenstein related to his caller, Joseph "Biz" Kinney, whose announcements are familiar to sports fans in St. Louis, "and we didn't get relief every time the oppositions started to hit us; we just stayed in there and took it."

Kinney was himself something of an umpire in his younger days when he worked in the old Trolley League when Frank Sebastian's Orphan Boys made baseball popular out on the Gravois.

Old-Timers' Parade.

Barney Pelty, George Stone, Harry Niles, Bobby Wallace and other personages familiar to baseball fans of 25 and more years ago were paraded in review as these two old-timers spun their yarns but when they reached the name of Tim Hurst, the American League umpire, conversation for an hour turned on anecdotes of Tim's colorful career.

Tim, you will remember, probably made the most famous remark about an umpire's job when someone asked him how he could stand such work and he replied "Yes, it's tough, but you can't beat thim hours" (3 to 5 in the afternoon).

"But did you ever hear of the time the Browns went to Cleveland to play the old Blues when Pat Tebeau was managing the club?" Breitenstein asked. And, of course, nobody had so be related:

"The two clubs had just finished a series in St. Louis and there was only a couple of points separating us for a high position in the standing. There was a great crowd at the Cleveland Park. The ropes were stretched and the crowd surged into right field and left field. They took their baseball seriously.

"'Yes, Patrick!' replied Hurst, 'and I'm glad to see it.'

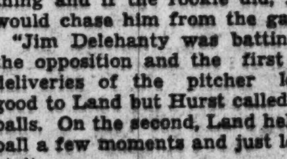
"'You see, all those people in right field?' asked Tebeau, well, they're South Cleveland rats. We want to win this game and if we don't get the close ones, I'll cut the ropes and let them at you.'

"The game hadn't progressed very far when a Cleveland batter hit a drive down the left field line, fair by nine feet. Hurst ran down to third base and shouted 'Foul ball' and as he did so turned to the Cleveland bench and shouted, 'cut the ropes, Patrick.'

"And another time in Cleveland Tebeau challenged one of Hurst's rulings and in the heated argument said 'I'll meet you at home plate after this game's over.'

"'I'll be there,' said Hurst.

"So the game went on and Pat forgot his malice. At the conclusion, he started from the field and as he did so heard his name called. He turned around to see Hurst standing on the home plate and Tim shouted 'Patrick, I'm still here'."



PATRICK, I'M STILL HERE!

FOUL BALL— CUT THE ROPES PATRICK.

Then Kinney chimed in with a story of the old Federal League days when Grover Land broke in as a catcher with the St. Louis Club.

Hurst was umpiring and Land had been warned that the old umpire would give a kid a raw decision to see if he would say anything and if the rookie did, Hurst would chase him from the game.

"Jim Delehanty was batting for the opposition and the first two deliveries of the pitcher looked good to Land but Hurst called them balls. On the second, Land held the ball a few moments and just looked at it.

"Hurst leaned over and inquired, 'what's the matter with the ball'?"

"'Nothing,' replied Land, 'but those two looked pretty good to me, Mr. Hurst, why even Delehanty's laughing at you.'

"And Delehanty, who loved to rib Hurst, laughed and said 'sure, they were perfect strikes,' the old man can't see any more.'

"Hurst just looked at Delehanty and whispered to Land, 'call for a pitchout.' Land did and the hurler pitched three balls at least three feet outside the plate. On each Hurst shouted 'Strike one, strike two, strike three. I saw all those now go back to the bench and sit down and worry about your own eye-sight'."

VESS CLUB AND KIRKWOOD MEET IN GAME TODAY

The Vess club will resume play on its home grounds this afternoon at National Softball Park, Kingshighway and Arsenal, after two weeks of traveling, facing the revamped Kirkwood A. C.

"Doc" Walsh, recently appointed manager, last week lead Kirkwood to its first victory of the season, turning back the leading Mount Vernon club, 8 to 3, to send Manager Jimmy McLaughlin's team into a tie with Edgemont for first place in the Missouri-Illinois Trolley League race.

Walsh has assigned Thompson to pitch for the Missourians, while Musil will probably work for the Vess. The Vess management will in augurate ladies' day, with all women being admitted free.

Edgemont tied with Mount Vernon for the lead, will take on the St. Louis Dairys of Belleville at Edgemont. Belleville has dropped its last two outs. Glenn Barthleme will probably work against the champions, while Johnny Harshany, Edgemont pitching ace, will be Manager Ray Besse's selection.

Manager Bob Fisher will take his Alton team to Centralia today to battle the Jo-Boes. Johnny Dubernic, who came through with a well-pitched victory over the Red Birds of Collinsville, is down to work for Alton, while Eddie Gansauer, who shut out the Dairys last week, will go to the hill for Centralia.

Collinsville and Mount Vernon will mix at Mount Vernon. Manager Jimmy McLaughlin has selected Langa to do the pitching against the visitors, while Eckert, a former major league recruit, will be Collinsville's pitching selection.

All games will start at 3 o'clock.

St. Louis Crew To Compete in Milwaukee Race

The St. Louis Rowing Club's crack junior eight-oared crew will compete in an invitation regatta next Saturday at Milwaukee, Wis. The opposition will be furnished by crews from Wisconsin U., St. John's Military Academy and the Milwaukee Rowing Club.

The St. Louis crew, after workouts on the river during the early part of the week, will depart Thursday, arriving in time to limber up Friday. The crew will be the same as that which won last Sunday's junior eight race on the Mississippi.

Officials of the St. Louis club hope that the crew will make a good showing, but are not unduly optimistic, in view of the fact that Saturday's race will be on "dead water." The crew has had experience heretofore only in river racing.

The next local rowing event will be on June 10 at Central Rowing Club.

ENTRIES FOR CHURCH TITLE TRACK MEET WILL CLOSE JUNE 5

Entries for the twentieth annual track and field meet of the St. Louis Church Athletic Association will close on Tuesday, June 5, according to an announcement by William H. Reinhardt, chairman of the track committee. The meet will be held Saturday, June 9, at Francis Field, Washington University.

Contestants will be grouped in five classifications, as in the past, namely: senior, intermediate, junior, midget and girls. There is no age restriction in the girls events. Contestants must be members of the St. Louis Church Athletic Association to be eligible for competition.

Entries may be filed with W. H. Reinhardt, 25 South Fifteenth street, or with C. A. Neavles, Downtown Y. M. C. A., Fifteenth and Locust streets.

WESTWOOD CLUB WILL MAKE BID FOR 1935 U. S. OPEN TOURNEY

Westwood Country Club has made overtures to the United States Golf Association with a view to bringing the National Open golf tournament to that club next year. The Open has never been held in this district although the U. S. Amateur was held at the Country Club in 1921. The site of the 1935 tournament will be determined next month at Philadelphia where this year's event is to be held.

Westwood has one of the finest courses in the Middle West. It has the age to put it in excellent condition and another year of effort will improve it.

Leo Bauman, chairman of the Westwood greens committee, has been busy installing new tees there this spring and when this operation is completed the course will have a length from the tournament tees of 6880 yards over rolling fairway. Truly a test of championship golf.

All of the greens are in fine condition and the course was laid out with a view to providing the greatest possible variety of shots.

Bauman, who is also chairman of the greens section of the St. Louis District Golf Association, has called a meeting of that organization for Westwood next Thursday at 5 o'clock to consider the offer of the U. S. Department of Agriculture to conduct a series of experiments here to eliminate crab grass and weeds.

Bauman has been in Washington several times recently and conferred with John Monteith about the situation which he describes as serious, threatening fairways of the St. Louis courses.

Chicago, Cincinnati and Kansas City are in much the same predicament and these cities are making an effort to have Monteith conduct experiments in their localities.

It is estimated that these experiments here will require about $500, more than $200 of which has already been pledged and Bauman is to ask the aid of park authorities, cemetery associations and owners of large private estates.

Monteith thinks he has solved the problem of killing off crab grass and weeds but it will require a series of experiments to determine whether it will be effective here. Westwood will provide the necessary ground for making the trials.

Philco Sponsors Program on EAQ, Madrid.

WITH its first program over EAQ, Madrid, Spain, today, the Philco Radio & Television Corporation becomes the first American manufacturer to sponsor a series of short-wave broadcast programs over a foreign station for the benefit of listeners in America.

These Sunday night programs are to be of half-hour length, and go on the air at 5 p. m. St. Louis time. They promise entertainment and, coming at an hour when trans-Atlantic reception is not so abundant, should find favor among American listeners. EAQ is at 9.87 megacycles on the dial.

Ten More Symphony Concerts a Week.

A TOTAL of ten symphony concerts a week from the Chicago World's Fair will be added by the national networks. Beginning June 16 there will be four concerts by the Detroit Symphony Orchestra on the CBS chain—three afternoons and one Saturday night. Edwin Franko Goldman will conduct a special concert at 3:30 next Saturday on the WEAF net and KSD. The concert will be the final event in the National School Band Concert at Drake University, Des Moines, Ia., at which Goldman will be the chief judge. Goldman's own band concerts will be broadcast starting late in June.

Alexander Troyanovsky, the Russian Ambassador, will speak at the American premiere of the Soviet ballet, "The Red Poppy." The work will be played by an NBC symphony orchestra led by Frank Black. Many Foreign Stations Change Time Schedules.

MANY European stations have gone on "summer" time which is equivalent to daylight saving time. Consequently, schedules have been revised. Also, with the coming of warmer weather, some frequencies have been practically abandoned. GSA at London is an example. According to best information, GSA will not be on as regularly as heretofore. Many of GSA's transmissions are being shifted to GSB and GSD for the summer.

Although EAQ, Madrid, Spain, anounces its frequency as 10,000 kilocycles or 10 megacycles, experts in America say that its actual frequency is 9.87 megacycles. Every owner of a correctly calibrated radio will find the 9.87 frequency to be correct.

HC2RL at Guayaquil has been coming in well recently. Its programs on Tuesday and Sunday evenings are well rounded, and are announced in English as well as Spanish. A letter received from Dr. Roberto Levi, owner and operator of the station, reveals an intense national pride in Ecuadorean culture and a desire to acquaint the world with that culture through his station. HC2RL is on 6.66 megacycles. Its schedule is Tuesdays, from 8:15 to 10:15 p. m. and Sundays, from 4:45 to 6.45 p. m.

Another Ecuadorian heard fairly consistently is PRADO at Riobamba. It comes at 6.63 megacycles, just below HC2RL. It is usually heard Thursday evenings, from 8 to 10 Central Standard Time.

Senator Alva B. Adams of Colorado will be KSD's Radio Forum speaker at 9:30 Tuesday night. He will discuss the Glass bill setting up a credit system for industry.

Guy Lombardo's orchestra will play over KSD and the WEAF chain at 9 o'clock Saturday night, June 9, and thereafter at 8:30 Saturday nights over the same stations. Starting June 10 they will play over KSD at 9:30 Monday nights. Next Thursday night and on succeeding Thursdays they will play over the WJZ net at 9:35 p. m.

At 5:30 tomorrow, two announcers will take a microphone and short gave transmitter on a racing car and make a speed run around the Indianapolis speedway as a preliminary to the broadcast of the 500-mile race on Memorial day. Another announcer will tour the race garages and interview drivers and mechanics.

The young Russian baritone, Igor Gorin, featured recently on a Rudy Vallee program on KSD, will sing at 6:45 Thursdays on the WJZ net, and in the International Tidbits programs at 3:30 Sundays.

Auto Manufacturers' Exhibits Feature of Chicago World's Fair

By Universal Service.

CHICAGO, May 26.—The automobile industry moved its competitive argument to Chicago's lake front this week with a display that threatens to steal a Century of Progress Exposition from under the other exhibitors.

The industry has already spent $5,000,000 to put in shape probably the greatest free show on earth, and a couple of million more will be tacked on to expenses before the exposition is over.

As indicated by the advance billing, Chrysler, General Motors and Ford, which plunges lavishly into the fair for the first time this year, have representations that overshadow anything else in the exposition.

The buildings themselves are marvels of architecture, but just as important are the collections of devices and manufacturing processes that present the 1934 automobile in striking and convincing style.

Ford's Elaborate Exhibit.

The exposition furnished by the "Big Three" of the auto manufacturing world affords three distinct phases of the automobile. Ford leans toward the historic background with a well-rounded display of the materials that go into cars.

General Motors features the assembly picture. Here the audience gets an insight into operations by which automobiles are put together.

Chrysler continues its test ground and demonstrations of the finished product.

The Ford building has been designed in the shape of an automobile connecting rod. Dazzling white, it rises 12 stories at its central point, and runs to a length of 900 feet.

The third section covers the industrial exhibit, where 21 manufacturers of Ford moterials and parts have displays. Raw materials, such as copper, iron, zinc, aluminum, rubber, cotton and wool, are processed into the finished product.

A soy bean demonstration, in line with the manufacturer's belief that farmers can be employed part time in making products for industry, is near the main building, in a venerable barn. In the fifth section, 19 examples of famous roads have been built. These range from the highways of Caesar's time down to modern surfaces.

General Motors Exhibits.

Except for the Fisher body-Chevrolet assembly line and the gigantic circular building itself, the General Motors exhibition this year is new in major respects. Emphasis has been placed on contributions of the corporation to automobile progress, including the self-starter and electric headlights.

Of particular interest this year is the wing devoted to the G. M. research laboratories. This offers a peek into the future of air-conditioned, super-silent automobiles.

What Chrysler Shows.

Chrysler's proving ground was a high spot of the exhibition in 1933, and this year should develop a similar experience. The track has been rebuilt, and additional grandstands erected.

In addition, the corporation presents some unique features of its manufacturing in the development of hydraulic brakes, "floating power" and "air flow" bodies. Another major display is a two-ton forging hammer turning out a Plymouth spindle each two minutes.

Giant Studebaker.

Besides these three exhibitors, Studebaker, Hupmobile, Nash, International and Mack Truck are on hand from the automobile fraternity. Studebaker has construct gargantuan automobile model stands 39 feet high and 80 feet l Its wheels are 12 feet in diamet

Nash will display its models its "glass tower." Hupmobile exh its in the Travel and Transportat building. International Harve has in operation a robot-dr farm tractor.

The site has a frontage of 150 feet on Cabanne avenue, with a depth of 125 feet, extending through to North drive, on which it has a second frontage of 150 feet. Another is a 12-family apartment at 3520-24 North Garrison avenue. Each apartment has four rooms. This building is entirely rented, it was announced. The identity of the purchaser was withheld, pending conclusion of the transaction. A third building is a six-family apartment at 1722 Waverly place, on the South Side. It consists of five-room apartments and occupies a lot 61x150 feet. William Joseph Walsh, the purchaser, acquired it as an investment, it was said.

Prices paid were not disclosed. The Prudential acquired the buildings under first mortgages and had them reconditioned.

The Chester Apartments on the north side of Lindell boulevard, just east of Kingshighway, and the Georgian Court on Kingsbury boulevard east of De Baliviere, are among others owned by the Prudential.

Willys-Overland Building.

An event of the week was the purchase by the Amfesco Co., a holding corporation of the American Fixture & Show Case Manufacturing Co., of the six-story former Willys-Overland Building at the southwest corner of Twenty-third and Locust streets. The building was owned by the Franklin-American Co. Negotiations were handled by the Henry H. Weisels Co., through Arnold Maremont, secretary and treasurer, in connection with the First National Co., investment subsidiary of the First National Bank, through which the assets of the Franklin-American Co. are being liquidated. The purchase price was not announced.

The building, of reinforced concrete construction, occupies a lot fronting 150 feet on Locust and 154 feet 10 inches on Twenty-third. It is equipped with sprinkler system and has a freight elevator of 2½ tons capacity, and an automatic passenger elevator. In addition, the basement and main floors have ramps, giving access to the building from the Twenty-third street side and from the alley.

Built 10 Years Ago.

The building was erected 10 years ago by the Willys-Overland Co. at a reported cost of $550,000. At the same time the company built structures of the same type for its branches in 10 other cities.

Prior to the Franklin-American Co. ownership the property was owned by a syndicate known as the Brown-Carleton Real Estate Co., which had purchased it August, 1930.

In the future the building will be known as the Amfesco Building, and will be under the management of the Henry R. Weisels Co.

Argues With House Group Wisdom of People Going Into Debt Under Measure.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 26. — The wisdom of encouraging people to go into debt for home building and repairs was debated today by Secretary of Labor Perkins and several members of the House Banking Committee.

Miss Perkins urged the committee to approve the administration housing bill as a necessary stimulant for the durable goods and construction industries. Six committee members immediately questioned the wisdom of encouraging individuals to contract new debts. Miss Perkins insisted her understanding was that "only those who can afford to do it" would assume such obligations.

Busby (Dem.), Mississippi, said: "I can see no hope for ultimate revival by this program; just more debt." Others enlarged on the same idea. Representative Goldsborough (Dem.), Maryland, argued it would "simply add to the already overloaded debt burden of the country." He said there was a danger of " a recurrence of the depression of 1929" under such a plan. Representative Cross (Dem.), Texas, agreed with Representative Luce (Rep.), Massachusetts, that the tendency of the bill would be to "incite" individuals, through the "lure of low interest rates," to incur new debts. "Debt is a great incentive to trouble and revolution," Cross said.

"We have got to regard debt as more of an asset than we used to," Miss Perkins replied. "Debt is an asset as long as you can establish stability of income."

OIL CONCERN LEASES BLOCK FOR STATION

Negotiations have been concluded by the Shell Petroleum Corporation for a 10-year lease on the block bounded by Twelfth street, Thirteenth street, Delmar and Linden.

Construction will be started in the near future on a super service station of modernistic design.

The lease was arranged direct with the officers of Lesser Goldman Co., which purchased the block piece-meal 10 years ago. Rental provisions of the lease were not disclosed.

The block has approximately 140 feet on Twelfth, 143 feet on Thirteenth, 140 feet on Delmar (formerly Morgan street), and 124 feet on Linden. It is one of the smallest blocks in the downtown district. It is entirely vacant, with the exception of the northwest corner of Twelfth and Linden, occupied by a sandwich shop.

Other large real estate holdings of the Lesser-Goldman Company in this part of the city include the eight-story building at the northwest corner of Twelfth street and Washington avenue, and the southwest corner of Delmar boulevard and Fourteenth street.

Returns to His Old Firm.

Easton Taylor Trust Co. announces the return of John M. Dolan to its real estate department. Mr. Dolan has been active in the real estate field for the last 20 years and had previously been connected with the Easton-Taylor firm for 17 years.

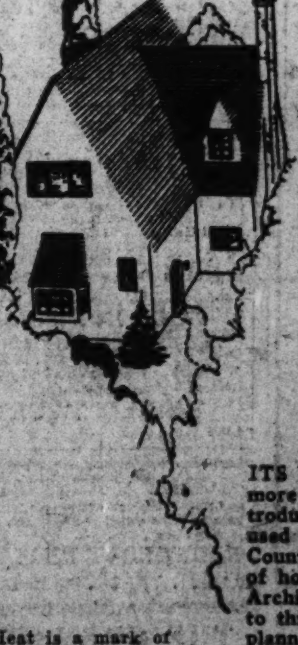
If you are Buying a home
In St. Louis County
Insist Upon Gas Heat
It is today's modern heat



Gas Heat is a mark of distinction. It indicates that the builder has placed popular valuation upon those appointments which give the maximum in comfort, convenience and economy for the investment made. Gas Heat is the first step in air conditioning.
ITS USE in St. Louis County has more than doubled since the introduction of the new gas. It is used in homes in all parts of the County . . . many different kinds of homes on hundreds of streets. Architects and builders are alert to this trend. Now, in carefully-planned homes, both large and small, you will find Gas Heat. Discriminating buyers look for it. The Gas Company will be glad to give you full information about it . . . tell you the cost of heating the home you may now be considering . . . tell you about their plan of installation that assures satisfaction. All you have to do is ask for it.

I AM pulling out of the woods, and in a short time I'm going to ask as much for my fixtures as other dealers, but before the 10th of June I need $500 cash. If you are in the clothing or ready-to-wear business my store has more fixtures at better prices for you than anywhere in town. I am strictly in the clothing and ready-to-wear fixture business. I sell for cash only. I know how to buy, there is no question about it. I can save you money. Mr. Merchant, here is an idea of my bargains; 6 wall cases, a mirror above and 2 fitting rooms, complete installed. That outfit cost Style Crest Co., $450. W. D. Ellinger Store Outfitter, 711 Lucas. As you always were before.

SALESMEN WANTED

MEN

OUR ST. LOUIS BRANCH WILL TAKE ON A LIMITED FEW MEN WHO NEED EMPLOYMENT AND WHO WISH TO TRY TO SEE IF THEY CAN DO THIS WORK. THOSE WHO CAN QUALIFY CAN MAKE $25.00 TO $70.00 PER WEEK IMMEDIATELY. WE WILL TRAIN SUCH MEN FREE. WE WILL FURNISH FULL EQUIPMENT WITH NO DEPOSIT REQUIRED.

Expanding business makes possible this offer—1934 is ahead of 1933. 1933 was by far our biggest year. A similar offer recently gave responsible, adaptable men permanent employment in our organization throughout the entire country. Thus a former plumber earned over $20.00 his first day; a former drug clerk made $176.00 his first 24 days; a former merchant made $65.00 his first 10 days in this work and over $65.00 the following week.

We have no room for drifters or wishers. This is no get-rich-quick scheme. You cannot make money here unless you earn it. Some men who apply to us fail to fulfill the requirements, but we have found also that many men who never previously even thought they could do work of this kind have found it to be just the opportunity they sought for years, and are now making more money then they ever previously dreamed of making. We have men making up to $750.00 a month. Others $600.00, $500.00 and $400.00.

Some of our best men never sold anything before. The method is so effective, the product is so highly salable, so thoroughly amazing in the way it sidesteps the "We have no money" objection, that new sales records are being made every month, to the envy and admiration of informed business men here and elsewhere. For instance, here in St. Louis, a former clothing merchant, who had no previous experience before he started here, earned $100.00 for his latest week reported. J. Cochran was formerly a coal miner, yet he earned $97.00 that same week. C. Roberts, who started about 6 months ago, in our St. Louis branch, earned $67.00 for his latest week reported, while E. B. Rea, a more experienced man, formerly a grocery clerk, made around $100.00 that same week and well over $225.00 for the first half of May. H. Tenser, a former dress manufacturer, made $65.00 for the week and for the same period in May, has earned $250.00; L. Sonnenschein, who came into this work on December 13th, and made only $45.00 his first 15 days, earned $270.00 for the first 15 days in May.

If you are of good reputation, active, alert, willing to learn and to work hard every day to make genuine success in return for the privilege of a genuine opportunity in a permanent position with good people who will deeply interest themselves in helping you to get started and to get along, make your application Monday morning, between 9:30 and 1:00 at 561-564 Paul Brown Bldg., Ninth and Olive Sts.

Light weight and yearling steers bulked at $5.50@7.35, within a range of $4.25@8.10, while bulk of all native steers brought $5.50@7.75. Bulk of good and choice steers realized $6@8. HORSES AND MULES.

NATIONAL STOCKYARDS, May 26.—Horses encountered a better trade than mules during the past week. There were about 370 head on commission and the modest supply was easily cleared. Good mares, Eastern chunks and work stock moved to the best advantage, while small mares dragged due to poor Southern support. A fair trade was experienced in green horses.

Supply of mules was meager at 100 head. Big animals and the cheaper kind in particular had slow going, but some medium sized and handy priced stock were in demand. There was also some outlet for cotton mules.

COTTON MARKET IS QUIET BUT STEADY AT WEEK-END

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 26. — Cotton was quiet but steady at week-end session with October advancing to 11.64 or 22 points above the low level of yesterday on covering and a little buying by the trade. That delivery closed at 11.63 with the general market ending steady at net advances of 7 to 10 points.

There was scattered buying which evidently encountered very few offerings. The early action of the grain and stock markets contributed to the advance, and while prices sagged slightly following reactions in wheat, they firmed up again in the late trading on a somewhat increased trade demand.

December advanced to 11.76 and closed at 11.74, and final quotations generally were within a point or two of the best. Some further liquidation of July was taken by the trade without much change in differences, and the continued absence of selling orders from the South left the market sensitive to comparatively small buying orders. There was some talk of low temperatures in the South and a few complaints of excessive moisture in some sections. Otherwise the weather news was considered generally favorable. Liverpool remained closed today and seemed to have comparatively few orders here, but there was a little buying early believed to be for continental account.

The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 86,000 bales against 134,000 last year and 110,000 two years ago.

ELECTRIC LIGHT AND POWER CODE REVISED

Johnson to Submit It to President About May 31—Drastically Rewritten.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—Hugh S. Johnson announced today he would submit to President Roosevelt for approval, on or right after May 31, a much revised code to cover the electric light and power industry. He has requested all power companies to file with him, before that date, statements of assent to the code if they desire to do so.

This procedure was adopted because the code, subject of controversy over the Government-ownership issue, has been rewritten drastically since public hearings were held at administration request by the industry's Code Committee.

The most important of the provisions expressly excludes from the code "Federal, State, municipal or other publicly operated plants, enterprises or authorities," unless they voluntarily desire to obligate themselves to any or all provisions.

The code requires creation of a 23-member code authority selected from five districts, the members to be chosen in ratio to the kilowatt hour production in each district, and with specific representation for small units in each district.

It rules that sale of electric appliances by power companies shall be conducted under terms of the retail code until early hearings are held to determine controversies which have arisen on the point.

There is no exemption from code compliance for companies whose publicly owned competitors may not be subscribing to code terms. There is no provision for a national power survey under the code.

Basic 40-Hour Work Week.

These points cover substantially all controversial code issues of the utility field.

The industry originally sought a code which would compel or make advisable compliance by the publicly owned plants, to place them on a straight competitive basis as far as labor costs were concerned.

Government agencies protested and NRA announced it had no jurisdiction to approve anything of the sort. The Power Commission protested a code plan for a survey of electric resources which would have been conducted under direction of the industry, including some representation of public plants. The Commission pointed out that it already had launched such a survey under orders from President Roosevelt.

There was protest also against submission of the code by the Edison Electric Institute, which was challenged as to its true representation of the entire industry. As a result the code authority was widened and constructed on a localized basis.

Minimum Wage Schedule.

The code establishes the following minimum wages: Operating employes $16, except in the South, $15; office employes $15, and $14 in the South; office boys and girls, messengers, not to exceed 5 per cent of the total office force, $14 and $13; all others, 40 cents an hour in the North, 30 cents in the South.

Exemptions from the 40-hour limitation: 48 hours for operating employes only in cities between 75,000 and 2500; 48 hours for both operating and office employes in towns under 2500. No hours restriction are placed on employes in remote, isolated places where reliefs are impracticable; help engaged in emergency operations; executive, managerial and supervisory employes receiving more than $35 a week; outside salesmen, demonstrators, right-of-way agents, collectors, investigators and others serving wholly on commission.

GERHARDT DAMHORST, GROCER, TO BE BURIED TOMORROW

Funeral at St. Michael's Catholic Church for North St. Louis Merchant.

Funeral services for Gerhardt Damhorst, North St. Louis grocer and head of the C. Damhorst Soda Water Co., will be held tomorrow morning at 8:30 o'clock from the Leidner undertaking establishment, 2223 St. Louis avenue, to St. Michael's Catholic Church. Burial will be in Calvary Cemetery.

Mr. Damhorst, who was 61 years old, died Friday night of diabetes at De Paul Hospital, after an illness of 10 weeks. Born in Germany, he came to St. Louis as a young man and went to work in the soda water company established by his uncle. He later had a grocery in South St. Louis and for the past 28 years had had a store at 2523 North Ninth street. He resided above the store.

Two Flyers Killed in Brazil.

By the Associated Press.

RIO DE JANEIRO, May 26.—Two Brazilian naval fliers were killed today in a freak accident in which their plane, in flames, plunged into the sea in front of a waterfront club. Their machine struck a lightning rod on top of the Brazil Touring Club, ripping off a wing. The craft pirouetted over the quay and caught fire, fatally injuring the pilot, Lieut. Almachio Dessane, and an unidentified assistant.

AMBASSADOR, GRAND CENTRAL AND MISSOURI TO BE SOLD

Three Theater Buildings to Be Offered at Auction on June 7.

Sale of the Ambassador, Missouri and Grand Central theater buildings at foreclosure, to satisfy $5,967,500 in first mortgage bonds, will be held at the east door of the Civil Courts Building at noon June 7. Nelson Cunliff, special master by appointment of Federal Judge Davis, will conduct it.

The sale involves all three structures, all the equipment of the theaters, the sites of the Missouri and Ambassador buildings, including a leasehold on a small portion of the latter site, and the leasehold of the Grand Central site. The Ambassador and Grand Central, covered by one bond issue for $4,050,000, will be offered first, then the Missouri. Bidders for the first group must post $50,000 cash or $100,000 of the bonds, while bidders for the Missouri must post $25,000 cash or $50,000 of the bonds.

Bondholders' protective committees have worked out a reorganization plan, details of which have been published. If they are successful in bidding in the properties, they intend to lease the theaters to Allen L. Snyder, an engineer, who will retain Fanchon & Marco, stage show producers and movie exhibitors, to handle them.

URGES REGIONAL VETERANS' OFFICES BE KEPT IN CITY

Reasons for selecting St. Louis over Kansas City in the event that the Government consolidates the Missouri regional offices of the Veterans' Administration have been set forth by the Chamber of Commerce in communications sent to officials at Washington.

Figures showing that the St. Louis office handles more cases than the Kansas City bureau, and that a larger population is served here are cited. It was also pointed out that the Kansas City office was started 10 years ago as a branch of the St. Louis bureau.

Definite assurance that the regional office would be continued at St. Louis has been given by Brigadier-General Frank T. Hines, head of the Veterans' Administration. The Chamber of Commerce, however, states that rumors to the effect that the bureau would be moved still persist.

13 CABS BATTERED IN STRIKE

Street Fighting in Cleveland Halts Attempt to Operate Taxis.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, May 26.—Bricks thrown through the windows of 13 taxicabs and street fighting in downtown Cleveland halted an attempt of the operating company today to place 30 cabs in operation in defiance of a drivers' strike. Several men were injured, 21 were arrested, and an estimated $2000 damage was done to the cabs.

Thousands of downtown shoppers were spectators at the fight which for a time 10 squads of police were unable to halt. Traffic on Euclid avenue, main thoroughfare, was blocked a half hour. All Yellow Cabs were returned to their garage.

DARROW'S BOARD TO QUIT WITH ITS SECOND REPORT

Chairman Has Hat of Hugh S. Johnson Which He Picked Up by Mistake.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—Clarence Darrow today definitely made up his mind that his review board would wind up its work with the second code report now being drafted, which is to be ready for the President next week.

A blackboard in his office scheduled hearings up to June 14 on small business complaints against NRA codes, but when reporters asked him about this, Darrow observed:

"Oh, well, it won't hurt the board. Our second report will be done next week and we'll turn it in. Then I think we will have finished."

Darrow still had in his possession a hat belonging to Hugh S. Johnson. He had gone riding with his NRA opponent a few days ago and picked up the hat by mistake after having started out bareheaded.

Today he chuckled over the hat and toyed with the idea of keeping it as a souvenir of his encounter.

Under her will, Mrs. Ailara made specific bequests to relatives totaling $76,000. Among beneficiaries is Robert J. Adams, an adopted son, of Maidenhead, England, who receives $20,000. The residue of the estate goes to a niece, Mrs. Josephine Angarola of St. Louis and Angelo Rando of New Orleans, a nephew. Henry J. Mueller, an attorney, was appointed executor.

What Women Are Doing In Politics

MRS. KATHERINE O'LAUGHLIN McCARTHY, member of the House of Representatives from the Sixth District of Kansas, has accepted an invitation to visit St. Louis as the guest of the St. Louis and St. Louis County Federation of Democratic Women's Clubs as soon as Congress adjourns. Members of all the Democratic women's clubs and civic organizations will attend a dinner to be given in her honor. Mrs. McCarthy is the first woman lawyer to be elected to Congress. She obtained her J. D. degree from the University of Chicago Law School and in 1921 was admitted to the bar. She served as attorney for the Legal Aid Bureau of the United Charities of Chicago and later for the Public Welfare Commission of Cook County. She gave much time to club work, particularly the business and professional women's organizations and she served as the national president of Kappa Beta Pi law sorority. Her political career began with the mayoralty campaign in Chicago when William E. Dever defeated "Big Bill" Thompson. In the presidential campaign of 1928 she organized the business and professional women of Illinois for John W. Davis. Before leaving Chicago, she helped organize the Illinois Women's Democratic Club. Upon her return to her home in Hays, Kan., she was elected State Representative and during her term of office served upon the committees of State Affairs, Judiciary, Education and Congressional Re-Apportionment. In the Kansas primaries she ran against eight men opponents and won the nomination for Democratic candidate for the House of Representatives. After her election to Congress, she married State Senator Daniel M. McCarthy. Coming from an agricultural district, she has been particularly interested in farm welfare measures as well as unemployment legislation.

THIS NEW YORK

By LUCIUS BEEBE

NEW YORK, May 26.

THE sun dodger's paradise, New York, is the greatest 24-hour-a-day city in the world. Its night life merges into daylight existence and the business day into evening, with only a slight shift in the tempo of its urban existence. The systole and diastole of its heart is almost constant, and there is little in the way of convenience by daylight not available at 3:30 in the morning. Naturally there are no all-night brokerage houses and no legitimate theater functions after 11:30, but there are film houses open till 3, all-night banks, and restaurants, transportation, hotel room service, drug stores, railroad stations, and far more sinister establishments than any of these which never close.

There is no time of day when traffic in the Grand Central area is stilled and the flow of motors of all sorts in the main avenues of the metropolis is constant. We can tell within a few minutes, the time of night by the sounds of the city. Between 11 and 12 there is the decorous progress of after-theater traffic, subdued but steady. At 2 we can hear the carriage calls ten floors down as the cafe of our hotel closes. At 3 the Madison avenue cars only run about every twenty minutes.

Four is about the hour for the bowls of juvenile drunks to arrive at Childs's down the street, while at 4:30 there is a terrific honking of taxi horns indicating that Ruebens's customers are piling out en masse, bound for home or Harlem. From then on the predominating sound is the pastoral one of milk wagons' horses clopping along and the metallic noise of bottles in their metal carriers.

At 8 o'clock, just as we are inevitably having our one agreeable dream of the night, the telephone explodes horribly and we are off to the slave galleys again.

SOME wealthy globe-trotting friends of ours arrived in town last week with what, beyond all peradventure of a doubt, as the phrase goes, is the world's trickiest motor car. It is a Maybach, built in Germany to their order at a cost of $20,000, which seems enough for any automobile, and when they park it the police are required to keep the crowds moving. The real beauty of this triumph of the mechanical age is that it requires not only the services of a chauffeur when its owner is not desirous of driving himself, but also of an engineer to keep the motor and other mechanical parts in good running order, since they are adjusted like a fine Swiss watch and there is nobody in America who understands the details of its inner economy.

Since it seats only two people its owner provides another automobile of somewhat simpler proportions in which his chauffeur and mechanic follow his progress across the countryside.

THE art of entertaining, especially at the old-time cocktail party, has with the changing times been elevated to something of a fine accomplishment. A few years ago all a host had to do was gather a few people in a room and provide a vast oversupply of strong waters and let nature take its course. Now parties have been restored to their original basis as social gatherings with the refreshment a mere incidental. Among the more adroit hosts of the town we would like to nominate for honors two of the eligible local bachelors, Bobby Bruce and his pal, A. K. Mills. They have a handsome suite at the Algonquin and entertain not only the smartest but also the most amusing representatives of cafe society, which is, of course, New York's dominant society of the day.

We dropped in last week to find Dwight Fiske, Prince and Princess Chavchavadze, the "Time" magazine Roy Larsens, and Anne Andrews consuming a modest number of Martinis, and their polite screams of laughter could be heard half way down the hotel corridor. They were knocking off their acquaintances with epigrammatical fowling pieces, and the conversation was right bright.

It was all a vast improvement over the old institution of cocktails, when unless half the guests were removed stiff as a tray and the entire conversation resolved about the quality of the gin, nobody considered they were having a good time.

WHILE you might never envison New York as a fisherman's paradise, there are, nevertheless, a number of highly satisfactory outlets for the energy of nimrods within commuting distance of the town. One of the more elaborately conducted safaris is that which, during the summer months, the Long Island Railroad undertakes. Every Sunday morning at 5:45 about a thousand oddly assorted sportsmen assemble at one of the gates at the Pennsylvania Station for the fisherman's special to Montaux Point.

The train is rough and ready, no restaurant car, but with youths equipped with enormous jugs of coffee and orange juice, and there is a refrigerator car with individual ice bins to take home the catch, if any. When you arrive at the tip of Long Island there is a rush for the 15 or 20 fishing boats there, the most desirable spot being in the stern, apparently, where lines are least likely to become fouled. You have six hours at sea and, for us at least, it was more a parade of costumes than a sportsman's venture. Rubbers or crepe soles are universal, to prevent skidding and falling on the decks. There are great numbers of heavy rubber aprons in service and quite a number of old-fashioned Mother Hubbards. Soft hats, turned down all around are the rule, and some are supplied with flies, silver doctors and brown hackles, for all the world as though the party was embarking for a trout stream in Maine.

The day we went the catch was not very impressive, only a score or so of cod and haddock, none of them of Homeric proportions, but every one had a swell time and slept the sleep of exhaustion all the way home. Fishing, to the regulars, is a serious business. There was no drinking, except for beer, and hardly any attention was paid to eating. Most of the assembled chivalry fished with one hand and crammed sandwiches into the face with the other.

The annual Spring Festival of the German General Protestant Orphans Home will be held on the orphanage grounds, 4447 Natural Bridge road, next Sunday.

URGES CITY TO ACCEPT PARK FROM BABLER

Council on Civic Needs Advises Estimate Board Not to Neglect Opportunity.

The General Council on Civic Needs has adopted a resolution urging the Board of Estimate and Apportionment to accept the offer of Jacob L. Babler, former Republican National Committeeman from Missouri, to give the city 868 acres in St. Louis County for an outer park.

Babler made the offer to the board two weeks ago, stating that he desired to give the city the tract, which is located on Wild Horse Creek road, about 20 miles west of the city limits, in memory of his brother, the late Dr. Edmund A. Babler.

"Recreational opportunity for the citizens of any heavily populated center is necessary for the well-being of that community," the resolution stated. "In recent years, the most metropolitan centers have lagged in providing adequate recreational opportunity. The result has been that such communities as Boston, Cleveland, Chicago, Philadelphia, Baltimore, New York and many others have overcome this situation through the acquisition and development of large tracts of land within easy access to the main centers of population.

"Several times within recent years, citizens of the St. Louis district have offered large areas of forest lands to the City of St. Louis for recreational purposes. Mr. Babler's offer is an opportunity which should under no circumstances be allowed to lapse. It is the belief of the General Council on Civic Needs that the establishment of a policy of rejection will have the effect of discouraging further contributions to the public welfare."

The Board of Estimate, composed of Mayor Dickmann, Comptroller Nolte and President Neun of the Board of Aldermen, has not yet considered Babler's offer officially.

Royal Garden Party July 26

LONDON, May 26.

THE date of the royal garden party, the most democratic of all royal functions, has been set provisionally for July 26. Attendance this year may be more cosmopolitan than ever because of the large number of notables from overseas visiting London for the social season.

With her nieces, Mrs. John Clay of Paris, Ky., and Mrs. Leonard T. Davidson of New York, both of whom she presented at last week's royal courts, Mrs. Robert W. Bingham, wife of the American Ambassador, spent Whitsun in Paris, returning to London early this week. Mrs. Clay and Mrs. Davidson, who have been guests at the American embassy for several weeks, will return to the United States at the end of May.

A supper party in honor of Katherine Carr of Chicago was given at the Savoy by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George H. Carr, following her presentation to King George and Queen Mary. Mr. and Mrs. Carr will remain in London for the season, after which they will go to Cannes.

Prominent members of London's American colony en route to the United States for a summer visit include Mr. and Mrs. Amos C. Dean with their daughter Ruth.

Nations Only Waiting for Funeral Of Disarmament Parley to Arm To Hilt, Lloyd George Says

Former Prime Minister of Great Britain.
(By Special Cable.)

LONDON, May 26.

IT is assumed that the Disarmament Conference will soon pass from bed to bier.

There is to be another consultation of the doctors. Decency demands that the patient, however hopeless his case, so long as he continues to breathe at all, shall not be abandoned without another effort to revive him.

Besides there must be some sort of death certificate. That will not be an easy matter in this case. What did he die of? The doctors will certainly disagree, but, as usual in such cases, some vague and general phrase will be found which covers death from any cause.

The chief mourners will not be represented. They are the mothers now rearing sons to be slain in the next world war.

But what next? There will be many claimants to the throne of the defunct make-believe. Will war be the heir? His foot is already on the step. Will he fill the vacant chair?

Premier Mussolini predicts that, unless something is done quickly to avert this calamity, it is inevitable. He sounds the alarm. He is not an alarmist but a realist. That is what makes his warning of grave portent.

Armed Forces Growing.

What makes the situation dangerous is the fact that behind all this facade of conferences, commissions, pacts and protocols, the nations have been all the time strenthening, improving and whetting their armaments.

There has been a great show of reduction. But you will find on examination that it is a reduction which takes place in the size of a bar of steel when it is hammered and ground into a sword.

Every European nation from the Ural Mountains to the Atlantic has a better equipped army today than it had at its command when the Disarmament Commission first met in Geneva some years ago. The only disarmament conference that ever achieved a genuine honest to God reduction in armaments was the Washington naval conference of 1921.

The sittings of the Geneva Commission, the Locarno festival of peace, and the Kellogg pageant, which so historically outlawed war, have each been followed by an increase of expenditures on arms.

It would be an elaborate farce provoking laughter were it not real tragedy that may end in tears.

This year no one makes any pretence of cutting down their armaments. They are all ostentatiously spending more money, increasing them with an apology from the governments to their parliaments because they are not spending still more; also with propitiatory understandings that next year they will make up for this remissness. There is a sort of feeling that the disarmament conference must first of all be interred. Wait until after the funeral.

Britain About Faces.

Britain was the only country that had actually reduced her expenditure on weapons of war up to this year. But this year she is avowedly spending more on her navy and air force. If the Disarmament Conference fails, then Baldwin has given a definite pledge to increase substantially our air estimates.

The Government means to demand equality in the air. That will make a considerable addition to our expenditures. Germany has already increased her estimates all around—and she is already spending the money.

France is spending feverishly on war preparations. Italy means to raise her navy to equality with France. Both her army, navy and air force have increased their efficiency beyond recognition during recent years.

Russia possesses a much more effective army today than she did in 1914. It is no longer a steam roller. It has wings. According to all accounts, these pinions are the most formidable in the world. She is also improving her railways—for economic reasons—but all these improvements have immense war value.

It was her deficiency in transport that broke her down in the Russo-Japanese war and afterwards in the great war. She will be—she is now—better equipped in this respect for the next war.

Outside of Europe, both the United States and Japan are also increasing their financial commitments to the god of war. And the smaller Powers throughout the world are all building their arks for the coming deluge.

Does It Mean War?

The hammering resounds to the stratosphere all around the globe. There is no longer any pretense about it. It is done ostentatiously in order to reassure the public of each country that when catastrophe comes they will not be unready and unprotected.

Does all this mean war? Let us examine the prospects and possibilities.

In 1914 all this kind of feverish rivalry and preparation ended in war. On the other hand, few believed that it would happen then —least of all the men who in each country ultimately signed the declarations of war.

The Kaiser didn't mean war or even believe that it was coming. He sailed for Norway on a pleasure cruise after the crisis which ended in war had developed. His chief war lord was on a holiday.

In Whitehall and Downing street the week before Austria actually declared war no one contemplated the possibility of a European conflict.

Today the prospect of another war is staple talk in every club in Europe. Some of the most astute men will offer you a bet that there will be another great war—greater than the last — within two years. There are men who are prepared to take that bet, but there are not many who will offer odds the other way.

And yet in that very apprehension there is a measure of security. The world knows now what war means. It had no real comprehension of its havoc and terrors in 1914.

Some Sparks of War.

Today an acute quarrel between two great nations which threatened the shedding of blood would send a shudder of fear into every home of Europe. Statesmen and rulers would not be allowed to go on a holiday and leave the boat adrift into the rapids, as they did in 1914.

What is the immediate peril? There is always the danger of an "incident," which would throw peaceful nations into a state of fury where reason has no look-in. There is a feeling of panic abroad which is conducive to the production of these incidents.

There was that extraordinary episode the other day where a German village on the other side of the Alsace border was plunged into a state of terror by a report that the French were about to cross the border to wipe out the brown troops. The inhabitants fled to the woods.

Frenchmen, Germans, Italians, Czechs, Poles—they are all in that

Personal Debts of American Families Reach Huge Total of $15,000,000,000

Statistics Show One-Fourth of All Personal Incomes, From Wages to Investments, Go to Pay Charges on Credit Buying or Other Debts, Private and Public.

More Than 14,000,000 Persons Borrowed Money From All Kinds of Loan Organizations—Great Growth of Credit Purchases in Less Than a Generation.

By SAM J. SHELTON,
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

THE plunge of the American family into the uncertain waters of debt, a sea now four times as vast as 20 years ago, is a development whose effects on recovery from the depression are being discussed in economic circles. Only recently have serious attempts been made to measure the full weight and significance of personal and family debts, as distinguished from public and business debts, by experts of such organizations as the Russell Sage Foundation and the Twentieth Century Fund, nationally known research institutions.

These recent studies show how purely personal or family debts have grown since 1913 from four billion dollars to about 15 billion dollars, and how we have changed from a people with a dread of going in debt to a nation of borrowers.

The greatest expansion in personal debt followed the war at a time when public and business debt was at a high mark, and in the 1920's there was broadcast the propaganda that, "it's good business for the individual to go in debt." Thereupon "consumer credit" achieved a standing of respectability alongside commercial credit.

What are the results?

Loan Charges Take Fourth of Earned Dollar.

The burden of personal debt added to the burden of public and business debt is such that the carrying charges on the entire mass of debt claim 25 cents out of every dollar of national income.

As stated, there has been a four-fold increase in distinctly personal or family short-term debts in 20 years, bringing the total up to around 15 billion dollars.

As late as 1910, only 10 per cent of the retail sales in the United States were made on credit; today the proportion is 50 per cent, or at the lowest estimate, 47 per cent.

From a nation of debt abhorers in the early 1900's the American people had reached the state in 1928 and 1929 of 98 per cent of the families being in debt; now 85 to 90 per cent. At least that is the showing of all available statistics.

Debt with its interest charges became a mounting burden against incomes, causing a distorted interpretation of purchasing power in the heyday of prosperity and afterward intensifying the effects of income shrinkage.

The rise of "consumer credit" has paralleled somewhat the growth of installment selling. The great impetus to installment selling came from the automobile industry whose commodity was almost universally desired yet so high in unit price as to be beyond the reach of vast numbers of purchasers if they had to pay cash.

Huge Government borrowings during the war and the later widespread and extraordinary financing of industry with borrowed capital obtained through the sale of securities made the public familiar with the processes of credit and did much to remove whatever stigma may have attached at one time to the state of being "in debt."

The latest authoritative estimate of the outstanding volume of short-term personal or family debt, generally described as consumer credit, is that of M. R. Neifeld, statistician of the Business Management Corporation, who placed the amount at $15,250,000,000 at the end of 1933. Quoting Neifeld's estimate in a recent bulletin, Editorial Research Reports said there had been an increase in the volume of $12,939,700,000 at the close of 1930.

Great Increase in Average Family Debt.

The amount outstanding at the close of a year, of course, is only a portion of the volume of such credit transactions in a year's time. For instance, Neifeld estimated the volume of loans by "consumer" cash-credit agencies in 1930 was $26,861,500,000.

Much study of consumer credit and personal debt has been made by Evans Clark, director of the Twentieth Century Fund, Inc., of New York, who has published his findings in two books, "Financing the Consumer," and "The Internal Debts of the United States," the latter published a few months ago by the MacMillan Co.

To show the great increase in personal debt, or consumer credit, Clark goes back to 1913, explaining, however, that there was not much reliable data for the earlier years. His estimate for 1913, the first in his table, is $4,000,000,000 outstanding, and this is multiplied nearly four times in the 1933 estimate of Neifeld.

Piecing together the estimates of Clark and Neifeld, shows the expansion of short-term personal and household debt as follows:

1921	9,000,000,000
1930	12,939,000,000
1931	13,898,000,000
1932	14,395,000,000
1933	15,250,000,000

To complete the picture of what may be called the family debt, Clark estimates that the mortgage debt on homes occupied by owners amounts to ten billion dollars. This makes a grand total of 25 billion dollars.

In his book, "The Internal Debts of the United States," Evans Clark says:

Household Out of Debt Rather Rare.

"The American household's plunge into debt for commodities and for loans as well as for long-term financing, during the last 30 years, constitutes a most remarkable phenomenon. Fifty years ago no one would have dreamed that our once predominantly thrifty (in the sense of being on a cash basis) population would in 1929 and 1930 become apparently not thrifty at all. No one would have predicted in those days, when most people 'never got into debt and always lived within their means,' that in 1929 and 1930 nearly every American family would be in debt. Extensive investigation by the author in 1928, 1929 and 1930, indicates that during that period, 98 per cent of American families were indebted in some way or other. The period 1930 to 1932 has seen a slight decline in this percentage to perhaps 85 to 90 per cent, but the getting out of debt process is going on today with accelerated momentum."

The getting-out-of-debt process referred to by Clark is somewhat illusionary, according to his own figures. From 1931 to 1932, for instance, the retail trade debts and cash personal loans decreased from $7,423,000,000 to $5,970,000,000, a decline of $1,453,000,000. Items included were charge accounts, installment debts and short-term cash loans. In the same period, however, there were substantial increases in insurance policy loans, Government loans to veterans, personal loans between individuals and overdue rents, taxes and insurance premiums. These latter items accounted for a gross increase in the household debt from $13,898,000,000 to $14,395,000,000.

It is pointed out by Clark that insurance policy loans do not have to be paid, that they are in most cases offset against the ultimate value of the policies. They are, nevertheless, a charge, augmented by interest, against the savings of the people and consequently against income.

The largest single item in short-term personal debts as estimated by Evans Clark at the close of 1932 was overdue rents, taxes and insurance premiums, three billion dollars. The next largest were retail charge accounts and life insurance policy loans, each, $2,500,000,000. Installment accounts outstanding were $1,750,000,000 and short-term cash loans were $1,720,000,000.

United States Government loans to veterans, used for household purposes, were estimated at $1,425,000,000, and personal loans between individuals at $1,500,000,000.

The volume of interest-bearing short term cash loans at the close of 1932 was estimated by Dr. Franklin W. Ryan, Philadelphia economist, at $2,024,000,000, and the annual charges at $603,700,000. This was exclusive of life insurance policy loans upon which carrying charges were about $180,000,000, making total annual charges of $783,700,000. Add around $600,000,000 a year charges on the ten billion dollars mortgage loans of home owners, and there is a total exceeding $1,300,000,000, or over 3 per cent of the 1932 national income of about 40 billions dollars. It takes the income of nearly two weeks to pay the bill.

What It Costs to Borrow Money.

The high cost of small personal loans is shown in a computation by Dr. Ryan covering the year 1932. The cost includes in some cases service charges or commissions, plus interest which is relatively high. The licensed lenders made a total of $300,000,000 of loans, and had $260,000,000 outstanding at the end of the year, upon which charges were $83,000,000. Pawnbrokers made $410,000,000 in loans against which charges were $115,000,000. The volume of loans by unlicensed lenders was estimated at $800,000,000, with $100,000,000 outstanding, against which charges were $280,000,000.

The volume of installment and open credit debt increased rapidly up to the time the depression became severe. The increase in credit buying accounts for much of the growth of personal debt. When total retail sales were 20 billion dollars in 1910 credit sales were two billion dollars, or only 10 per cent of the total. The following figures compiled by Dr. Franklin Ryan show the gain in credit sales, and the slight decline that has come with the depression:

	Total sales	Per cent on credit
1910	$20,000,000,000	10
1915	21,000,000,000	14
1920	45,000,000,000	20
1925	53,000,000,000	34
1930	60,000,000,000	50
1932	31,500,000,000	47

About three-fourths of credit sales are on open accounts and the other one-fourth on the installment plan. Thus in 1932 with a total of $15,000,000,000 of retail sales on credit, the open account total was $11,500,000,000 and the installment plan total was $3,500,000,000.

The large number of borrowers from the various cash loan agencies is illustrative of the wide extent of family debt. Evans Clark estimates that 14,350,000 persons borrowed from the various small loan agencies in 1930. This total was made up as follows: Pawnbrokers, 7,000,000; personal finance companies, 2,000,000; industrial banks, 1,000,000; unlicensed lenders, 3,000,000; personal loan departments of commercial banks, 500,000; credit unions, 200,000; remedial loan societies, 500,000; axias (share associations), 100,000, and employers' plans, 50,000.

Debt Burden Grew As Income Fell.

The foregoing classifications do not include the retail credit debtors and borrowers on insurance policies and savings and loan accounts. If they were included there would be much duplication, but the total number of borrowers would be substantially increased and would clearly show why Dr. Franklin Ryan estimates 85 to 90 per cent of our 30,000,000 families are in debt.

The burden of personal or household debt increased in weight as the depression progressed. While the debt grew, the national income fell off from $83,000,000,000 in 1929 to $40,000,000,000 in 1932.

The true weight of the debt burden is not indicated by the short-term personal indebtedness alone. There must be considered also the huge volume of public and business debts, the charges upon which must be borne out of national income.

The total public and private debt of the

How and Where the Borrowing Is Done

THE following table shows the make up of the nearly $15,000,000,000 of personal or household short-term debts of the American people at the end of 1932, constituting the great mass of "consumer credit." Loans of approximately $10,000,000,000 on homes occupied by owners are not included, and loans made for business purposes are excluded from the various classifications:

Retail open account debts	$2,500,000,000
Retail installment debts	1,750,000,000
Short-term cash loans	1,720,000,000
Life insurance policy loans	2,500,000,000
U. S. Government loans to veterans	1,425,339,019
Estimated overdue rents, taxes and insurance premiums	3,000,000,000
Personal Loans Between Individuals	1,500,000,000
TOTAL	$14,395,339,019

The foregoing table is from data contained in "The Internal Debts of the United States," by Evans Clark, published in 1933 by the MacMillan Co.

Canadians Say U. S. Must Take Initiative in Any Move to Revive Declining Trade With Dominion

Somewhat Skeptical of Possibility if Roosevelt Gets Power to Act, But Balk at Any Bargain Senate Must Ratify.

BY RAYMOND P. BRANDT,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 26.

WITH the 1911 defeat of the Taft-Laurier reciprocity plans a matter of history and with the more recent failure of the St. Lawrence seaway treaty, an acute reminder, Canadians are a bit cynical over the possibility that their country and the United States will be able to work out a practicable trade agreement if and when President Roosevelt obtains from Congress the necessary delegation of power to negotiate such executive pacts.

One pessimistic member of Parliament has observed facetiously that the two countries probably have all the "reciprocity" they will get under President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Bennett. "The Prime Minister," he said, "has sent his brother-in-law, Mr. Herridge, as Minister to Washington, and the President has sent his cousin, Mr. Robbins, as Minister to Ottawa."

Initiative Up to United States.

More seriously, Canadian leaders declare that the United States must take the initiative in any plans for a trade agreement. There is a manifest desire in some quarters for such an agreement and the people have faith in their Prime Minister's "hoss trading" abilities. The Prime Minister, himself, has said that he was willing to discuss trade agreements with President Roosevelt and in fact it was announced in Canada before President Roosevelt took office last year, that the Prime Minister would go to Washington to see if some means could be found for developing better trade relations between the two countries.

The Laurier Government that fell in 1911 over reciprocity was a Liberal Government. The Liberals, who are now in the opposition under MacKenzie King, former Prime Minister, maintain the policy of friendly relations with the United States. The Conservatives, under Bennett, have a traditional policy of closer relations with the rest of the British Empire, and the Ottawa agreements of 1932 were an outgrowth of this sentiment.

Facts vs. Sentiment.

But economic facts are often stronger than sentimental ties, and the Conservatives, while skeptical of being able to come to an agreement with the United States, are willing to try—if the United States makes the first move. From a purely political standpoint, Bennett should be able to accomplish more than MacKenzie King. He has a sound working majority in Parliament that might be augmented by many Liberal votes.

If Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Bennett sit down at a table to discuss means for increasing the flow of goods across the Canadian-United States border, Mr. Roosevelt will have the advantage of knowing that increased foreign trade is of more importance to Canada than to the United States. Although the United States and the Dominion are comparable in size, there is a vast difference in their population and their industries. Canada's 10,500,000 population is 2,000,000 less than that of New York state.

Two items will serve as examples to show that what might seem a little concession to the United States would loom large in Canada. The farm value of the Canadian wheat crop in 1932 was $129,105,000; the farm value of the American crop for the same year was $254,525,000, or almost double. In 1929 when automobile production reached its peak in both countries, the value of the American output was $3,413,000,000, while that of Canada was only $163,000,000.

The Conservatives are the high tariff party and their protectionist policy is directed almost as much against Great Britain as against the United States. A contributor to both parties, however, is the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, which wields a great influence in Parliament when tariff schedules are under consideration. It is difficult for an outsider to obtain much information about this group—the stock answer is that it is an association of manufacturers. Political reporters say that they can detect its influence in the nominating conventions and the elections. There has never been an official investigation of its political activities. In any negotiations for a trade agreement with the United States, these reporters say, the Manufacturers' Association will try to make its voice heard.

Stabilized Pound Helps.

Even when Bennett was negotiating the Ottawa agreements within the British Empire in 1932 there was opposition to the Government's plans. Time has proved these agreements beneficial to Canada, but primarily because of the stabilization of money exchange. Great Britain thought she was getting the best of the bargain in 1932, when the pound was around $3.50 in Canadian money, which would have enabled British manufacturers to increase their sales to Canada, but now the pound is comparatively stable around $5 and this has permitted Canada to increase her exports to the United Kingdom.

In addition to the protectionist sentiment of the industrialists, there is the closely allied and rapidly growing Nationalist sentiment in Canada. To many they are the same thing. Canada is an agricultural country and a debtor country but it has the desire to become an industrial country. The standard of living of the average workingman is not as high as that in the United States, but the Canadian who reads the advertisements in American magazines and newspapers and listens to the American radio programs hopes to enjoy all the comforts and luxuries of his American neighbors. The question is: How shall Canadians get the industrial development that will raise their standard of living?

Opposing Arguments.

The protectionist Conservatives say: "Let us erect tariff walls as did the Americans and build up our own industries which will hire Canadian workmen. We have many resources where our working people are as intelligent as the American and we can borrow the money." As a clinching argument they ask: "Do you want to remain a nation of farmers?" To this end the Conservative government of Bennett has sought successfully to increase Canadian export trade to obtain funds with which to pay the interest on Canadian obligations held abroad.

The Liberal low tariff leaders have responded that history has not borne out the contentions of the protectionists, that the Canadian standard of living is kept down because the protected industries are not efficient and have not sold their goods at anything like world or American prices. For instance, automobiles cost from 20 to 25 per cent more in Canada than in the United States, although many of the American companies have plants in Canada and pay lower wages than in the United States. For the last several weeks a parliamentary committee investigating the practices of Canadian industrialists has found what the Canadians believe are unconscionable profits in the tobacco trade and the farm implement business. At least some of the companies have indulged in price-fixing. The Liberals likewise point out that the influx of American capital has taken many of Canada's greatest natural re-

How to Dispose of War Debts.

LOOKING belatedly through Mr. Brisbane's column, I find his unfriendly criticism of English reaction to the passage of the Johnson bill, which so senselessly stigmatizes nations in default on their war debts to us.

What he does not sense is the necessity for English co-operation if present parities are to be stabilized on the money exchanges of the world. England might elect to let us have her gold, of which she has in the past year built up a considerable reserve, and force the pound back to its former low dollar value. It would be a sad thing for America and the world if she did this, but one fails to see how she can in any other manner meet her war-debt obligation to us as now prescribed by her creditors.

The Brookings Institution and all economists of repute testify to the fact that any serious attempt at payment of these war debts would be worse for the creditor than for the nations in default. Both during and after the war, we persistently drained foreign countries of their gold, and took their I. O. U.'s by the billion in exchange for our own goods and profits, refusing only the one thing of real value that they ultimately had to give—their own created wealth of exportable goods. To pay the debt so incurred, they must accumulate gold through the sale of commodities which we, the great creditor nation, not only refuse to buy ourselves, but expend every energy and device to keep them from selling elsewhere.

Let us face the facts. It is not gold we need or really want. It is distribution of the great wealth of things we already have, and that will make the attainment of maximum comfort for all an assured reality if we will but face and solve the problem of their use.

War debts can be disposed of in only one of two ways: Cancel the debts, or reverse our nationalist policy of protective tariffs and accept goods in payment of the debts. That choice has been ours, not Europe's, for the past 14 years. We cannot eat our financial cake and have it, too.

A Flop.

MUCH as I believe in Roosevelt and many of his policies, the NRA is a flop. No, it is more than a flop. It is vicious. It is making the rich richer and the poor poorer. You do not hear the profiteer squawking.

Sparrows vs. Robins.

EARLY in the morning of April 9, 1934, within a radius of six blocks of the Granite City "Y" Building, there were started no fewer than 12 robins' nests By 7 o'clock that morning, the foundations of the nests had been finished and the birds quit work for the day. The English sparrows then began their work of destruction. All day long up to roosting time, those sparrows pulled and tugged, yanked and twisted, in their efforts to tear out the twigs and straws which made up the foundations of the nests. They failed, in most cases, to complete the job, but there came another day. The next morning, the sparrows set to work building nests of their own on the wrecked foundations. Sparrows can't build nests in trees unless robins lay the foundations.

For a number of days, the wind blew too strong for the robins to build other foundations. When the eggs were due, they were laid on the limbs of the trees and fell to the ground and were lost. One bird I noticed sat on a limb near where the nest had been started, all day long for several days. Now she is gone. In four weeks, she will try again to build a nest, and, if successful, which isn't likely, will be feeding young birds by July 4.

Many people, of learning and intelligence, haven't yet learned the reason for our loss of songbirds. They go right on feeding and aiding the sparrows in their war of extermination. If people would watch the English sparrows from March to December, it's a safe guess that they would get busy and do something about it. The sparrow's nest is an incubator in continuous operation six months of the year.

What the Farmer Is Up Against.

I CAN'T help but wonder, after reading Charles M. Green's letter about destroying crops, if he realizes just what the farmer is up against. No farmer wants to destroy his crops, but he has been forced to do something drastic. Should seven lean years follow, the farmer will be just about where he was in the seven fat years, for he didn't get enough income to go around in times of plenty. The whole nation has refused to see the farmer's plight. It will be called to account, and will be equally guilty. Why not store up this surplus grain, but at fair prices?

The day will come when agriculture will be so organized that the farmer will know just about what he will get for his crops when they are planted. Controlled production is the only way one can be assured of a fair price.

MRS. BEN WITTE.

The People and the President

We were an oligarchy in 1930. So James W. Gerard said. He gave the names of the 64 men who, in his judgment, ruled America. Mostly, they were familiar names. With few exceptions, we had met them all on the front page.

"The captains and the kings depart." Mr. Gerard's oligarchs have disappeared from their pre-eminence. Some of them are in contemptible estate, with "none so poor to do them reverence." Some of them have carried on finely. They have won a public esteem they never before possessed. But the day of their power and glory is ended.

"The situation has changed," says Mr. Gerard. "Today, there is one boss—and he's the President." And if, under the 64, we were an oligarchy, are we now, under one-man rule, a monarchy? We doubt that any citizen seriously thinks so. There has been a lot of talk about dictatorship, but it is moony stuff. We know how dictatorships operate. They are in full blast in a number of countries. The most cursory comparison between conditions here and in the dictator-ridden nations blows the charge of a dictator at Washington into nothingness.

This is not to deny that powers have been granted to President Roosevelt which no predecessor has exercised. It should be remembered, however, that those powers have been granted by Congress, according to constitutional procedure. They have not been usurped. They are definitely limited as to time. At their expiration, they may be withdrawn, curtailed or extended, as Congress, in the light of events, decides.

History, to be sure, does not walk along serene levels. History is no docile old Dobbin, to be turned around and driven back at any given moment, when we conclude we have gone far enough; that the dangers which threatened have been detoured and we can return to an unchanged yesterday.

That is not the story of mankind. The powers delegated to the President and the experiments which the Government has been authorized to undertake constitute a precedent which, in all probability, will leave a permanent impress on our mode of living and our concept of governmental functions. The yesterday of the ruling 64 has vanished forever. The old order is finished. The New Deal is in the making.

What is this New Deal? What is it going to grow into? How will it affect our future? What is this America of tomorrow to be? No man on earth can answer those questions. To some, the prospect is bleak and dreadful. They can see nothing ahead but stark ruin. There are others who behold on the horizon a fair and shining dawn. How do the people as a whole feel about it?

The Literary Digest is trying to find out. It is conducting the New Deal poll. It is seeking to ascertain, as it explains, "how the country would vote if the President now came before it for re-election." The effort is not an attempt to procure a studied, analytical judgment of the administration's policies. No such judgment can be arrived at. The verdict, when rendered, will, necessarily, be the conclusion of public sentiment. It will say whether the people have confidence in the President—whether they believe in his purpose and capacity to put the country back on its economic feet, abolish the practices that wrecked us and establish a happier, fairer order.

The first report of the poll showed the President leading by a ratio of 2 to 1. The second tabulation is not so favorable. The ratio has shrunk to 3 to 2. The territory canvassed, however, is politically adverse. It includes the six New England states and New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania. Yet Maine, alone of those states, has given a negative majority, and that so slight as to leave the outcome debatable.

All the others are with the President. Pennsylvania, for instance, which was represented as having renounced the New Deal when it renominated Senator Reed over Gov. Pinchot in its Republican senatorial primary, is decisively for Roosevelt.

The result of the nation-wide poll, when completed, may not be anticipated, but the showing thus far, in what Mr. Bryan used to regard as "the enemy's country," is reassuring to the administration. Few political actuaries, from the figures at hand, would hesitate to predict a Roosevelt landslide.

Public confidence in the President, as trained observers have impartially reported, has continued steadfast, despite the failure of some of the administration's policies and the consequent disappointment and criticism. It is an extraordinary political phenomenon, but it may, we believe, be easily explained. On the whole, the people believe in him. They believe in his high purpose. They are still under the spell of his charm—a charm, indeed, that has captivated profound students of public affairs in foreign countries. If ever a President had to "take arms against a sea of troubles," it was Franklin D. Roosevelt. Public opinion had no illusion as to the crisis that confronted him. It realizes that enormous difficulties still beset him. It did not expect the miracle of immediate recovery. It did witness a miracle of official courage and confidence.

It is hardly an exaggeration to say that "death was on thy drums, democracy," when Mr. Roosevelt entered the White House. There is no fear of death in American philosophy today.

Still An Open Question

The lovely old State of Vermont has been experiencing, these past weeks, an acute case of what is vulgarly known as heebie-jeebies, because some impudent and irreverent newspaper writer referred to Senator Austin of Vermont as a "prize boob." We understand pretty well the meaning of the word "boob," although it has not achieved the dignity of admission into the dictionary. It is obviously derived from "booby," meaning an awkward, lubberly fellow.

Fired with local patriotism, the Rutland (Vt.) Herald has been scanning the horizon in an attempt to prove that Senator Austin is not a prize boob. Apparently it has had a difficult time trying to sight a sail, because it now quotes from the New York Daily News, referring to Senator Austin as follows:

"Attorney-General Cummings, whose office is gathering information for the criminal prosecution of certain air mail moguls, graciously passed the time of day with their most energetic and vociferous defender, Vermont's ruddy-cheeked Senator Austin."

In a brilliant burst of unconscious humor, the Herald comments upon this quotation as follows:

"This does not sound particularly approving, but it at least recognizes the fact that Austin is an important figure, bracketed with the Attorney-General of the United States."

As an impartial umpire in this great debate, we are bound to say that the question as to whether or not Senator Austin is a prize boob is still open for determination.

What They Owe Us

The squabble over the application of the Johnson law, banning borrowing in the American money market by foreign governments that have defaulted on their war debts, suggests a bird's-eye view of our present world creditor position.

About 27 billion American dollars are now scattered over the globe. European governments still owe $12,352,000,000 on war debt principal. To this should be added $337,000,000 which our State Department claims from the Soviet on advances to the Czar's regime. The world as a whole owes private American investors $6,885,000,000. Additional to this, the State Department is backing a $75,000,000 claim of private investors against the Czar's Government. American manufacturers have invested abroad in American plants about $7,500,000,000.

War debts have been in default since last June, with the exception of Finland, which is making full payment on a debt of about $91,000,000. European governments and corporations owe our private investors $2,647,000,000, of which $1,077,000,00 is fully or partially in default. South American governments and corporations owe $1,372,000,000, of which $973,000,000 is in arrears. Central American governments and corporations owe $40,000,000, of which $29,000,000 is in default. The governments of Cuba and the West Indies owe $137,000,000, of which $33,000,000 is overdue. Canadian corporations and the Canadian Government, however, owe about $1,880,000,000, of which only $82,000,000 is in trouble. Governments and corporations in Asia owe $552,000,000, of which $7,000,000 is in hot water. American investors have $2,000,000 in Africa, all of which is in default.

Discounting the effects of the world-wide depression, the investment record of Americans abroad over the last 20 years is far from gloomy. Since 1914, these investors have lent the world about 13 billion dollars, of which to date over six billion dollars has been paid back with interest and four billion dollars still outstanding is keeping up payments. Of the $6,885,000,000 owed by the world to American investors, some $2,200,000,000 is in default.

Taking the past 20 years, our private investments in Europe have not fared badly, though the shift in trade currents in the last four years does not augur so hopefully for the future. Since 1914, Europe has borrowed from American investors about $5,600,000,000, and to date paid back, with interest, over three billion dollars. Many European countries, such as Denmark, Belgium, Czecho-Slovakia, Switzerland, England, France and their corporations, have borrowed large sums, paid back substantially and never been in default on a loan. England has a fine record. Since 1914, she has borrowed about $1,214,000,000, of which only $81,000,000 is still outstanding. And England hasn't had a single case of default.

Since 1914, France has borrowed about $915,000,000, and has paid back since 1920 all but a little over $100,000,000. Neither the French Government nor any French corporation has defaulted on a loan in this time to our private investors. Germany is the chief defaulter in Europe, her Government and corporations having borrowed since 1920 from Americans $1,228,000,000, of which $977,000,000 is still outstanding. Of this, all but $160,000,000 is now in the red.

War debt payments by Europe will continue to be bitterly controverted. To the beginning of the current year, our Government had received $757,000,000 interest payments and $2,737,000,000 principal payments. Of this $3,494,000,000, England paid over two billion dollars and France about $486,000,000. Thus France, from 1920 to 1934, paid back over $800,000,000 to private lenders in the United States, but only $486,000,000 on her war debts to our Government. On the other hand, England paid back twice as much on war debt account as on private account.

Since 1914, American investors and our Government have lent abroad about 25 billion dollars, of which some 14 billion dollars, or 56 per cent, is now tangled in default. Leaving out the controversial war debts, only 17 per cent of the 13 billion dollars privately lent, or $2,200,000,000, is now in trouble. Six billion dollars have safely come back, with interest, four billion dollars are still weathering the worst depression in world history and the two billion dollars in default are not hopelessly lost, by any means.

A Health Service Plan in Michigan

The rising unrest of the general public over the costs of medical care is reflecting itself in the medical profession, which formerly stood coldly aloof to any suggestion that conditions might be bettered. The depression, which has drastically cut physicians' incomes while millions of the population lack adequate medical care, undoubtedly has caused some hard thinking among even conservative doctors. An example of the profession's changing attitude is the plan for a mutual health service recently approved in principle by the House of Delegates of the Michigan State Medical Society, which had voted against it a year ago. The society was sufficiently interested in the subject to spend $15,000 on detailed study of socialized health plans.

The Michigan plan has not been fully worked out and, if adopted, will probably be tried in one county before being applied to the entire State. It calls for annual payment of about $118 by each family, for which its members will receive full medical, dental, optical and hospital care, plus medicines and prescribed appliances. It would be limited to families of $1500 annual income or less. Control would be vested in a board of 11, including two laymen. The Michigan group aims to keep control in medical hands, to enable the patient to make free choice of physicians, to exclude all commercial exploitation.

Limiting the plan to families of less than $1500 income is a lower level than in other plans of this kind in use abroad. The annual fee of $118, while exceedingly reasonable for the many services included, would seem burdensome for families of this low income group. However, it is an effort in a wholesome direction, whose details may be worked out more fully later, in the light of results and experience. Both physicians and public will benefit by such a plan for medical care. The proposal indicates the trend that is developing in solving the problem.

A Trilogy Completed

UNFINISHED CATHEDRAL. By T. S. Stribling. (Doubleday, Doran & Co., Garden City, N. Y.)

WITH "Unfinished Cathedral," T. S. Stribling completes a distinguished trilogy dealing with the social changes in the Old South from Civil War days, up through the late era of "unprecedented prosperity" to the present breakdown. "The Forge," which appeared in 1931, dealt with the fortunes of old Jimmie Vaiden during the fateful '60s. In "The Store," Jimmie's son, Col. Miltiades Vaiden, achieved financial power; and, when the present novel opens, the Colonel, hale and hearty at the age of 90, is virtually the financial czar of North Alabama.

Feared, hated, but most of all respected, the shrewd old Colonel has succeeded in living down the theft upon which his fortune was founded, as well as the clever skulduggeries by which it has been expanded into the millions; and he is not only the oracular head of the Second National Bank, but the stanchest support of the Pine Street Methodist Church, as well.

Such a character, depicted by a writer of mediocre powers, would be represented as a despicable example of hypocrisy; but Stribling's understanding of complex human nature is such that, in spite of the contradictions in the personality, its sly dodges and automatic rationalizations, its curious mingling of honor and trickery, vice and virtue, the old fellow looms, at the last, somehow august and not a little lovable. This is a truly great triumph for a writer of fiction, and not to be achieved without a sense of humor too profound for the indulgence of laughter. Stribling has it; and at various points in his story, he attains, without seeming effort, that height of human truth where comedy and tragedy fuse.

But while the study of old Col. Milt is the supreme achievement of the story, there is no direct analysis of the character. Rather, it is unobtrusively revealed through its contacts with the many other persons of the old man's world, and each of them stands forth in the end with surprising clarity.

In the lives of these characters, every phase of the changing world-view is represented and significantly contrasted with the old; and this is done, not by the obtrusion of a thesis and running comment thereon, but in the truly thrilling story-stuff of life itself.

WATER FRONT. By John Brophy. (The Macmillan Co., New York City.)

THE water front of the title is that of Liverpool, and the story is concerned with the wretched misfortunes of a ship fireman's family, the wife, two grown daughters and a young son. The father, a hopeless rotter, has been absent for 14 years, and the fear of his return hangs over the family like a cloud. He shows up just in time to play havoc with the pathetic hopes of his offspring—and to make another "realistic" novel. During his first night ashore, while in a condition sometimes described as "pickled," he murders a man. Next day the papers are full of the crime and, as a result, disaster is brought upon the family.

The author very considerately introduces a seduction for the edification of the customers. The story arrives nowhere; it stops. And when it has stopped, the more humane reader is likely to feel much as he would after a session with a morbid gossip. There is no superior understanding, no illumination.

PIERRE DE RONSARD, French poet, who died in 1585 at the age of 61, was called "the prince of poets" in his own generation, but after his death his fame was eclipsed by the reputations of Corneille and his contemporaries. For more than a century, his work was practically forgotten, but was revived during the reign of Louis XIV.

The sonnets here presented, both in the original French and in exquisite translation by the well-known British poet and critic, Humbert Wolfe, were written at about the time Shakespeare's sonnets were in the making. Aside from their intrinsic merit, they are notable as revealing the Renaissance spirit in flower.

Humbert Wolfe is inclined to regard Ronsard as "the greatest French poet," or at least as "a very great French poet."

LIONS WILD AND FRIENDLY. By Eric F. V. Wells. (The Viking Press, New York City.)

ERIC WELLS, a British resident of South Africa, Fellow of the Royal Geographical Society, etc., has made a hobby of rearing lions for many years, and as a result has probably learned more about the "king of beasts" than any other human being. At any rate, under his loving care, lions seem to turn into huge house cats without any of the treacherous traits that are commonly attributed to them.

The stories he has to tell about his many lion friends are decidedly worth reading, if only out of curiosity; but they will mean most to those who may have realized, or at least strongly suspected, that the wall of tragic misunderstanding existing between the "two-leggeds" and "four-leggeds" is largely the ignorant creation of the former, for all their assumed monopoly of intelligence.

A SHORT LIFE OF SHAKESPEARE. By Charles Williams. (Oxford University Press, New York City.)

SINCE its appearance in 1930, the two-volume work by Sir Edward K. Chambers "William Shakespeare: A Study of Facts and Problems," has been commonly regarded as the most comprehensive and authoritative book on the poet's life and times. The volume here noted presents an abridgment of the encyclopedic study by Chambers, and is intended to aid "in clearing away the confusion which exists in ordinary unspecialized minds about what is and what is not known of Shakespeare."

THIS survey of the World War from the standpoint of statesmanship and strategy by a Captain in the United States Navy seems to be valuable chiefly, if at all, as a revelation of the orthodox military mind in operation. Certainly there are far more penetrating discussions of both the statesmanship and the strategy of that conflict.

Capt. Puleston is eager, at the outset, to "dispossess" the mind of the prospective lay reader "of the notions extant" concerning the Great War: such "notions," for instance, "as its uniqueness, its surpassing horrors and its relative magnitude." You see, it wasn't really so bad—on board a ship in the U. S. Navy with comfortable quarters and comparative safety! As a matter of fact, war "begets mass unselfishness," we are reminded. "Under the inspiration of war, people of all countries cheerfully undergo the greatest amount of hardship, find the necessary courage to look death in the face day and night, and depart . . . with the noble dignity that accompanies the supreme sacrifice made that others may live."

Is this funny, or isn't it, in view of the estimate that some 20,000,000 men and women and children lost their lives as a result of the war, not to mention hundreds of millions of survivors who, thanks to four years of "mass unselfishness," have found life hardly worth living?

Furthermore, we read, "great numbers of men go to war for the joy of the conflict itself. These find in combat with their fellow men their supreme sport"! So war is really quite a fine thing when you regard it judiciously—at a safe distance and from comfortable quarters!

As for being "indignant at world statesmen for involving their citizens in war," the naturally injudicious layman should bring himself to realize that "the statemen only embodied the ambitions of their nationals." Nationals! Does the important-sounding term, as used by the Captain, refer, by any chance, to the helpless millions who were required to do all the suffering and had no "ambitions" but to make a humble living for their own, somehow; or does it refer merely to that small exploiting class in each nation, for the safeguarding of whose privileges the military caste exists?

As for the author's analysis of the strategy of the war, even a layman who may have had access to more profound works on the subject is occasionally aware of merely conventional judgments, in keeping with the correct caste attitude—notably in the matter of Joffre's success in the first Battle of the Marne. In this connection, not a word is said of Gallieni!

In conclusion, the Captain exhorts the people to "take more heed of their armed forces," so that "when in due course they or their children are called to arms, the generation that is summoned can go solemnly but gladly, 'rejoicing in its strength as a strong man to run a race.'"

Obviously, the advice as to being well armed is practical enough, things being as they are; but the "solemnly and gladly" stuff is pitiful drivel. If the Captain has the slightest notion as to the cause of the world predicament, he gives no more indication of such knowledge than is to be found in the utterances of great statesmen.

AUTO CLUB ATTACKS GASOLINE TAX RISE

A printed leaflet, urging the Board of Aldermen to defeat the proposed increase of the city gasoline tax from ½ cent to 1 cent a gallon, has been issued by the Automobile Club of Missouri. This increase is one of the measures submitted to the Aldermen by the city administration to meet the need for additional revenue to support the bond sinking fund.

Eight reasons are cited by the club in its opposition to the increase, as follows:

St. Louis motor transport now pays, it is estimated, $7,366,670 a year in various Federal, State and city taxes, which is equivalent to one-third of the annual municipal budget.

Automobile owners are bearing an excessive tax burden. They pay an average of $51.62 a year each in Federal, State and city taxes. St. Louis, the club continues, is the only city of its size in the country charging both on automobile license fee and a gasoline tax.

Various taxes on motor transport collected by the city last year amounted to $2,630,033, which is equivalent to more than $22 on each $100 valuation of automobiles assessed for property taxation here. (Many cars are not assessed).

While the proposed increase is described a stemporary, the club fears that "temporary" taxes usually become permanent.

Passage of the increase would, in the aggregate, more than offset the benefit to St. Louis motorists of the reduction in State motor license fees this year.

The increase would "multiply the diversion of taxes the motorist new pays and single out a special class for carrying a fiscal burden of the city government that is the joint responsibility of all citizens.

The people voted against a gasoline tax increase in 1933. This was in connection with a proposed charter amendment providing a new means of financing street widenings.

Personal Debts of American Families Total 15 Billions

country as of 1929 was given as approximately $203,000,000,000 in an article in the Post-Dispatch July 3, 1932, based on calculations made by Prof. Irving Fisher of Yale and Prof. George F. Warren of Cornell. Since then there has been some decrease in business debts but a large increase in the Federal Government debt. Evans Clark estimates total internal long-term debt at $134,000,000,000, and short-term debt (including business debts) at $103,000,000,000, a total of $237,000,000,000. This, however, includes what banks owe depositors not ordinarily taken into account in debt calculations.

Thus it appears that a fairly accurate estimate of the total debts of the country still is $200,000,000,000. At an average cost of 5 per cent for interest the carrying charges would amount to $10,000,000,000 a year, or one-fourth of the national income. Five years ago when the national income exceeded $83,000,000,000 the carrying charges weighed less than one-half as heavily as now.

Discussing only the long-term debt, Evans Clark estimates the annual service charges at $7,910,000,000, or 19.8 per cent of the national income. Back in 1913 the comparable debt service charge was only 6 per cent of national income and in 1929 it was 9 per cent.

"The figures show," Clark writes in his book on internal debts, "that the carrying charges on our long-term obligations last year (1932) were equal to 20 per cent of the total national income, compared with 6 per cent before the war. In other words, out of every $100 we now receive from wages, salaries, dividends, interest, profits and rent, we must pay $20 in charges on money we have borrowed, while in 1913-14 we were obliged to pay only $6. By this test, our debt burdens are over three times as heavy now as they were before the war."

Served as Secretary to Two St. Louis Congressmen Then Succeeded to Post Himself.

KNOWS HOW TO GET THINGS DONE

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—Thirty-nine years ago in a newspaper office in St. Louis—the Post-Dispatch. as it happened—there was a red-headed copy boy whose alertness and good humor attracted the favorable attention of editors and reporters. This lad's name was "Jack" Cochran, he was 14 years old, and he worked because the family needed the money. Today the Hon. John Joseph Cochran, Representative in Congress from Missouri, is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator.

He is still "Jack" to those who know him—which appears to include practically everybody—he is still red-headed, and he is just as tireless and good-natured as he was in the days when harassed copy desk men were bawling at him for galley proofs. Whether he wins or loses the nomination, it is safe to predict that when it is all over his opponents will know they have been to the wars. One of them, incidentally, is his colleague and warm personal friend, Representative Jacob (Tuck) Milligan.

Cochran hardly fits into the popular conception of a statesman. His hair and his coattails are of ordinary length, and he is certainly not an orator, although he can hold his own in the rough and tumble free-for-all which is characteristic of debates in the House, in contrast to the more formal oratory favored by Senators. He is short, heavy, ruddy, and uses plain language.

He Gets Things Done.

It is highly doubtful whether Cochran could expatiate at any length on the reign of Diocletian, as did Missouri's Senator Patterson a few days ago, but when it comes to getting public buildings for his district and getting bills out of committee, Cochran could spot Patterson a dozen Roman Emperors and still lead him under the wire by six enabling acts and 10 post-offices.

The fact is one well known here—that in the practical matter of getting things done, Cochran is one of the most effective men in either house of Congress. The reasons for his success are perfectly obvious and perfectly simple. They are, first, his energy (it is doubtful whether any member works harder or longer); second, his extraordinary knowledge of the ramifications of government and legislative procedure, based on an unusual experience which will be described presently; and finally, the confidence and affection in which he is held by his colleagues and party leaders.

Contrary to a widespread impression, oratory plays a very small part in the actual business of legislating. Most speeches are made for home consumption, and few votes are changed by them. In the Senate, Norris of Nebraska always commands attention on any subject; Senators listen to Borah when he discusses foreign relations, to Glass on banking and finance, to Couzens on industry, and to La Follette on general economic subjects. Former Representative La Guardia, now Mayor of New York, had a large following in the House. As for the rest, it is mostly a case of breath wasted, so far as ultimate results are concerned.

Legislation is influenced first of all, of course, by the policies favored by the administration in power. Aside from that, it is largely a matter of hard, gruelling work in committee rooms—work of which the general public is hardly aware—of buttonholing other members in the cloakrooms, and of getting the party leaders interested in particular measures. This is precisely the sort of thing at which Cochran excels, and this fact is largely explained by his background of experience.

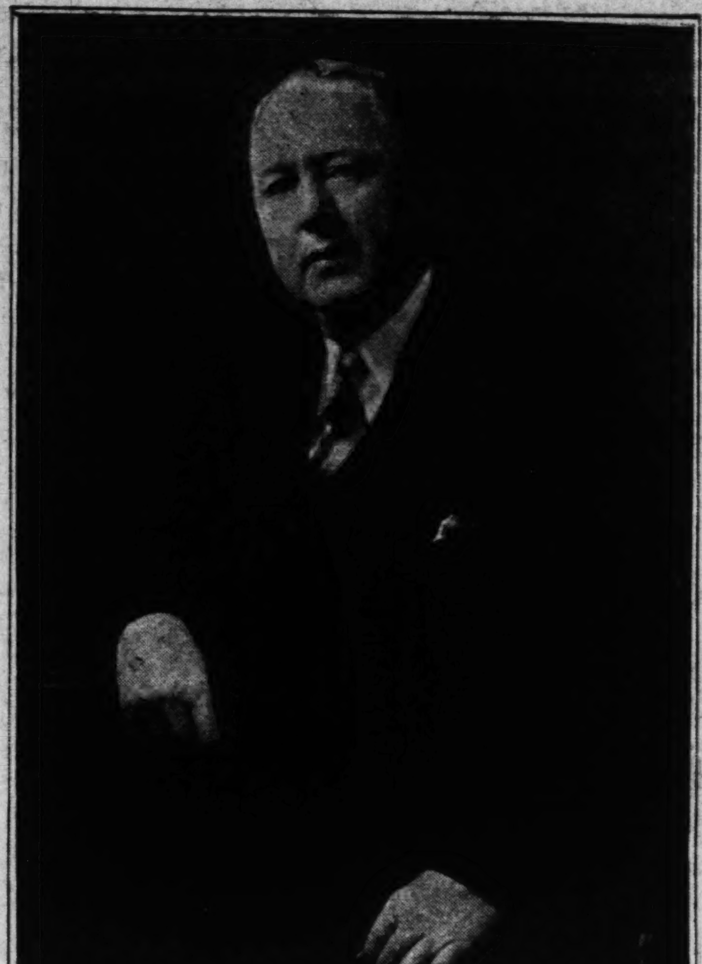
After leaving the Post-Dispatch as a copy boy, he went to the old St. Louis Chronicle in the same capacity. He was soon promoted to a position as sports writer, covering baseball, racing, fighting, wrestling, etc. (there wasn't much golf to cover in those days). He had obtained a common school education in the public schools of St. Louis, for, although he was born in Webster Groves, his family had moved to the city early in his childhood.

In 1912 William Igoe was elected to Congress from a St. Louis district, and he prevailed on Cochran to abandon newspaper work and come to Washington as his secretary. In one capacity or another, he has been here ever since—a period of 21 years. His secretarial training during the many years before he became a member of Congress has been invaluable to him. The same observation has often been made concerning Senator LaFollette. At the time of the latter's election he was, by many years, the youngest member of that body, yet it was said that no three Senators knew its rules as well, because of his long experience as his father's secretary.

St. Louis Entry in National Race



JOHN J. COCHRAN.

Cochran left Igoe in 1917, to become secretary of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, of which the late Senator Stone, of Missouri, was chairman. When Stone died, in 1918, Cochran returned to Igoe's office, and remained there until Igoe's voluntary retirement in 1920.

Same Place With Hawes.

Harry B. Hawes succeeded Igoe, and Cochran succeeded himself as secretary to the Congressman from that district. It was common knowledge by that time that he knew more about the district than anyone, including his successive superiors. Indeed, enemies of Hawes were mean enough to intimate that Cochran was the real Representative of the district in Congress.

At any rate, when Hawes elected to run for the Senate in 1926, Cochran decided to run for the vacant House seat. To some of the uninitiated, his chances seemed slim. There had been a legend that Igoe, and then Hawes, had a peculiar hold on the district, and that no other Democrat had a chance. Cochran floored them by rolling up a majority far in excess of the largest ever polled by any of his Democratic predecessors. In each succeeding election he has won with ease.

His most surprising triumph, however, occurred in the election of 1932. Because of the Legislature's failure to redistrict the State, in conformity with the act of Congress, all candidates for Congress in Missouri were compelled to run in the State at large. Many of the "sharps" said this spelled Cochran's doom. A wet Irish Catholic might win in a North St. Louis district, they said, but wait until the yokels out at the forks of the creek got out their knives. But it seems that rural Missouri is not so intolerant as the "sharps" had supposed.

In the primary he ran second in a field of 56 Democratic candidates for the 13 places on the ticket, and in the general election he led the ticket with 1,013,824 votes—9654 more than the second man, Representative Claiborne of University City, received. He defeated the leading Republican candidate by 404,556 votes—almost two to one.

Heads Major Committee.

During his 14 years of secretarial experience, Cochran had done virtually everything a Congressman does except to speak and vote. He had written thousands of letters to the people in his district, he had made the rounds of the executive departments in their behalf, and—which is equally important—he had made many friends in the House. Anyone who doesn't believe that legislation in both Houses of Congress is influenced by personal friendships, simply doesn't know his onions—or his Congress.

The impact of all these factors was soon felt. In 1927 the House had consolidated 15 small committees into one committee on expenditures in the executive departments. It is not a very felicitous name, but the committee has great power. It can, on its own motion and without specific authority from the House, investigate any expenditure by any Government department.

When the Democrats came into control of the House in 1930, Cochran was made chairman of this committee, a position he still holds. It was the first time in 25 years that a St. Louis Congressman had been made chairman of a major committee. The last preceding one was the late Richard Bartholdt.

Progressive Tendencies.

Although Cochran is considered a regular party man, his record, on the whole, has been decidedly "progressive." Thus, he voted for the Norris bill for Government operation and Government power transmission at Muscle Shoals, and for the Norris lame duck amendment. He voted for the Johnson-Swing bill for Government construction and operation of Boulder Dam. He voted against the sales tax and for publicity of income tax returns. Recently he voted for the Johnson bill, limiting the jurisdiction of Federal courts in utility rate cases.

Hi sfirst fight in Congress was directed against the "toll bridge racket," through which millions had been taken from innocent investors. Prior to that time, the passage of bills permitting the construction of toll bridges over navigable streams had been a mere formality. If a member introduced one, it was passed without inquiry or discussion. The procedure of promoters consisted in getting a bill through Congress, arranging with an investment house to float a bond issue, taking a percentage of the proceeds, and then moving on to new fields of action.

In a great many instances the bridges had failed to earn the top-heavy carrying charges, and dozens of them were in the hands of receivers. The bonds, purchased by the general public in the belief they were safe investments, were virtually worthless.

One of the most active toll bridge promoters was E. M. Elliot, who at one time had pending in the House 30 applications for franchises. Cochran instigated an investigation of his income tax payments. As a result, Elliot was indicted by a Federal grand jury in Florida, and pleaded guilty to tax evasion. He was fined $500, and the Treasury recovered about $125,000 from him in taxes and penalties.

This was the end of the toll bridge racket. Thereafter, when anyone applied to the House for a franchise, his application was referred to a committee, subjected to close scrutiny, and approved or rejected on its merits.

Fight on Prohibition.

For many years the fight against prohibition was led in the House by Cochran and La Guardia. By an odd coincidence, however, when the final successful fight for beer was waged, La Guardia was missing, having been elected mayor of New York.

However, the legislative accomplishment in which Cochran takes most pride was the enactment of two measures aimed against kidnaping. One of these is popularly known as the "Lindbergh Act," although Cochran actually introduced it long before the Lindbergh child was kidnaped and murdered. The other is an act providing punishment for persons who endeavor to extort money by threats of violence by using the mails. Both these measures were strengthened recently by amendments suggested by Attorney-General Cummings.

Cochran voted for all the recovery measures proposed by President Roosevelt, and he voted for the stock market control bill, the Securities Act, the Banking Act and the Federal Insurance Act. He voted to uphold the President's veto of the bill increasing allowances to veterans and restoring the salaries of Government employes. He has been especially active in opposing the employment of both husband and wife by the Government, and has persisted cheerfully in the face of a steady fire of criticism from persons affected.

He Explains Attitude.

"Some business men have jumped me for supporting the administration program," he said to the writer. "In reply I always ask them to remember the week when Roosevelt was inaugurated, when every bank in the country was closed, and business men were entreating the administration to save them from disaster. Now that conditions have improved, as a result of the administration's measures, these same men are howling against 'regimentation.' They forget what saved their necks.

"The President promised a new deal, but only part of his program has been completed. He should be allowed to round it out. Many problems remain to be solved. They are no more serious than those which already have been solved. I believe in following a pilot who has demonstrated that he knows his course. No self-respecting legislator should follow any President blindly, but up to this time there has been no reason for questioning the President's leadership."

Cochran is married. With his wife he lives simply in a residential hotel. His hobby is the outdoors, especially fishing. He has fished most of the mountain streams in Missouri, making extended "floats" on the rivers since 1900. He was acclaimed on the floor as the champion fisherman of Congress last year when he took a 62-pound bonita from the waters of Chesapeake Bay—the second largest catch of the season, the largest being made by a professional fisherman.

His interest in the outdoors has been reflected in his official activity. It was partly through his urging that the Missouri Legislature passed an enabling act to take advantage of the Federal Clark-McNary Act, establishing forest reservations. As a result Missouri will have at least five national parks.

Nations Wait For Funeral of Disarmament

state of nervous jumpiness when they are ready to believe anything. A misapprehended gesture may lead one or the other to anticipate a draw which was never intended.

Apart from that there are two or three possibilities which may have to be watched.

First of all, what will happen in France when the Disarmament Conference fails? What action will the Nationalists Ministry feel compelled to take in order to demonstrate its superior strength in comparison with the succession of weak ministries that preceded it?

I read from a well-informed correspondent that "it can be assumed that the French delegation will put forward the view that, in default of that progressive disarmament within the framework of security, to achieve which the conference was called into being, it is the inalienable right of every country to resume complete liberty of action once the breakdown has been formally recognized and its causes put on record.

'Liberty of Action.'

What does "complete liberty of action" mean? Will the French deliver an ultimatum to Germany demanding immediate destruction of all arms in excess of the Versailles allowance and the disbandment of all troops above the 100,000 stipulated in that treaty?

If Germany refuses, will there be another march across the Rhine into the mining areas of Westphalia, or will they occupy Frankfort? If so, that would be war this time. The last time the French troops marched into the Ruhr men crowded into the churches to pray. This time they would more than likely line the trenches.

That is our urgent danger. There may be a few more days for diplomatic intervention by other Powers, but that would be a precarious chance.

What are the other perils? There is the Saar. Will France play the game in this plebiscite? Will Germany? This is a real danger point. It is full of exlposive possibilities.

As to the Austrian situation, a false move by Herr Hitler in this quarter would lead straight to armed intervention in support of Dr. Dollfuss. But I cannot believe that the German Chancellor would provoke a quarrel in which he would have not only France, but also Italy and Czecho-Slovakia arrayed against him.

It is a dangerous situation, but now that the nations know what war under modern conditions means, I feel that, with a reasonable measure of confidence, somehow or other it will be averted. Britain and America acting together can prevent it. Will they act?

Canadians Say U. S. Must Take Initiative for Trade

sources and business assets out of the hands of the natives and put control in New York or Chicago. If this trend keeps up, they say, Canadians will be working for American shareholders.

Such are the conflicting political views that must be taken into account in any trade agreement negotiations. There is a wealth of material as to the American-Canadian trade in the past from which one may deduce the possibilities for the future.

Decline in Trade.

Next to Great Britain, Canada is still the best customer of the United States. It occupies a more important place in American trade than the whole of South America, Africa and Oceania combined. The total of foreign trade between the two countries during the last six fiscal years (Canadian fiscal years end March 31) follows:

Of course, the depression in both countries was partly responsible for the decline in trade because commodity prices and purchasing power were much lower, but other important factors were the Smoot-Hawley tariff bill, the retaliatory tariff actions by Canada, including many complicated administrative changes and the Ottawa agreements negotiated by the Bennett government with the United Kingdom, South Africa, Southern Rhodesia and the Irish Free State.

Shift of Trade.

The percentage figures convincingly show how Canadian trade has been diverted. For instance, in 1929, Canada obtained 68.7 per cent of her total imports from the United States and only 15.2 per cent from the United Kingdom. In 1933, the imports from the United States dropped to 57.2 per cent while those from the United Kingdom increased to 21.3 per cent. In the fiscal year closed last March 31, American imports into Canada made a further drop to 54.9 per cent of total imports while those from the United Kingdom increased to 24.26 per cent. The Ottawa agreement with Great Britain guarantees the mother country specified margins of tariff preferences of 215 out of the 807 items of the Canadian tariff.

There has been a corresponding decrease in Canadian exports to the United States. The official Canadian view of the effect of the various American tariffs is found in a publication of the Ministry of Trade and Commerce entitled "Trade of Canada, 1933." The pertinent paragraphs follow:

"Canada, under the Underwood tariff which was in force in the United States from Oct. 3, 1913, to May 27, 1921, increased her domestic exports to the United States from 1913 to 1921 from $139,725,000 to $542,323,000 while the exports of farm products in 1921 totaled $19,700,000 under the Underwood tariff 88.4 per cent of Canada's exports to the United States in 1920 was allowed free entry; thus, insofar as Canada was concerned the Underwood tariff was practically a free trade tariff. Under the Emergency tariff, which was in force from May 27, 1921, to Sept. 21, 1922, and the Fordney-McCumber tariff, from Sept. 21, 1922, to June 18, 1930, exports of farm products (chiefly raw materials) from 1921 to 1930 decreased from $190,790,000 to $92,134,000 and under the Hawley-Smoot tariff, which came into force June 18, 1930, and which was practically a prohibitive tariff in respect to farm products, Canada's exports to the United States from 1930 to 1933 declined from $92,134,000 to $6,948,000."

Fluctuation Since 1920.

D. H. Coats, the Intellectual Dominion Statistician, has prepared comprehensive charts showing the fluctuations of Canadian exports to the United States since 1920. A few examples will suffice to show how these exports have decreased. In 1920 barley exports to the United States were valued at $1,153,000; in 1933 they were valued at $83. Wheat exports decreased from $14,000,000 to $286,578; cattle over one year old, $41,226,000 to $7519; poultry, $612,000 to $15,385; sheep, $1,979,000 to $151; cattle hides and skins, $17,349,000 to $205,144; butter, $5,712,000 to $6150; cheese, $1,575,000 to $76,259; aluminum in bars or blocks, $3,562,000 to $292,933.

On the other hand, the exports of sulphite bleached wood pulp, which is on the free list, increased from $4,683,000 to $7,887,000, and the value of the exports of newsprint, also on the free list, increased from $46,809,000 to $64,489,000, and at one time—in 1930—reached as high as $126,288,000.

Opportunity With An If.

The authority conferred on President Roosevelt by the pending tariff agreement bill gives ample power for him to negotiate an agreement with Canada. Prime Minister Bennett already has considerable power through orders in council, and the pending natural products marketing bill gives him almost plenary powers over exports and imports. By taking the charts of Mr. Coats, the statistician, the comparable charts that could be made by American Department of Commerce or Trade Commission officials, the two executives could easily decide whether they wanted to go back to 1920, 1922 or 1929 for their respective flow of exports and imports.

But the tariff is loaded with dynamite for both executives. Consider two items alone upon which it might be possible to come to an agreement — stocker and feeder cattle from Canada against American exports into Canada. At present there is an American duty of 2½ and 3 cents a pound on cattle. The Canadian exports to the United States in 1920 were valued at more than $40,000,000 and in 1929 at $9,989,000. These Canadian exports in 1933 were valued at $7519. The Canadian tariff on American automobiles ranges from 20 to 40 per cent of their value.

Where the Danger Lies.

Suppose President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Bennett thought that a reduction of the American tariff on cattle and the Canadian tariff on automobiles would be beneficial to both countries. The whole American Western cattle country would violently oppose such an agreement, although Canadians say that the subsequent exports would be less than 2 per cent of the American cattle production. On the other hand, the Canadian industrialists would oppose the reduction of the automobile rates, asserting that American-made cars would flood the Canadian market. And if anyone suggested a reduction of the American wheat tariff of 42 cents a bushel, there probably would be a great row in the Middle West, the Senate and the House. And if some one suggested a reduction of the American tariff on fish, the Gloucester fishermen undoubtedly would make another sailing to Washington.

Won't Risk Senate Approval.

Your correspondent found Canadians agreed on one thing—they will start no negotiations in which the agreements must be ultimately ratified by the Senate. Most Canadians have great respect for President Roosevelt, and outside the politically minded Liberals, there is considerable respect for Prime Minister Bennett's negotiating ability. They say that it may be possible for the two men to work out an agreement whereby both countries will benefit although certain small areas will feel discrimination. The Canadians have found that it is more convenient to trade with the United States than within the Empire because of the time element, both for shipments and credits, and because American products appeal to them more than British goods.

Canada already has about 25 agreements with other countries. For some years the Canadian tariff has had three columns of rates: the British preferential which applies to goods imported from the principal countries of the Empire; the intermediate column, which applies to about 25 countries with which Canada has commercial treaties, and the general column, which applies to all the remaining countries, including the United States. Thus Canada is not averse to making special treaties with individual countries.

Chief Articles of Trade.

The 12 principal items of United States exports, which accounted for 73 per cent of the total in 1932, were as follows in the order of their importance: Raw cotton, petroleum and products, machinery, fruits and nuts, automobiles and accessories, raw tobacco, packing house products, wheat and flour, cotton manufactures, coal and coke, chemicals, iron and steel products.

Canada is particularly interested in finding markets for its wheat, timber, copper, cattle, dairy products and potatoes—all of which compete with American products. Any negotiations between the President and the Prime Minister will include most if not all of these items. It will be their job to find what articles can be most beneficially exchanged between the two countries, so that cynics will not be able to say that "reciprocity" has been confined to an exchange of relatives.

POPE ADDRESSES VETERANS

Describes Infantrymen As a "Band of Christian Soldiers."

By the Associated Press.

VATICAN CITY, May 26.—Pope Pius described infantrymen as a "band of Christian soldiers" marching toward personal and national salvation, in an address yesterday to 10,000 members of the National Infantrymen's Association.

The Pope received the former soldiers—most of them veterans of the World War—as a part of their ceremony celebrating the nineteenth anniversary of Italy's entrance into the war. "We should," he said, "as you well-loved sons know, be and remain afar from that which is the science of warfare. But we cannot fail to see clearly that the infantry is the real body of the army."

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

DRAMA-MUSIC-MOVIES

ST. LOUIS, SUNDAY MORNING, MAY 27, 1934.

Park Opera Concert Today

Municipal Stars and Chorus to Be Heard in Memorial Program to Victor Herbert on Big Stage This Afternoon—Final Spurt of Intensive Rehearsals Gets Under Way for Start of the Sixteenth Season a Week From Tomorrow Night With Jerome Kern's 'Sweet Adeline.'

ST. LOUIS will have a foretaste of its 1934 Municipal Opera season at 3:30 p. m. today when the singing stars, the chorus, and the opera's orchestra unite in a program of Victor Herbert masterpieces, presented as a memorial to America's greatest romantic composer, by the Municipal Theater Association, upon the tenth anniversary of Herbert's death. The concert is made possible by the volunteer participation of the musicians and by St. Louis theatrical stage employes, who will furnish the orchestra and the stage mechanics necessary for its presentation on the big stage in Forest Park.

Singing stars of former seasons and many of the most promising younger voices among the recruits to Municipal Opera casts this year will be heard in solo and duet numbers; the chorus will be presented in some of the rousing ensembles from Herbert's operas and the orchestra will contribute several purely instrumental selections from his works, such as have long been favorites with St. Louis audiences in Symphony "Pop" concerts.

Out of the confusion and turmoil, which have seemingly reigned supreme backstage of the open air theater in the park this week, will come the spectacular production of Jerome Kern's musical hit, which a week from tomorrow night will open the sixteenth season of Municipal Opera. Bustle, turmoil and seeming confusion were in fact just details in the well ordered plans by which the Municipal Opera season annually gets under way. Under some of the foremost production executives of the theater of this country, each supervising and co-ordinating the many details in his own department, order develops in what to the layman appears to be almost an impossible tangle of people, half completed stage settings, costumes and other paraphernalia of stage production.

THE first general rehearsal call assembled all Municipal Opera's artists for "Sweet Adeline," the chorus and the 1934 ballet on the backstage lot of the Municipal Theater last Tuesday morning. There three different rehearsal stages were provided, in a space that seemed already to be overflowing with stage sets in various stages of completion, with carpenters, scenic artists and property men.

Despite the important addition to the erea of the stage this summer, the whole theater back of the orchestra pit, with the exception of those rehearsal stages, was overflowing with construction activity. The additional stage space was badly needed to facilitate production and speed the presentation of the operas in this year's repertory, especially so because of the massive scenic settings which have been designed for the coming summer by Watson Barratt.

Barratt brings one innovation this year in the use of frames of structural steel, where design permits, and at least two of these towering structures will be used when "Sweet Adeline" is presented for the first time west of the Mississippi River on June 4. Another innovation is the indirect lighting of his stage sets, which Barratt has schemed out.

REHEARSALS, from Tuesday on through this week and next, will be held three times daily, morning, afternoon and at night. On a concrete rehearsal stage adjoining the site of the old River des Peres bridge leading up to the main entrance of the theater auditorium, Zeke Colvan, stage director for Municipal Opera, rehearses the principals in the book of Kern's romance of the prima donna, who was the toast of little old New York in the gay 90's. On the opposite side of the theater Palmere Brandeaux, dance director, has in training the ballet unit, which will be a feature of this season's productions. Until book and music are rehearsed and ready to be put together, the covered rehearsal stage adjoining the costume studios is used to train the chorus in the ensemble numbers of each production; then when principals, chorus and ballet have separately worked up their contributions to the production, the whole is assembled together there.

BEGINNING with the Victor Herbert memorial concert today, a week of strenuous activity confronts Municipal Opera. In addition to the final stages of rehearsal coming to a climax with the dress rehearsal for "Sweet Adeline," the stars, the chorus and the production staff are to participate as guests at the annual guarantors' banquet, given by the Municipal Theater Association in the gold room at the Hotel Jefferson at 7:30 next Thursday night. At that time the 750 guarantors of the current season will have an opportunity of meeting the stars and the production executives of the coming opera cycle face to face, and, following dinner, will be informally entertained by the chorus and cast.

The Municipal Theater Association's plans for its series of productions for the forthcoming opera season have aroused a greater interest than ever before. The season seat reservations last night, according to association officials, bid fair to establish a new high record and displays unusual interest among clubs and personnel organizations in selecting a "night at the opera" this season. While season reservations will still be accepted and filled, beginning tomorrow at 9 o'clock, Municipal Opera's downtown ticket office, in the lobby of the Arcade Building, will be open for the sale of individual tickets to any and all performances of the coming season.

Carl Brisson Debut Gains New Contract

Carl Brisson, English stage and screen favorite imported for a featured role in "Murder at the Vanities," drew a new contract from the Hollywood studios as a result of his work in the production. Brisson, native of Denmark, is one of the most popular stage figures in Europe and studio experts predict for him even greater success on the American screen. His next picture is not set.

Her previously published works are "The Helmers" and "Neilson" brought out in England, and "House for Sale" published in the United States. Doubleday-Doran are publishing "The Ancestor."

Third Story Bought For Ruggles, Boland

Value that Hollywood places on Charlie Ruggles and Mary Boland as a comedy team is indicated by the purchase of a new story for them, third in recent weeks. It is "People Will Talk," by Ralph Spence. Juvenile leads will be given to Kent Taylor and Ida Lupino.

Joe Penner Signed For 'Big Broadcast'

Joe Penner, top-ranking radio comedian of the moment, has been signed to make his featured screen debut in "The Big Broadcast of 1934," scheduled for production within two months. A few days ago the same studio signed Jessica Dragonette, N. B. C. star soprano, for the picture. Other radio names are to be added.

The Week's New Films

—:— By NIE —:—

CINDERELLA SADIE McKEE, who is down at Loews this week and being played by Joan Crawford, was a pretty good gal. Maybe her foot slipped once, early in the film, when she ran away from home with Gene Raymond. With due respect to the growing demand for cinema censorship the picture lets your own conscience be your guide in that matter. You see Cinderella Sadie was a housemaid in the stylish home where Franchot Tone was the son and heir. It was one of those every day, rich homes where the cook and the butler and the housemaids and every one else were on an intimate friendship basis with the family. Sadie and Franchot were good pals until he commenced to knock Joan's boy friend, Gene. Then Sadie got mad at him and stayed mad, too, for seven or eight reels and not until Gene had died and Joan had gone through a marriage with a wealthy man who devoted his life to drinking, did things clear up. For a joyous finish, Sadie and Franchot give every indication of settling down together. It's all a typical Joan Crawford picture of the come-out-of-the-kitchen sort and while it is much too long it is sure fire entertainment for the Crawford fans and Edward Arnold adds distinction to the affair with his splendid performance as the jovial, drinking husband.

Eye and Thigh and Homicide.

EARL CARROLL, who says he is going to revolutionize film revusicals, takes a hand in the movie game with a screen version of his "Murder at the Vanities" at the Ambassador and doesn't succeed in doing anything much that hasn't already been done by Hollywood. The picture, like the play from which it was taken, is a combination musicomedy and murder mystery meller with one of the Carroll Vanities shows going on to the bitter end while killings are taking place back stage. The musical part of the show is nicely made with some colorful dance numbers and things like that. Also it has the advantage of some pleasing singing by Carl Brisson, Denmark's gift to America's girl fans. The melodramatic angle is not so hot and shows that Carroll, who directed the filming himself, is on surer ground with girls and music. The comedy is in the hands of Jack Oakie, as a busy stage manager, and Victor McLaglen, as a typical, blundering screen copper.

Society Column.

IN "Upper World," at the Shubert, Warren William is one of those wealthy, tired business men whose wife just doesn't have time to give him any attention, so he hunts up a little recreation with Ginger Rogers, a good-hearted chorine in a burlesque show. Mary Astor, who is Warren's wife, didn't tumble to what was going on until her husband had to shoot his way out of the love nest he had established with Ginger. But when he is charged with murder, a couple of 'em, in fact, Mary sticks by him and after he is honorably acquitted they start off for Europe to forgive and forget. The No. 2 picture is a rather broad but very funny comedy, "Merry Wives of Reno." Meant for laughing purposes only, it fills the bill completely.

More Mystery.

MURDER is certainly in the air this week, the Missouri falling into line with a who-killed-Cock Robin thing called "Private Scandal." Given a decided comic turn by the injection of solemn-faced Ned Sparks as a detective and Zasu Pitts as a private secretary, who gets mixed up in the killing of Lew Cody, her boss. Who committed the murder is kept well under cover until the finish, which allows plenty of time for a love interest angle between Phillips Holmes and Mary Brian. The Missouri's other film, "Twin Husbands," is a crook meller also. There are no killings in this one, but stolen bonds and a willing to be reformed master racketeer provide the thrills. The story is almost too complicated for the customers to keep track of, but it's very well played by John Miljan and Shirley Grey.

JANET GAYNOR and Charlie Farrell continue their romancing in the heavily sugar-coated "Change of Heart" at the Fox, along with the entertaining picture, "Springtime for Henry." The pair of films are being held over until Tuesday, when Richard Dix and Irene Dunne will step in with "Stingaree."

Carl Brisson, a singing star, in Earl Carroll's "Murder at the Vanities," at the Ambassador Theater.

Old Clothes in Hollywood

Almost Any One Could Be "The Best Dressed" Man in Flickerville, for Competition Out There Is Very Light, With the Stars Leaving the Matter of Fashions to the Office Boys and Stenographers — When Carl Brisson, a new Arrival in America, Was La Garbo's First Love.

EVERY now and then items slip into the news about so-and-so being "the best dressed actor in Hollywood." Sometimes a high-powered press agent even stretches things to make his male hero the most lavishly gowned man in the world. As a matter of fact, except for one or two stars who really seem to enjoy keeping neat looking, if not gaudy, Hollywood's best dressed men and women are not the stars and better known players but the office boys and the stenographers. At least that's the impression one gets on a trip through the studios and for all the fact that it is pictured as displacing Paris as the fashion capital of the world, and that its sartorial achievements are copied around the globe, Hollywood is the greatest old clothes town in existence.

And the bigger they are, the more informally they dress. Except, of course, when they are working before the cameras or stepping out socially. Then, and only then, do they wear the clothes which have made the cinema town style famous. Sometimes they don't even dress up then.

If you happen to be going to California this summer on vacation and are able to break into one of the studios—but don't come to us for a letter of introduction, it wouldn't get you anywhere—look 'em over. Any minute you'll be likely to bump into Jack Oakie and his well-known sweat shirt which he wears on practically all occasions, or Richard Dix in a red slip-on sweater, a battered pair of corduroys, and tennis sneakers.

You'll encounter Joel McCrea in gray tweed trousers that show signs of wear and tear, and if the day is cool he may wear a coat or sweater over his open-throated shirt. You'll never see him with a tie, unless he's dressed for a part which requires it.

IF Katharine Hepburn isn't garbed in her famous overalls, she'll be wearing slacks and a sweater and Ginger Rogers varies slacks and sweater with sports skirt and sweater. Then you're apt to meet Pert Kelton hurrying along in duck trousers and white sweater, or she may be wearing a simple little suit like the high school girl next door and Ann Harding will be seen in a conservative wool ensemble, such as the neighbor across the street wears when she goes shopping.

Leslie Howard belongs to the flannels and sweater or sports coat brigade, and even John Barrymore is as apt to be seen with his shirt open at the throat as he is wearing a necktie.

Will Rogers' aversion to dressing up, for any occasion, is well known and Lionel Barrymore, traveling from his home to the studio in his 1914 automobile driven by his man of all work in a man of all work's clothes, hasn't had his trousers pressed since he moved to Hollywood. And that was a good many years ago.

IRENE DUNNE and Dolores Del Rio are exceptions who prove the rule. They're always dressed in smart outfits which attract the second glance. But, generally, seasonal styles mean nothing. The men stick to their flannel trousers the year around and the women to their favorite informal outfits, with few exceptions. You'll see more battered felt hats during the summer season than you will trim straw sailors and swanky panamas among those who haven't discarded head coverings as unnecessary evils.

But where the stars and directors adhere to the old clothes and comfort standard, the office boys and stenographers keep abreast with the modes and the latest fashions.

Carl Brisson, the latest importation from Europe who is on view there this week in his first American film, "Murder at the Vanities," has not yet gotten into the Hollywood swing of things and is the perfectly tailored juvenile man on and off the screen. It was Brisson, the fans will recall, who was Garbo's first love, although he didn't know about it at the moment. The last time she was in England La Garbo, in one of her reluctant interviews said: "I well remember falling violently in love with Carl Brisson and taking him a little bunch of violets, which he accepted with kindly interest. He was my first 'crush.'"

Garbo was just 14 years of age when they first met, Brisson recalls. He was running his own cabaret in Stockholm where a cabaret is a theater, with varied types of entertainment.

GRETA was a hairdresser in an adjacent barber shop. Brisson remembers her as a tall, well-formed girl, typical of the North countries, with a clean, fresh complexion and a frank, wistful look. He saw her daily as he passed the shop on his way to the theater. Then one evening she handed him a bunch of violets. Brisson recalls that he was as embarrassed as Garbo seemed to be. She confessed that she came to the theater as often as her scant earnings would permit. The actor, pleased with this evidence of hero-worship, presented her with a permanent pass.

Brisson had worked for Maurice Stiller, the great Swedish director, and one night introduced him to Garbo. Stiller was preparing a short film at the time and offered the young girl a part.

In those days she was Greta Gustaffsen, not changing her name until she went to Hollywood with Stiller. The latter, by the way, changed Brisson's name from Petersen.

Brisson left Stockholm in 1920 to go to London. A year later he received a wire from Stiller asking him to return to play the lead in "The Atonement of Gosta Berling." Greta Gustaffsen was to have the feminine lead. Brisson was eager to go but could not break away from his English engagements.

In 1922, Stiller took Garbo to Hollywood and Brisson lost track of her. Six years later he was making a personal appearance on the opening night of one of his English pictures. In the lobby he was greeted by his old friend, Greta.

"So you know Miss Garbo," exclaimed a mutual acquaintance.

"Garbo?" said Brisson, aghast. "Garbo? You are the great Greta Garbo? And I was just going to say how beautiful my little friend, Greta Gustaffsen looked after all these years!"

Curiously enough, Brisson might have come to America at the same time Garbo did. Stiller planned to bring them to stardom. But Brisson already was on his way to heights in Europe and turned down the offer.

Disguised as a policeman, he held up the Corn Exchange Bank.

THE CAPTURE OF 'DARING WILLIE SUTTON'

A Period to the Career of the Spectacular Bank Robber Who Used as Many Disguises as a Character in Fiction and Who Always Operated in Daylight.

PHILADELPHIA.

WHILE the police of the West were all hot and bothered in their feverish search for the deadly and elusive Dillinger, the sturdy denizens of law and order throughout the entire East were on the lookout for a particularly bold, clever and ingenious criminal who succeeded in putting the dangerous profession of stealing precious jewels and looting large banks on such a scientifically organized basis that he threatened to outdistance those masters of imaginative plot and daring escape, S. S. Van Dine and Dashiell Hammett.

When the courts had almost given up hope of ever tracing this bandit to his lair, because the clues they had were so slim and the fugitive managed to cover his traces so carefully, the persistent watchdogs finally succeeded not only in capturing their long-sought quarry but also, to their unbounded relief, in seeing him tried and convicted on eleven counts less than a month after he had executed one of his most perfectly planned and daringly conceived holdups.

Today "cops," detectives and police captains are all congratulating each other, for they know that dapper, flippant, well-dressed William Sutton, alias William Francis Sutton, alias Richard Courtney, alias Leo F. Holland, alias Julian Loring, alias William Holland, who, according to them, "would just as soon kill a policeman as eat a meal," is sentenced to serve the rest of his life behind the bars instead of remaining a "peril to society."

One reason why the end of Willie Sutton's dramatic underworld career means so much to the detective force is that this blue-eyed, brown-haired, crafty young man of 33 was no ordinary burglar, nor did he employ the modern methods of mob warfare and gangsterism. "Slick Willie" or "Willie the Actor," as he was appropriately dubbed, spurned the cover of darkness and staged his many sensational exploits in broad daylight, in the busiest sections of New York, Philadelphia and Brooklyn. He worked either alone or with two or at the most three of his intimate pals; he indulged in many disguises from those of police captains to those of special delivery and telegraph messengers; and he was equipped with trunks full of deadly paraphernalia, including machine guns, tear-gas shells, cold chisels, drills, sash-cord, wire and specially designed handcuffs.

When Judge Harry S. McDevitt, sitting in Quarter Sessions Court in Philadelphia, pronounced sentence after a 45-minute trial in which Sutton pleaded guilty and said he had nothing to say for himself, his voice crackled as he declared:

"I have been criticized by spineless men and weak-minded women for imposing the maximum sentences on such men as you. My answer to that criticism is going to be, 'every day the law allows.'"

Thereupon Judge McDevitt gave William Sutton not less than 10 years and not more than 20 in the Eastern Penitentiary, in solitary confinement at hard labor, for attempted robbery of a Philadelphia bank February 15, 1933; to be followed by not less than 10 and not more than 20 years in the same jail for robbery of the same bank January 15, 1934; to be followed by not less than 5 and not more than 10 years in the "pen" under a special act of the Assembly for carrying a machine gun.

"I serve notice on you now that I intend to request the District Attorney to have you indicted as a fourth offender," the Judge concluded, "and when that is done you can be sentenced to serve the balance of your natural life in the penitentiary where you belong. Your sentence commences today. Get started."

Without a word, without any emotional display, William Sutton, who had no lawyer to defend him and no friends or relatives in the courtroom to bid him farewell, was marched off to jail. The woman with whom he had been living when he had been captured a few days before, could not come to the trial because she was being detained as "an idle and disorderly person without visible means of support" in Moyamensing Prison. The two pals with whom he had been scheduled "to split the swag" from the bank robbery were both under arrest in New York, "Eddie" Wilson shot through the eyes and blinded in a battle with the police on Broadway and Jeo Perlango captured in his hideaway in Trenton.

The thrilling bank robbery which led to "Slick Willie's" arrest and conviction in one of the speediest indictments and quickest trials on record, came as the last, but certainly not the least melodramatic of the numerous coups that Sutton planned in his 15 years of crime, ever since that February day in 1919 when Detective Cranberry of New York arrested him for unlawful entry and burglary only to see his quarry receive probation and a suspended sentence. Four years later another detective brought Sutton in, this time under the alias of Leo Holland, for grand larceny, but again he was discharged. Later that same year he was acquitted of a charge of murder in the first degree, homicide with a gun.

IN 1925, however, Sutton's luck changed and he was given 5 to 10 years in Sing Sing on a charge of burglary and grand larceny. The law seemed still to have a soft spot for him and he was paroled in 1929, only to be picked up a little later for the possession of burglary tools and given one day in prison. But the leniency of the law seems to have been rather misplaced. for it was on October 28, 1930, that "Willie the Actor" staged one of his movie thriller escapades of the kind which have gained him the title of being referred to as the last of the old-time clever crooks. He plotted and carried out a perfect robbery on Broadway in the morning, with the net profit to himself and his partner of $130,000 worth of handsome rings, expensive necklaces, jeweled pins and ornate brooches, all taken from the firm of M. Rosenthal and Sons.

"Slick Willie" did it by donning a postal telegraph messenger's uniform, rapping on the door of the jewelry store shortly before opening hours and showing the porter that he had a telegram for the firm. As soon as the porter opened the door, Willie the Messenger entered the store, followed by a companion in civilian clothes, and covered the startled porter with a gun. Calmly, even facetiously, Willie chatted with the porter and instructed him to get the combination of the safe by telephone. The porter, with the gun pressed to his stomach, had no alternative. He called Joseph Rosenthal and got it. Sutton's accomplice then opened the safe and quickly emptied its contents into a bag. Immediately the two robbers disappeared with their loot, leaving the porter securely trussed with thin electric wire.

About a month later Captain Patrick McVeigh and a squad of detectives, by means of clues they had obtained from their own underworld grapevine, trailed Sutton and his accomplice to a Childs' restaurant, where they arrested them at 11 a. m., while they were enjoying a late breakfast.

Irene Sudvary.

Judge McDevitt.

In William Sutton's pockets the police found $2750 in cash as well as a large strychnine pellet. The other suspect, who gave his name as Maurice G. Bassett and claimed, in a suave, refined manner that he was a former student at Bordentown Military Academy and an amateur sociologist, also carried a pellet. He confessed to having served terms before and told the police that he and Sutton always carried these pellets around in the event that anything should go wrong on any of their jobs and put them in the shadow of the electric chair.

In Bassett, the police had a good witness. He related how Sutton and he had been working together, robbing banks and stealing jewels. He said that they had found the delivery boy disguise extremely helpful and had used the uniforms of telegraph, special delivery and florists' boys as they saw fit. He seemed to take a particular delight in dilating on their exploits and boasted about several robberies in which they had succeeded in stealing jewels from the private homes of wealthy people.

"There were always plenty of 'fences' who got rid of our stuff for us," Bassett explained. "For this last haul—the Rosenthal job—we got $35,000 in cash from a 'fence.'"

When the police raided Sutton's home, they found the telltale messenger uniform, a jewelry tag from Rosenthal's, handcuffs which had been used in an attempted bank robbery in Brooklyn (it had been foiled by the loud screams of a child), trunks full of expensive, expertly tailored clothes. Sutton had $7000 in cash in his safe deposit box at the Bank of the United States and he had recently transferred several thousands from his own to his wife's account.

Bassett was given 30 years in Sing Sing. Sutton, defended by Albert Vitale, a former New York magistrate, had a more extended trial. Because the court felt that the State's witnesses were being intimidated, Judge Collins ordered the jury kept under guard over the week-end at the Hotel Warwick. This was the first time a jury had been locked up before the end of the testimony since the time, 8 years ago, when Tex Rickard, the fight promoter, was brought up on an assault indictment.

In sentencing Sutton to 30 years in Sing Sing for assault and burglarly and violation of parole, Judge Collins said: "This holdup was perpetrated in the heart of the city, between 50th and 51st streets, in broad daylight and was one of the boldest in criminal annals. It is a grave matter that such a type of criminal exists. While you were at large, you were a peril to society."

Unfortunately for the society which Judge Collins thought he had protected permanently, stone walls did not a prison make nor iron bars a cage for William Sutton. Less than a month after his commitment to Sing Sing, "Slick Willie" made his escape in as craftily manipulated a break as any on record. Prison authorities throughout the country were startled to learn on December 12, 1932, that two long-termers had run away, for the first time in its history, from the so-called "inescapable" block of Sing Sing. As a result two guards were dismissed, and additional watches were placed at all the towers, but, Willie Sutton and his cohort, John Egan, were at large, where, no one knew.

Just how Sutton and Egan were able to perfect their getaway from the "escape-proof cells," has never been completely ascertained; but with remarkable care and ingenuity they did get out of the cells which are concrete on three sides and steel on the fourth. With saws, which they acquired somehow, they cut through the steel bars of their cells, just above the floor, and made a small hole through which they wriggled out. Behind them in their cots they left dummy figures which they had fashioned out of blankets and newspapers.

Wearing felt slippers they made no sound as they crept stealthily down the corridor until they came upon a trusty, John Tytsch, whom they surprised and bound securely hand and foot with tape and thin wire. They got the key to the refrigerator plant, opened it and threw Tytsch into it. Next they unlocked the prison tool room, got themselves two ladders, each nine feet high, and spliced them together. With these they scaled the prison wall. At the top they found some rope which the guards used for hauling up food. Down the rope they went to freedom.

AND it was not for hours that Tytsch was able to crawl to a telephone, knock it over and shout a warning. Only then did the Sing Sing sirens scream and the prison lights glare; but it was too late. No traces of the men were found. Egan's liberty did not net him much pleasure, however, for in February of 1933 he was found murdered in "Porky" Murray's speakeasy in New York. Near him were the dead bodies of a woman and the bartender. To this day the murder remains unsolved, though for a time the police did suspect Sutton had a hand in it because he feared that Egan knew too much about the Sing Sing escapade.

In the meantime, "Willie the Actor" had returned to his old haunts and old practices. He got himself a set of new disguises and was doing business at the old stand, this time with two new accomplices, Edward "Big Eddie" Wilson and Joseph Perlango. Just how many jewel robberies, bank lootings and attempted holdups the trio indulged in remains uncertain, but it is alleged that Willie Sutton, as a florist boy, stole $50,000 worth of jewels from Gertrude Williams, a showgirl who recently committed suicide, broken in health and finances.

It seems that Sutton, Wilson and Perlango decided to move their operating field to Phildalephia, and there, in February, 1933, the month of Egan's death, they attempted to rob a branch of the Corn Exchange and Trust Company. Dressed in the uniform of a special letter carrier, Sutton came to the bank about 8 a. m. and rang the bell. The watchman, Christian Madsen, opened the peep-hole and looked at him twice, noticing that he carried a mailbag over his shoulder and held in his hand a stamped envelope plainly addressed to the bank. No sooner had Madsen opened the door than he felt a gun in his stomach and was told calmly that if he valued his life he should stand back and obey orders.

Wilson and Perlango followed the messenger boy in and bound Madsen with picture wire. Madsen thought quickly enough to get hold of a tear gas gun and let them have it. Messenger boy, bandits and all quickly fled, this time without any loot.

Back to New York the trio went and there they laid plans for robbing another Corn Exchange Bank, which had no affiliations with the Philadelphia institution. In July of 1933 a policeman stepped up to the porter of the Corn Exchange before opening time and asked if he might use the washroom. The porter refused to let him in. The same process was repeated the next morning. But on the third morning, as the porter was about to enter the bank, a stranger stepped up to him, pressed a brief-case containing a revolver into his side and whispered: "You'd like to see your family again, wouldn't you?" "Yes." "Then

MOSCOW.

LET the man about town, seeking surcease from civilization, give a moment's thought to Khevsuria. There is a land without a money question, personal or international. Khevsurs don't use money. They have horse races at funerals. The women never fight, the men never work; wives must ask permission even to speak to other men, and sometimes they give permission for their husbands to take other wives.

Inaccessible nine months of the year, behind towering mountains in the Caucasus, between Tiflis and Vladikavkaz, a day's journey on horseback east of the Georgian military high road, Khevsuria defied the Czars, defies the Soviet and has defied civilization since the Crusades.

Dress and customs—and armament and inborn native "toughness"—have persisted unchanged for centuries, safe from the softening influence of civilization. Even the infants go armed. These Khevsurs can take it. And, either hanging over from medieval times, when they had their last true contact with the outside world, or a peculiar development of their own, some Khevsurian customs would outfreak Thorne Smith at his dizziest.

Take the correspondent's meeting with a native girl on his recent visit to Khevsuria. The party, guided by Badsia Veltauri, a native chieftain, was crossing a mountain pass 10,000 feet high when it encountered a girl, tending sheep.

"Women of my village," she screamed at Badsia as we passed, "aren't afraid to be kidnaped by men of your village. Sacrapo men are weaklings. Nothing happens"—her scorn was withering—"when strange girls go there!"

"Men of Sacrapo," Badsia retorted, "don't look at the ugly sluts of Barrasacco."

She stooped, picked up three large stones and flung them, one after the other, very nearly clipping the correspondent's head and certainly doing things to his peace of mind.

He ventured the remark that she seemed to be out of sorts about something.

"Oh, no," replied Badsia. "It is our welcome to Barrasacco. She would have hit us if she'd wanted to. Since she didn't, we may safely go on, assured of a friendly reception."

And he was right. What she'd have done if she hadn't liked us is food for thought.

Valley of Khevsuria.

The correspondent's group had been prepared for that encounter—so far as anyone could be prepared for such a dangerous whimsy—by a march from the Georgian high road like a page from Sir Thomas Malory. In 30 minutes after we left Passanaur, the village on the military road, where Badsia joined the party, it became perfectly clear that this was a country where "almost anything was rather more than likely to happen." A ladye fayre on a white palfrey would have been no surprise. At any moment, now, it seemed, one might come to the Dark Tower.

Between lofty mountains, as the horses toiled up the course of a tumbling, tortuous river, the men were lonely, infinitesimal, crawling dots. An eagle soared overhead. A green jay, a crested woodpecker, flickered across the path. The trail came out on the shoulder of a mountain, threaded Alpine meadows brilliant with wild flowers, returned again to its ravine. Occasionally the stream turned a rude wheel at a mill of crumbling stone, but nowhere in sight was any human being.

A bend in the stream opened a sudden vista to a little valley, all green and gold in the sunlight. Men and women in a little field were cutting and binding hay. A few stone houses dotted the slope above them. Across the valley, where it narrowed again to a craggy ravine, crumbled a great stone tower that once had guarded the pass.

Past the settlement, past the tower, continuing upstream, the party encountered a horseman carrying a round buckler, a long sword and wearing chain mail beneath his embroidered tunic. Dark blue was the tunic, and on it had been worked Maltese crosses and geometric figures in red, green and yellow. Below were trousers, deep blue leggings and moccasins padded with straw. The man was clean shaven, except for a mustache. His sword lay ready in his hand, he regarded the travelers warily, but as Badsia made room on the narrow trail, he pulled aside to let them pass. At the close of day we came to the village of Sacrapo, where 20 houses of stone perched at 20 different levels on a steep slope above a sheer precipice.

The houses were almost exactly alike—a basement set in the hillside, with a flagstone floor and an entrance at ground level, and an upper floor, made of wicker as well as stone, used for summer living quarters. Cattle were quartered downstairs. In the winter the Khevsurs moved below with the cows, and, Badsia informed us, husbands were free to make their wives sleep with the cattle any time.

SET apart at Sacrapo, and at every Khevsur village, is a woman's house," where women are sequestered at intervals, as when children are born. While she is away, a daughter or a woman neighbor does the work.

Women tend the cattle. It's rotten form, in Khevsuria, for a man to milk a cow. When there are guests, women are not allowed to wash their faces. In bizarre contrast, they are universally bob-haired.

Beneath the grime, those faces are intelligent. Khevsur women spin their own thread, weave their own cloth and, with dyes of their own invention, cover clothing, rugs, blankets and saddlebags with bright and ingenious designs.

The Maltese cross figures prominently in these designs, on swords and shields and carved doorposts. Crosses stand in shrines, where wayfarers leave beads and buttons as offerings. Here the Khevsurs kneel and cross themselves, and they call themselves Christians, more, it seems, to deny any connection with Mohammedanism than to indicate an espousal of Christian faith or practice.

Possibly the Maltese cross and the few Christian forms were an implantation in those Caucasian fastnesses from the Crusades. The legend is that a group of Crusaders, defeated by the Saracens, founded the nation. While much of their armor is of fairly modern manufacture, it is all medieval in style, and some of it dates from the Crusades.

Every male Khevsur, from infancy to senility, bears arms—short swords, daggers, sometimes a rifle, frequently steel-pronged rings which make murderous "brass knuckles." Every native traveler wears armor, though his trip be only to the next village. Mostly today it is worn in hunting or ceremonial duels, but sometimes a real duel occurs, and then, Badsia casually remarked, "someone is killed."

NEW YORK.

THE professional bondsmen, as a class, aren't suckers for tender sentiment, but James Graf succumbed to it the other night. Graf, who likes his sleep and can take or leave the gay life, sat up from midnight to 10 a. m. to satisfy the whim of a smart youngster who really deserved a swift boot instead of consideration.

The youngster, Maynard R. Spitz, aged 20, is one of the most distressing victims of Wall Street and Broadwayitis the town has ever seen. Graf was surety on his bail for a rubber check charge. Spitz had failed to keep an appointment in court and was on the loose on Broadway, having a final fling before going to jail. His mother had frantically informed Graf that her boy had tapped her purse for $450 and lit out for the cheer palaces. What was more, he had said something about capping his last party by drinking poison.

It wasn't all sentiment that led Graf to toss his cigar in the spittoon, clamp on his iron hat and strike out for the places he thought Spitz might choose. The prospect of losing the $2000 bond by the suicide of "Broadway's Youngest Playboy" had something to do with it, but sentiment predominated, because Graf, a Times Square figure, knows the virulence of the bite of the playboy bug. He knew Spitz had been stung at the age of 14 at the same time he began trading in Wall Street.

It was therefore logical to believe that he would spread the $450, which his mother had been saving to make restitution on one of his bad checks, among the leeches and hangers-on who had grabbed for his largesse throughout his wild six-year career and salved his stupid vanity by calling him "the boy wonder of Wall Street."

Without removing his hat, the bondsman strode to the playboy's table. The orchestra stopped playing and the revelers turned to stare at the intruder, who looked like a cop.

Spitz looked up and the puppy-like grin faded. He rose, his brown eyes flashing behind rimless spectacles.

"A swell guy you are," he shouted petulantly. "All I want is one last shot before I go up the river, and here you come and spoil everything. I'm not hurting you, am I?

"Look!" he went on, reaching for his hip pocket. "I've got a bottle of poison. When the party's over, I'm going to get the best room in the Astor and drink every drop. Why don't you leave me alone?"

"Come on, hand over that bottle," ordered the man in the iron hat. Spitz obeyed sullenly, almost poutingly.

"NOW," said the bondsman, after gingerly filing the vial away in his wallet, "if you like Broadway so much you can play all night. I'll tag along with you and then we go back to the Tombs. You play ball with me and I'll play ball with you. No suicide, though. How about it?"

Spitz brightened.

"O K," he said.

They left the Chez Follies and went to the Hollywood, then to Lindy's, then the Casino de Paree, then to Dave's Blue Room. From bar to bar, from hat check room to grill, from cabaret to honky-tonk, from marquee to marquee, the queerly assorted pair toddled, arm in arm.

At 4 a. m. the bondsman began to feel his age. His eyelids became heavy. Suppose he should drop off to sleep, say in the Tic Toc Club on the Park Central roof, and his client should take a header over the railing. . . .

"Let's go over to my place and have a drink," he suggested, and they went to 457 West Fifty-seventh street. Mrs. Graf, in nightgown, opened the door. There was a round of drinks and Graf got his wife off in the kitchen.

"Get your clothes on and come along with us," he said. "If I go to sleep, you can watch him. Don't let him do anything foolish."

"Let's get going, Jimmy," came the childish wail from the living room.

Half an hour later the three revelers were in the Ha Ha Club. Next came Leon and Eddie's and the Place Piqualle and the Palais Royal and the Stork Club. At noon Spitz was asleep happily over a sandwich in Reubens'.

Judge John J. Freschi.

Graf looked and felt like a zombie. Mrs. Graf sipped her black coffee. Wearily, they assisted Spitz out and poured him into a taxicab. Last stop of the night was the Tombs.

Two days later, when he had recovered, Graf said: "It was one of the toughest things I have ever gone through. The boy was plumb crazy. I had to play along with him even after getting hold of the iodine, because I couldn't tell what he would do. That's why I got my wife later on."

Spitz started his meteoric bright bulb and brokerage binge in 1928. His father, the late E. I. Spitz, lace manufacturer, left him $70,000. The high-rolling of the Coolidge era still bore the mark of perpetuity, and the boy wonder cut a wide channel through the city. He was hailed as a good fellow on Broadway and a speculative genius in the financial district. Even After the 1929 crackup he managed to keep going for a few years, but depression finally ate up his capital and profits, and he began dashing off uncertain checks. One of the recipients of the bad paper went to the District Attorney. He was Sylvan L. Waitzfelder, broker, of 78 Wall Street, who had received a sour check for $932 in payment for some gold mining shares. Spitz was located in Miami and brought back by Detective John P. Barron to face a grand larceny charge. He pleaded guilty.

"This young client of mine," Terrence J. McManus, lawyer, told the court, "is a sucker, plagued with delusions of grandeur. His case presents the most disturbing problem that has come before me in many years of practice.

"He has absolutely no sense of responsibility, and I would suggest that the psychiatric clinic examine him." General Sessions Judge John J. Freschi accepted the suggestion.

Spitz was wearing gray flannel slacks and a pink shirt when an interviewer called at the Tombs next day.

"Here, we can't talk through the bars like this," Spitz complained. "I'll have them let you inside. They'll do it if I tell them." He beckoned to a guard as he would a night club flunkey.

"Nuts," said the guard.

Spitz peered unbelievingly at the surly attendant.

"Can I be still drunk?" he asked. "Well, all right, we'll have to talk this way. You can say that in my six years on Broadway I have lived a lifetime. I'm ready to quit and take whatever is coming.

"Yes, I read all about my fling in the bulldog editions. Look, will you send me over some copies of the early papers. I didn't know they took my picture. Will you have a photographer in court when they sentence me? Jimmy Graf must have given out the story. I didn't say anything. In fact, I guess I was pretty plastered. I went on a rampage. It isn't true that I took the $450 out of my mother's pocketbook. I know a lot of Broadway newspaper men. They shouldn't have said anything like that."

The Broadway Kid fixed his tie.

"Well, anyway, I did intend to kill myself. I bought the poison at a drug store. I was going to have one last fling and end it all. But I didn't rob my mother's pocketbook. She gave me the money. I was supposed to take it down to square up that rubber check charge. That's what I'm here on, you know.

"I've got checks floating all over the country and nobody ever did anything about them. Then this guy who sold me some stock I didn't want puts this charge against me. That's the way it goes. I didn't get anything out of that last check except a lot of stock I didn't want, not even an hour of a good time, except when he was wining and dining me and selling me 200 shares extra. I ordered 300 first. Then I ordered 200 more. I've still got them.

"So I figured I'd take the $450 and have a last night of howling. What am I going to do now? Well, they ought to give me an s. s. on this charge—you know, a suspended sentence. What good did that check do me? But I guess they'll send me over to the island for six months to three years. I started out at 14. At 16 I was going with women twice my age. I never cared for the young ones. I never had friends my own age. At 14 I was trading in Wall Street in my brother's account. I was too young to have an account of my own."

"What will you do when you get out?"

"I don't know. I left school in the eighth grade to start my career. All I ever learned was how to spend the money my daddy left me. My mother let me do it. She had plenty herself, but she lost it, too. I grew up spoiled. I wouldn't know how to do a day's work. Jimmy Graf ought to have let me go on and take that poison, I guess."

Spitz wasn't sent to the infamous penitentiary on Welfare Island. Judge Freschi glanced up from the psychiatrist's report and said: "You're just a spoiled child who needs reformatory treatment. I'm going to sentence you indeterminately to the reformatory on Randall's Island."

"You tell the Broadway gals I'll be back," he said. "I love them all. And they haven't forgotten me since I've been in trouble.

"I really never expected this sentence. It was a shame. Why, my mother was waiting outside and we had reservations made for a trip to Atlantic City. They said in court I was a behaviorist. Well, anyway, I was calm. I showed them I could take it, in bad times as well as good.

"As far as I'm concerned—notwithstanding this behaviorist stuff—my behavior was perfect. I'll be good when I'm away, and I wouldn't be surprised if I got back in three months.

"I have no illusions about the main stem. But I'll make them all sit up and take notice at my homecoming celebration. I'll have plenty of cash. I'll be able to buy what I want."

Two days later he was on Randall's Island, where he will receive lots of cigarettes and candy from the Broadway boys and girls—if they can remember his name.

The Grim Explanation of What Happened to Victor Paddock and How It Was Made Clear After Five Years of Mystery.

Digging for the remains of Victor Paddock in a pasture near Eureka, Kansas.

EUREKA, Kansas.

ON A June night in 1929 Victor Paddock went out to meet Goldie Boyer, the wife of another man.

"You'll be back pretty soon?" his mother asked.

"Oh, sure," he said.

But Victor Paddock never returned. And for almost five years his fate was the subject of speculation, rumors, whispered comment and sporadic investigation. Then, one night a few weeks ago, at about the same hour as his disappearance, Paddock was found. In a lonely pasture in the Flint Hills, diggers came upon his skeleton in an abandoned well. Standing by, with the light of electric torches on him and guards close at hand, was Lloyd Boyer, who had led officers to the spot after confessing that he and Goldie Boyer had slain Paddock—that the woman had fired the final shot into the body of the victim. Boyer said Paddock had been his wife's lover.

With the clearing up of this long-standing mystery there was unfolded a story as grim and as harshly dramatic as the region of stony plains in which occurred its crisis and its denouement. It embraces a reckless infatuation, a ruthless revenge and then the slow, dogged march of the forces of law, inspired by a mother's inflexible determination. Over the course of events lies the shadow of fear.

Victor Paddock was a member of the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars. He had served overseas as a Corporal in Company I, 137th Infantry, Thirty-fifth Division. After the war his health was poor, as he had been gassed, and he sought outdoor work. For several years prior to his death he worked with road construction outfits, usually as an automobile mechanic. With his brother, James, also a war veteran, he had gone from job to job of this kind, and their mother, Mrs. Bertha Paddock, had accompanied them, keeping house for them in their various locations.

In the spring of 1929 the Paddocks, whose home town was Manhattan, Kansas, were in Sallyards, Greenwood County, where Victor and James were working on State Highway No. 54. Sallyards is a village a short distance from Eureka, the county seat. Victor went to Eureka occasionally, and there became acquainted with Goldie Boyer, whose husband, Lloyd, owned a rooming house which she managed. Boyer was also supposed to be in the grain business. He was about 30 years old. Goldie was two years younger and Victor Paddock was 31.

The acquaintance of Victor and Goldie progressed rapidly. A friend told Boyer if he would keep his eyes open he would "find out something." Boyer took a trip to Memphis, and on his return heard that Goldie had been with Victor at the rooming house.

"So I jumped her up about it," Boyer later related, "and asks her, and she says she didn't, and I kept pumping her until finally she confessed up to it, that she had stayed all night with Victor in Room 2."

ON THE evening of June 28 Boyer and Goldie drove to Sallyards. While Boyer remained in the automobile, Goldie went to the door of the Paddock house and inquired for Victor. Mrs. Paddock told her he wasn't at home. "I've got to see him," Goldie said. She returned to the car, which was driven a short distance away, on a side road. She and Boyer sat there as dusk turned into darkness and waited for Victor.

Presently the lights of another car appeared on the road, and Boyer hastily climbed into the turtleback of his roadster and closed the lid. The other car was Victor's. He stopped and talked with Goldie. She asked him to take a ride with her. He agreed, but said he would take his automobile home first.

After Victor had put his car away his mother told him of Goldie's call. He said he was going to meet her in a few minutes. He seemed to be nervous, spilled tobacco as he filled his pipe. He kept looking at his mother as if, she thought, he wanted to tell her something. But he only said, presently, "Well, I've got to go"—unconsciously prophetic words—and assured her he would be back before long.

Victor walked down the road to the Boyer car and got in with Goldie. She drove along for a mile or so, turning off the side road onto a main highway—drove with her lover beside her and her husband hidden in the rear compartment.

As the car sped along the highway, Boyer suddenly made his presence known to the other man.

What Victor Paddock thought and felt when he discovered that Boyer was with them can never be known, of course. According to Goldie, the two men talked of commonplace things as they rode the 12 miles to the scene of the killing.

They came to a pasture about two miles south of Eureka and turned in. And then Boyer unmasked his savage resentment against the other man. He accused him of having had improper relations with his wife. At first Victor denied it, but admitted it after Goldie had told him she had confessed to her husband. Boyer shot him twice, then Goldie took her husband's revolver and shot her lover as he lay on the ground. The body was thrown into an abandoned well on a rocky mound nearby and covered with stones.

So much the only two witnesses agree on. Concerning several details their accounts differ.

After telling of Victor's admission as to his relations with Goldie, Boyer, in his confession, said: "Of course, I was mad and excited, of course, and I just shot him and he ran around the car and said, 'I am shot,' and I just shot him again and he fell down, and the missus takes the gun and shoots him while he is laying down."

In reply to a question concerning Goldie's part in the killing he said: "I went over to see if he was dead or not and he wasn't, and she came over and fired the shot while he was laying down there groaning."

Here is Goldie's version of what happened:

"I don't think he (Victor) had a suspicion of anything happening other than just going for a drink. . . He (Boyer) stopped the car and asked Victor to get out and open the gate. While he was out opening the gate. Floyd opened the windshield of the car, him sitting under the wheel—me sitting beside him — shot through the windshield, hitting Victor I don't know where — in the back somewhere. When Lloyd struck him he hollered and started to run and fell, and that is when Lloyd asked him if he had been intimate with his wife, and he said no that he had not. Lloyd told him he knew he had and he just as well confess, and Lloyd turned to me, and I said, 'That's right, Victor, I have told him the truth.' And Vic said, 'Yes, I have,' and he shot him again. . . .

"He picked him up; carried him over to the well; asked me to hold the gun while he was carrying him, and I carried the gun over to the well. He laid him down on the ground and before he took his clothes off he held the gun cocked and made me pull the trigger to finish him."

When Victor failed to return from his meeting with Goldie, Mrs. Paddock and her other son, James, notified the authorities at Eureka, and the Boyers were questioned. Boyer said he had simply run Paddock away; that he had made him leave that part of the country and warned him not to come back or send any word back, even to his relatives. He said he hadn't hurt Victor.

Mrs. Paddock didn't believe that story. She felt sure Victor would not go away and stay without letting her know. As days passed and she had no word from him she began to think Boyer might have beaten him so severely that his mind was affected; that he might be wandering about ignorant of his own identity or lying unconscious in some hospital. She avoided for a long time the belief that her son had been killed.

At Mrs. Paddock's insistence, a warrant charging kidnaping was issued against the Boyers a week or so after Victor's disappearance. The case was dismissed in October of that year, but a few days later a new kidnaping warrant was issued. The Boyers were arrested and gave bond. They were held for trial at a preliminary hearing November 15, but were released the same day by the District Court at Eureka on a writ of habeas corpus.

Despairing at last of learning the fate of her son through routine official channels, Mrs. Paddock, in January of 1931, appealed for help to a Wichita lawyer, Sidney L. Foulston, to whom she had been referred by one of Victor's war-time commanders.

FOULSTON was a World War veteran, having served as a Lieutenant of infantry, been wounded in action and decorated with the Belgian Croix de Guerre. At Camp Lewis, Washington, before going overseas, and later as an Assistant County Attorney, he had shown a flair for investigation. His liking for that sort of work, combined with his sympathy for Mrs. Paddock, impelled him to accept the case.

It was apparent from the first that Lloyd and Goldie Boyer held the key to Victor's disappearance. And Foulston early became convinced that the disappearance was permanent—that Victor Paddock had been killed. To prove it, and convict anyone of killing him, it was virtually necessary to produce the remains of the victim. After the lapse of a year and a half it was a cold trail.

Foulston went to Eureka and did some quiet investigating, which consisted principally of listening. He received the impression that people there believed Boyer had killed Paddock and buried his body some place in that region. But there seemed to be a pervading fear of talking very definitely about it. The lawyer decided that if anyone in that vicinity had significant information he either was afraid to disclose it or would not because of some connection with Boyer. It was easy to see that Boyer, although he had no criminal record, was considered a dangerous man to antagonize.

On several occasions Foulston went hunting in the Eureka neighborhood—and spent most of the time hunting for the burial place of Victor Paddock. He went to Governor Landon and obtained the co-operation of the

Her 1500-Mile Southern and Central American Flight Not Only Smashed a Record But Marked a Victory Over Her 'Bad Luck.'

Laura Ingalls ready to hop off.

NEW YORK.

WHEN Laura Ingalls climbed out of her plane at Floyd Bennett Field here the other day, at the end of a 15,000-mile flight that had covered most of Central and South America, it was perfectly plain that she was about as happy as any mortal being could be. The newspapers exhausted their stock of adjectives—she was "wreathed in smiles," "brimming over with gaiety and enthusiasm."

But no figure of speech, no adjective, could have done justice to the supreme happiness that Laura Ingalls felt. And reason enough—completing a successful solo flight like that, longer than any woman had ever made before. But there was an even more important reason—a private reason—why the young woman flyer was so happy.

Laura Ingalls felt that she had at long last broken the jinx that has shadowed her career. The completion of her South American flight meant not only another achievement in her determined air career, but it meant that she had proved—to herself and to the world—that she could make an important solo, thus breaking a bad luck omen of long standing.

If ever a girl has worked, slaved, drudged for a career it is this Laura Ingalls. Her final triumph was no accident. Early in the flying business, if a woman had a pretty face, a good manager, a flair for publicity, and some slight flying ability, she could usually manage to do something spectacular in the air. Or at least spectacular enough to bring more publicity and a shower of vaudeville and other contracts.

BUT Miss Ingalls began to fly after that sort of thing was pretty much over. Moreover, she is not the kind of person who would go in for that kind of spectacular, easy-money success. In fact, she reversed the whole procedure. She was on the vaudeville stage, as a dancer, before she took up flying.

Her family in New York had helped her to a stage career. They had sent her to Paris and Vienna to study voice, languages and dancing. They were pleased when she got a contract on the Publix circuit. But they were most decidedly not pleased when all of a sudden she got the flying craze and gave up her stage career. Reluctantly they consented to give her enough money to pay her tuition at a flying school. But they told her she would have to support herself while she was learning to fly.

Miss Ingalls signed up with a school at Roosevelt Field, on Long Island, got a job as secretary at the field and settled down in grim earnest to learn the flying game. Later she was persuaded there was a better school at St. Louis, and she went to Lambert Field and again got a secretarial job that would pay her living expenses. From dawn to dusk, literally, Miss Ingalls was at work. She says that at night she was so tired she could only go to her room in St. Charles and fall into a dreamless sleep.

This was in 1929. On April of 1930 she got her transport license, the first woman to qualify at St. Louis in the transport class. Shortly afterward she broke the woman's record for consecutive loops, with a total of 344. And not long after that, at the dedication of the airport at Muskogee, Oklahoma, she made 980 consecutive inside loops and thereby won $1036 in guarantees and prizes. But her ambitions were much higher than this. She confessed that she had a plan for a round-the-world flight, across the Atlantic, then over the Mediterranean and across Africa.

Aiming at her ultimate goal, she set out after another record — the trans-continental crossing from New York to Los Angeles. She made it in 30 hours and 27 minutes flying time. Not satisfied with this, she essayed the west-east flight, which she made in 25 hours and 35 minutes. Both these were records, since no woman had ever attempted official trans-continental flights.

And now Miss Ingalls felt that she was ready for the real test. What she wanted to do was to fly solo across the North Atlantic. As Lindbergh had done, she flew from Los Angeles to St. Louis, in the early summer of 1931. Arriving at Lambert Field, she wrote, in the pilots' register, after destination, "Le Bourget Field, Paris." In New York she lost some of her optimism. There were numerous difficulties, with backers, with her plane. That summer was a long, painful trial to Miss Ingalls, with hope slowly fading. With September the weather reports were persistently unfavorable and she was at last compelled to abandon the flight.

Then in May of 1932 Amelia Earhard flew the Atlantic alone. It was a great achievement and deserved glory shone upon Miss Earhard's curly bobbed head. The thing was done, and there would have been no point in doing it again, even if it had been possible to find a backer. Miss Ingalls would have been less than human if she had not been pretty much disappointed by the fact that another woman had beaten her to this honor.

Miss Ingalls' name more or less dropped out of the news. Even when she first started on her South American flight, last March, it was without benefit of ballyhoo. There were cynics who predicted she would never finish the flight. When she was unreported in a jump from Charleston, South Carolina, to Miami, Florida, they looked knowing and said, "I told you so," and it happened even sooner than was predicted. But Miss Ingalls had merely neglected to report her stopping place, and she went serenely on.

As she held to her schedule, with one long flight over sea and land after another, day by day, the magnitude and importance of her project became plain, even to cynics. And they conceded that she might make it. Strange ports, strange names crept into the news. La Lima, Honduras; Talara, Peru; Antofagasta, Santiago. And then over the Andes —the first American woman to make this dangerous mountain crossing. To Rio, to Para, at the mouth of the Amazon. Then for hundreds of miles along the desolate jungle coast, perhaps the most hazardous part of the flight.

By the time she reached Miami on the homeward journey even the doubters were ready to cheer. In the flying profession it was conceded by all that Miss Ingalls had more than made good the early promise she had shown. So it is not surprising that she was a bit elated when she came back to somewhat deferred honors and acclaim.

Despite all the achievements already chalked up opposite her name, this may be only the beginning of her flying career. Now that it has been successful she admits that one of the chief reasons why she made the South American tour was to gain experience and prestige that would enable her to enter a coming international air race.

This is the race from London, England, to Melbourne, Australia, a 10,000-mile derby, which is sure to attract the world's leading flyers. Sir MacPherson Robertson, originator of the race, has offered a first prize of $50,000. Miss Ingalls believes that with a new and faster plane she would have a chance in the race.

How and Why the Sprightly Mrs. Myra McHenry Has Been Popping In and Out of Jails All Her Life.

Mrs. Myra McHenry.

By a Member of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff

WICHITA, Kansas.

HER eighty-sixth birthday found Mrs. Myra McHenry feeling a bit downcast; she feared she was beginning to get old. True, she could still do her own housekeeping, make her own clothes, scurry about on her errands tirelessly. She could still write stinging manifestos on public affairs and harangue a crowd with waspish stridency. She still had the figure of a girl and a burning zeal to expose the wickedness of mankind. But the dismal fact remained that she hadn't been arrested for 17 years. And the lady couldn't help wondering if she had lost her punch.

The next day brought a reassuring answer to that question. Mrs. McHenry was cast into jail for contempt of court, scoring her forty-eighth arrest in a long career of protest against things as they are.

This forty-eighth achievement in martyrdom came about through Mrs. McHenry's championship of the cause of a young man named Henry Winters, who, she felt, was a victim of police persecution. Winters was up before Judge Leigh Clark, presiding in Division 2 of the City Court of Wichita, for disturbing the peace. He was found guilty. Whereupon Mrs. McHenry stepped up to the bench to have a little talk with the Judge.

According to the magistrate, she addressed him about as follows: "You old fool, you don't know what you're doing." People in the courtroom roused expectantly; Myra McHenry apparently was in form today.

Judge Clark told her, he says, to keep still or he would have to declare her in contempt of court.

Mrs. McHenry's response was, he relates: "You're too big a coward to do it. I want to go to jail."

The Judge, who is 64 and feels he is rather too old to be scolded, accepted the challenge. He fined his critic $20 and told a deputy sheriff to put her in jail until she paid the fine.

Mrs. McHenry's version of the incident is that she merely wanted to discuss some of the testimony with the Judge; that he ordered her to shut up and get away from the bench, and then, of course, she had to let him know what she thought of him.

Anyway, she refused to pay the fine and was lodged in the Sedgwick County Jail. The next afternoon she was released.

"I was quite comfortable in jail," Mrs. McHenry said shortly after her release. She added, with a grin: "And it was really rejuvenating to be locked up again."

It must have seemed like old times—like the early years of her militant public career, when serving the Lord so frequently involved her getting thrown in the clink. In later years she has pursued the path of what she considers Christian service as militantly as ever, has continued her vehement attacks on persons and institutions that fail to conform to her ideas of righteousness, has persisted in challenging constituted authority; but authority has got out of the habit of doing anything about it, apparently feeling that its most effective defense against her is not

Grumpy and Bill Bunny fell down a hole in a dark cave and landed in a pool of water way down inside the earth. They swam ashore and were taken prisoner by the Alabasterites, who thought they were gold thieves. Now Grumpy and Bill were terribly afraid—they didn't know what these little folks were going to do to them. So the first time the guard fell asleep Grumpy tore a hole in the side of the jail. BILL BUNNY—(Hopping along.) Come on. All we have to do is find a streak of sunlight coming down a hole and follow it out.

GRUMPY—I hope that isn't going to be as hard to do as I think it is. Gosh! What're these things? Bones? (Grumpy has guessed right. They are bones. But Grumpy couldn't guess that they were the bones of some giant prehistoric monsters that lived thousands of years ago, and he and Bill are nearly scared to death when they stumble on some more of them.)

GRUMPY—Gosh. This must be a cemetery. The folks who live around here must be awfully big. I'd feel a lot safer with those little Alabaster folks. Let's go back.

BILL BUNNY—What if they've closed that hole up in that jail?

GRUMPY—We broke out of it, didn't we? We ought to be able to break into it. Come on.

correspondent visited one of their churches, a square, squat, stone building in a "holy grove" of stately beeches on the crest of a hill. In one of the trees were the church bells. In the holy house was a large wooden vat, kettles of copper and iron and some wooden dippers. It was a brewing outfit. At church festivals, Badsia explained, the Khevsurs gathered, sacrificed sheep and grew hilarious on new-made beer.

Elderberry wine is the accepted drink at funerals—wine in great quantity and food to match. A funeral attended by the group was the occasion for a series of athletic contests and feats of strength, culminating when seven men rode a mile down a creek bed and raced back at breakneck gallop, trying to shoulder each other from the narrow trail, risking life with every lunge, while men cheered and women lustily screamed.

Blood feuds are not so common as once, but they occur. And, since the 10,000 Khevsurs comprise only 20 families, a blood feud can approach the proportions of a small war. If a member of one family wrongs another, the injured family demands payment in sheep or cattle. In lieu of payment, the culprit's life is forfeit, and one killing may follow another until entire villages are at war. Sometimes, however, the patriarchs—the oldest man of each family—may get together and make amicable settlement.

Members of the same family may not marry. The marriage, and the dowry of cows and ewes, is arranged by the parents. Children are born in the "woman's house," without medical or nursing care. Charms over the cradle protect the child from evil spirits, and a sword hung beside it gives it strength. On his first birthday he chooses his future occupation by his selection from a group of objects—a sword, a musical instrument, a wooden horse, a stone cross, a hammer.

KHEVSUR men are named for animals. Women's names come also from natural surroundings, but they have a hint of romance suggestive of North American Indian names. The correspondent stopped with the family of "Mountain Goat," whose wife was "Sun Woman." His son was "Wolf" and his daughter was "Rippling of the Stream."

Money is gratifyingly unknown. The correspondent exchanged tobacco, sugar, salt and rice for services and goods. Wealth is counted in sheep and cattle, ownership of land is determined by use, and the water mills are common property. Milk, cheese, beef, mutton and flat barley loaves, baked by women in stone ovens, comprise the food. But the Khevsurs are not fastidious. Cleaning out the saddlebags, a member of the party found a broken box of epsom salts. A Khevsur, asking for the box, began eating the contents with solemn relish. Perhaps he thought the salts endowed with powers of magic.

Only boys are allowed to attend the school. The Khevsurs feel that education would be wasted on the girls. But the Soviet policy of peaceful penetration is beginning to be felt, and one suspects that even here, in time, the primitive life must give way before the march of progress. Perhaps Khevsuria may yet have its traffic problems, blood feuds may give way to gang wars in the advanced style or urban "civilization," and differences may be fought out, not with broadswords of the time of Richard Coeur de Lion, but with "tommy guns," in the style of Dillinger himself.

For some 35 years Myra McHenry, former lieutenant of Carry Nation, has been crusading against one thing or another—the Demon Rum, cigarettes, bare legs, private immorality, dishonesty and tyrrany in public office. Most of that time she has lived in Wichita, and her iconoclastic pamphlets, street-corner tirades and face-to-face upbraidings of officials have become familiar phenomena of the city which rejoices in the title of the Peerless Princess of the Plains.

MRS. McHENRY'S forte is invective. She probably could easily qualify as Kansas' champion denouncer. "Crook," "hypocrite," "fool," "fraud" are terms that she doesn't hesitate to apply to those who incur her ire. And she has made a living from it. The sale of her pamphlets, collections at her extemporaneous street meetings and other contributions from well wishers, she says, have enabled her to support herself and stay out of debt for more than 30 years.

She is a small woman, weighing only 95 pounds, with a thin, aquiline face. She speaks, even at her advanced age, in a strong voice, with a Southern accent. She is the daughter of a Kentuckian, a physician, Dr. W. W. Warren, but was born in Lafayette County, Missouri. It is rather surprising, in view of her fierce espousal of the Prohibition cause, to learn that whisky was served as a matter of course in her parents' home, and that even the children, including herself, were given mild toddies occasionally.

In 1872 she married James A. McHenry, a lawyer, as the culmination of an unusual romance. McHenry had seen her photograph at the home of one of her sisters in Kansas, had liked her looks and had written to her. They corresponded eight months before they met. Dr. Warren opposed their marriage because McHenry was a Republican. Myra waived politics in that case, but she still thinks a member of the G. O. P. is going through life under a considerable handicap.

In 1899 the McHenrys were living in Howard, Kansas. They had seven children. Money was not plentiful, and Mrs. McHenry helped out by taking roomers and sewing. She hadn't paid much attention to public affairs.

A bootlegging case came up which attracted a good deal of local attention. There was some suspicion that the bootleggers got off lightly because of official laxness. Mrs. McHenry became interested, became convinced that certain officers were "in with the bootleggers," became very indignant about it. She wrote letters to a newspaper about the situation, and when the paper stopped printing them, started a paper of her own. It was a small paper, called the Searchlight; she wrote all its contents herself except for the "patent insides." She devoted it to the exposure of official wrongdoing.

One of the officials she assailed was a nephew, who was also a friend of her husband. McHenry objected pretty vigorously to this, and finally his wife agreed that if her nephew was not re-elected she would cease denouncing him in her paper. But he was re-elected, and the morning after the election results were known McHenry appeared in the doorway of the kitchen where his wife was working, announced, "We part now," and left the house. She sent one of the children after him to ask him to return, but the appeal was in vain.

"IT NEARLY broke my heart," the veteran peace disturber recalls. She felt she had been required to make a heavy sacrifice on the altar of principle. Some years later he divorced her.

Not long after the parting an insanity charge was brought against Mrs. McHenry. She fled from the town in the night, disguised in men's clothing, and came to Wichita. Here she continued to conceal her identity for several weeks by wearing "tacky" dresses and a sunbonnet. One evening she attended a camp meeting and sat behind the sheriff, who had been looking for her. The insanity case was dismissed as have been two subsequent ones.

Mrs. McHenry's association with Carry Nation began soon after the latter started her career as a saloon smasher. In 1904 they were much together, the Wichita woman looking after some of her chief's business interests. She went on only one of Carry's raids. That was an attack on the Mahan brothers' wholesale liquor house in Wichita. Five women took part. Guards at the place resisted them. One man kept hitting at Mrs. McHenry with a length of gas pipe and she kept dodging the blows. Finally he grabbed her and began to shake her violently. She yelled: "Help! I'm being shook to pieces!" She managed to free herself by biting and scratching.

The women were arrested. While in jail they took sacrament, juice squeezed from grapes serving as wine. As she knelt in prayer at that time, Mrs. McHenry saw a vision—a cross of pink flowers with a light shining on it—and derived from the fact assurance that her work had divine approval. Such visions frequently came to some of the saloon smashers of that day, but Mrs. McHenry says this was the only one she ever had.

When the destruction of property case came up in court, Mrs. Nation, Mrs. McHenry and another woman were sentenced; Mrs. McHenry got two months and a $250 fine. But the judge suspended the sentences, telling the defendants to go and behave themselves. So Mrs. McHenry walked happily out of court and tore a liquor advertisement off a billboard.

Most of her arrests have been for disturbing the peace, blocking the sidewalk, speaking without a permit, and the like. In campaigning against liquor her favorite practice was to collect a crowd on a street corner and then tell her audience that a "joint" was being operated at a certain address and name a few respected citizens among its patrons.

Mrs. McHenry's longest jail term, she says, was 19 days, served in Arkansas City. As she tells it, she went into a bootlegging joint, seized a bottle of beer, walked out and showed it to a policeman. He arrested her. As a result of a controversy over her bond, the police judge sent her to jail for contempt of court. She was put in a room above the cells and a furniture dealer sent her springs and mattress to make her comfortable. Mrs. McHenry is not one who endures restraint in silence. She sang and prayed, and at last the jail was left unlocked so that she might escape. But she refused to escape; insisted that if they wanted to be rid of her they would have to free her legally.

A year or two ago Mrs. McHenry decided national prohibition was a failure and announced her consent to repeal. Discussing this the other day, she said she thought she was still for state prohibition but was rather concerned about it because of the influence of the W. C. T. U., for which she does not seem to entertain a high regard.

Among the prominent Wichitans whom Mrs. McHenry has verbally belabored for years are Henry J. Allen, former Governor of Kansas, and M. W. Woods, head of the local welfare organization. A few weeks ago, when fellow citizens were honoring Woods with a dinner and reception for 25 years of service in his position, she observed the occasion by distributing a leaflet giving a less complimentary opinion of Mr. Woods.

MRS. McHENRY says she has official Wichita fairly well cleaned up now, and is about to start in on the Chamber of Commerce.

While not now affiliated with any religious denomination, Mrs. McHenry was baptised in the Christian Church and professes a lifelong devotion to religion. This, she says, has been the inspiration for the activities which have landed her 48 times in the hands of officers of the law.

In explanation, Mrs. McHenry likes to cite this incident: "I was talking to a certain man one day when he said some other man had asked him, 'Is that old buzzard (meaning me) still after you?' I said, 'I'm glad I'm appreciated, for a buzzard's business is to hunt up rotten carcasses, and that was what I was doing when I was after you.'"

Faithless Wife Fired Final Shot

State highway patrol—officially known as the Department of Inspection of the State Highway Department—an organization with state-wide police power. Since there would be no financial profit for him in the case, Foulston could devote to it only such time as he could spare from remunerative practice. The investigation proceeded slowly, became something of a waiting game—waiting for a "break."

A few months ago the "break" came. A person who knew nothing of Foulston's interest in the Paddock mystery consulted him on another matter. He learned that the person knew Boyer well. After days of persistent effort he obtained from this person a statement that Boyer when drunk had boasted of having slain Paddock and hidden his body in a pasture; that the informant had heard the boast. So great was the informant's fear of Boyer that the identity of the person who gave the information has been kept secret.

The informant's story was checked up and investigators became convinced that it was substantially true. Pastures near Eureka were again searched for the burial place of Paddock, but without success; the old well had been filled completely and appeared merely as a small mound of stones.

A few weeks ago Foulston and Victor H. Anderson, inspector of the state highway patrol, who had been put in charge of the patrol's work in the case, decided the time had come to act. On the same night squads from the highway patrol arrested Boyer at Eureka and Goldie at Arkansas City.

'Goldie confessed first—after it had been proved to her that Boyer was in jail. She was taken to the city jail at Wichita, where Boyer was held, and allowed to see him. Standing in darkness outside a lighted room, she held to Anderson's arm and trembled convulsively as she waited for the prisoner to appear. When Boyer entered the lighted room she took one look at him and fainted. It was the most striking exhibition of fear, Anderson said, he had ever seen.

GOLDIE took officers to the pasture and tried to find the well containing Paddock's body, but because of changes there was unable to locate it. The next day, however, Boyer, confronted with information given by Goldie, confessed to Detective Joe Maness of the Wichita police. Then he led officers to the pasture and pointed out the well, saying, "Well, there it is, boys." He tried to take a large stone off the top of the heap and remarked, "They go in a damn sight easier than they come out." The bones of Paddock were found nine feet below the surface. They were identified by bridge work in the skull. Two bullets also were found. The revolver, of Spanish make, with which Boyer says Paddock was shot, also is in the hands of the authorities.

Boyer was arraigned in Eureka the other day on a charge of murder and held under $35,000 bond. Goldie was being kept under surveillance as a witness. They parted more than a year and a half ago, after, Boyer says, he discovered she had not been divorced from a previous husband when she married him. He married again and left the second wife, he says, for the same reason.

In her confession Goldie said: "He (Boyer) was insanely jealous of me. . . . I was terribly afraid of him."

The pair strolled up the block and back, where they met two men, one wearing a duster. They all entered the bank together and once inside, the man in the duster removed his coat and revealed himself in a New York police captain's uniform. He finished off the costume with a cop's hat.

Sutton, as the policeman, turned out to be the manager of the job. The porter was bound with picture wire. As the other employes arrived, they were confronted with a gun, a few quiet words about wanting to see their families again and were duly trussed with picture wire. Some of them were allowed to sit in chairs; a few had the wire passed around their wrists and through the steel grating of the tellers' cages so that the slightest motion was terribly painful.

When the cashier arrived, he was told to open the safe. With a gun leveled at his head, he obeyed the order. Wilson and Perlango brought out paper bags, stuffed $23,835 of currency into them and then the "policeman" and his two friends quickly disappeared with their haul, having overlooked $9000 in silver. A few minutes later an early depositor found the staff of thirteen men and proceeded to cut their bindings.

Secret police wires notified the detectives that it looked like the work of Sutton and his pals. New York became too hot and Willie Sutton went back to Philadelphia where he posed as an auditor and lived in a comfortable apartment in a modest residential section. There he took the lease under the alias of Richard Courtney and the girl who shared the apartment with him answered to the name of Mrs. Courtney.

SHE was the 20-year-old Irene Sadvary, a graduate of Braddock High School in Braddock, Pa. Two years before, she had left home to make her fortune as a stenographer in the big city, had gained employment with an insurance firm, had quit because the boss was too fresh and had become a waitress in a Broadway restaurant. There she met up with Eddie Wilson and started to go to his parties. She became his sweetheart and the two of them lived together as Mr. and Mrs. Edward Courtney. Then one night Willie Sutton came to a party at the "Courtneys.'" It was love at first sight and Wilson gave Irene to Willie. According to her, they eloped to Elkton and were married in April, 1933, though the story was never verified. At any rate, Sutton left his common-law wife and children in New York and set up housekeeping with Irene in Philadelphia.

Eddie Wilson consoled himself as best he could with Nina Mirando, a blonde girl 27 years old. Joe Perlango, living down in Chatham street, with his wife and two children, was filled with resentment against Willie because he felt that he had not received the proper three-way split on the New York Corn Exchange job. Nevertheless, Perlango and Wilson both joined Sutton in the Quaker City and there they went back to the same Corn Exchange Bank where their efforts had previously been foiled. This time they not only captured the tear gas gun which had routed them, but also brought along gas masks as a precaution.

No masks were employed; the three well-dressed and cat-footed thugs dropped through the skylight trap-door which they had pried open and hid in the women's washroom until the night watchman, the same Madsen, made his last round. Then Sutton confronted him with a machine gun and forced him to listen to his commands, telling him that if he made a false move he would get a bullet through his head since he, Sutton, had a long stretch coming to him and had no intention of being caught alive.

As the bank staff arrived, Perlango covered them with a pistol as Sutton directed the job with brazen commands and a sawed-off shotgun. Each man was bound hand and foot with piano wire. When the bank manager, Clarence B. Munshower, entered, he heard someone say, "Good morning, Baron," but before he could reply, "Vas you there, Charlie?" Eddie Wilson pointed a gun at him and ordered him to open the safe. Munshower explained that it was on a time-lock and could not be opened until 8:40 a. m. Everyone sat around chatting until the appointed minute when the "Baron" complied with the bandits' request. He was then handcuffed so securely that a locksmith had to be called to free him.

UNDER Sutton's supervision, the bandits took $10,800 out of the vaults and shoveled it into paper market bags. Besides currency they took $400 in gold and $80 in nickels and quarters, but they overlooked $40,000.

In the meantime Captain Patrick McVeigh and his squad of detectives were getting closer to Sutton. Through underworld connections they found a piece of automobile registration card with Edward Wilson's name on it. Captain McVeigh compared this handwriting with the signatures on 28,000 registration cards and found that Ken Morley of Yonkers was Eddie Wilson. News went out to all police to be on the lookout for Wilson's automobile license.

Sure enough, Edward Wilson and Nina Mirando came driving down Broadway and after them the police cars in a thrilling bandit chase. After 20 blocks the police had Wilson cornered. Just as he was about to shoot, he got a bullet through the eyes and Nina got hit in the wrist. Severely wounded, Eddie Wilson thought he was dying. He and Nina gave clews implicating Perlango and police soon nabbed Perlango in his hideout in Trenton. Perlango gave them Willie Sutton's address, squealing for revenge because he had twice been gypped of his swag, having received, according to him, only $3600 from the New York bank haul and only $600 from the Philadelphia spoils.

Quickly six New York detectives swooped down on Philadelphia and together with local police lay in wait for the desperate bandit in his apartment. In the late afternoon he and Irene returned and began feverishly packing their trunks. When Sutton was confronted with the guns of the detectives, Irene sprang in front of him to save him. Sutton put down his own .38 caliber pistol and the detectives immediately arrested him and took Irene along as a suspicious character.

In Sutton's trunks the police found $5100 in cash, a sawed-off shotgun, machine guns with foresights of American and hindsights of German make and minus all serial numbers or identifying marks, ammunition, handcuffs, revolvers, gas guns, police and letter-carrier uniforms. There were New York license tags with numbers reversed for the front and back of the car; there were owners' cards which they fixed to fit their own cars.

WHEN Irene was questioned, she told a story of rustic unsophistication, declaring that she was an innocent high school girl whose name was really Jean Courtney. She protested that she had come to Philadelphia on a sight-seeing trip, had met Richard Courtney and married him under the illusion that he was an honest business man. She insisted that she was really his wife. The court held her in $10,000 bail as an "idle and disorderly person without visible means of support."

But when the detectives told Irene that Eddie Wilson was dead, she broke down and screamed hysterically: "I love Willie now. He is my husband. But I want to see Eddie and square things. I left him without saying things." Irene's innocent pose melted away with her tears and she confessed that she had been around with Eddie and Willie although she insisted that she knew nothing of their plans, except that she believed that "a woman in a mink coat had squealed on the mob." Magistrate Hamburg sentenced her to a year in the House of Correction but reconsidered and freed her on probation with the provision she leave town immediately.

On the day he was caught, February 5, 1934, Sutton admitted the bank robbery. Three days later he was indicted on 11 charges, including conspiracy, carrying a gun and possession of a machine gun. And now he is safely in jail.

Captain McVeigh and the five detectives who tracked down the trio have won rewards in the form of higher pay and rank, for the Sutton conviction is regarded as one of the best pieces of detective work in years, and the rounding up of the trio is particularly laudable since they were considered the most daring and successful gang in the East. How far they might have gone, no one knows; for William Sutton was working on detailed plans of many banks and was planning to send both Irene and Nina to college in order to use them as "fronts" for future jobs and in order to send them out to get information about the homes of wealthy persons. Today this danger is removed, for Eddie Wilson, totally blind, has been sentenced to Sing Sing for 21 to 25 years, Joseph Perlango to the same jail for 10 to 20 years and William Sutton, according to Judge McDevitt, will spend the rest of his natural life behind the bars.
